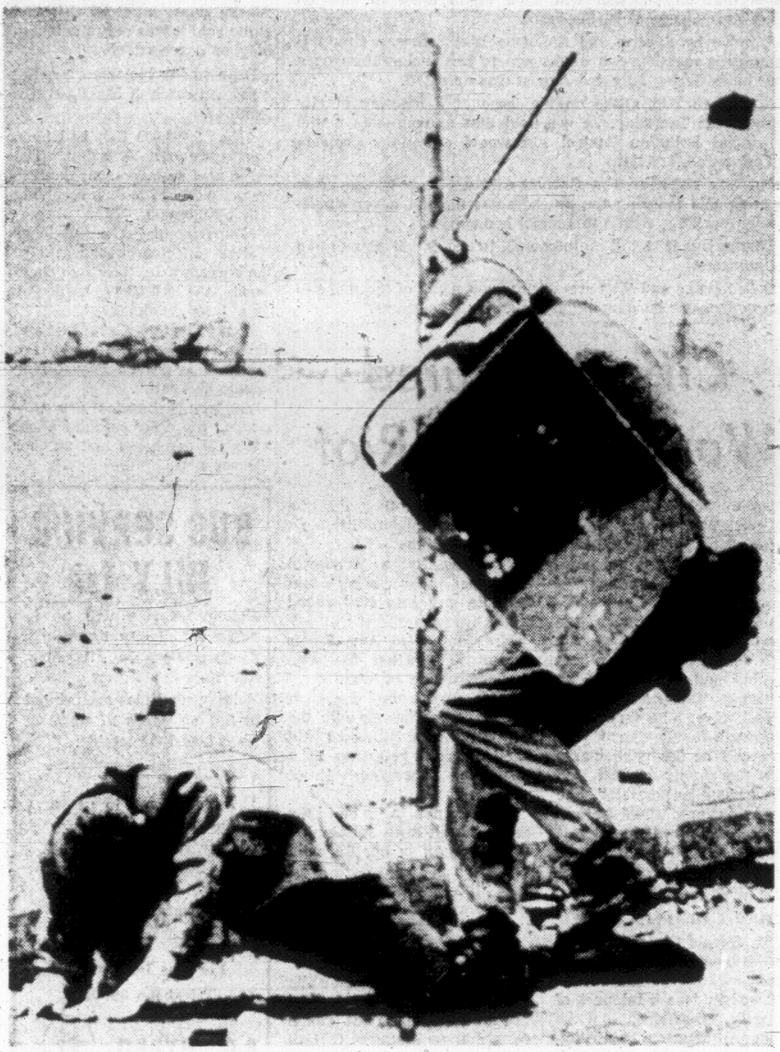
Return to Cambodia Vetoed by U.S. Senate



IRISH RIOTER is clubbed to ground by British soldier during unrest in Bogside district of Belfast, Northern Ireland. Irish Peace Depends On 'Law and Order'

BELFAST (CP) — British Home Secretary Reginald Maudlins flew into Northern Ireland today in an effort to cool the Protestant-Roman Catholic conflict which turned Belfast into a weekend battleground.

In a statement at Belfast airport, Maudling warned "there can neither be peace nor harmony nor prosperity unless there is first of all law and order."

His two-day visit follows close on the weekend explosion of violence which left six dead and 200 wounded in an orgy of gun battles and arson. It was the worst rioting Northern Ireland had suffered since last August, when 13 persons died.

Shortly after arriving, Maudling went into conference with Prime Minister James Chichester-Clark. Later he was to meet members of the cabinet, the Northern Ireland Parliament and civic and religious leaders.

At the airport, Maudling reiterated British government pledges that Northern Ireland would not be severed from the Crown without the consent of the people of Northern Ireland.

The pledge appeared to be an effort to placate Northern Ireland's Protestant majority which fears that Catholics are trying to overturn the Ulster administration and link up with the Catholic Republic of Ireland.

One urgent problem facing Maudling is the coming seasonal build-up of Protestant religious marches which threaten to provoke Catholic counter-demonstrations — possibly on an even fiercer scale than anything since the troubles of the 1920s.

About a dozen such parades have been cancelled, but the major Protestant parade is still scheduled for July 13.

Holiday Pay Rule May Stop Strikes

Relief from the current rotating strikes of postmen in the Victoria area as well as across Canada may have come until at least Friday. The posties must work today and Thursday in order to qualify for Dominion Day holiday pay.

The latest in the series of 24-hour rotating strikes ended Monday night when about 5,000 postal workers in British Columbia, Alberta, Ontario and Quebec returned to their jobs.

Stan Darlington, president of the Victoria branch of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, noted that postmen must report to work both today and Thursday to qualify for July 1 holiday pay.

NO GUARANTEE

But this is no guarantee that postmen will be on the job Thursday. Darlington said the local branch has not been notified whether to strike or not Thursday.

Ken Stofer, local post office public relations officer, said today postal workers working Monday cut the backlog of third and fourth class mail in about half.

The first-class mail, he said, was up to date and an air service delivery this morning, primarily from B.C. points, had Monday's date on most letters.

He added that receiving first class mail still looks normal and the Victoria area is in good shape unless there are hidden amounts of mail yet to come from other parts of the country.

The rotating strikes have been used by the Council of Postal Unions, representing 27,000 postal workers, as a means of putting pressure on the government during continuing contract negotiations in Ottawa.

LATEST WALKOUTS

The latest walkouts involved about 1,511 men in Ontario, 600 in Quebec, 900 in Alberta and about 2,000 in Greater Vancouver, Kimberley and Cranbrook.

Postal negotiations in Ottawa resumed today after a four-day break and for the first time in nearly two weeks the rotating strike appeared to be at a standstill.

$900,000 DRUG HAUL

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police seized narcotics valued at more than $900,000 on the illicit market Monday night in a raid on a South Vancouver home described as a drug capping factory specializing in heroin capsules laced with codeine.

A spokesman said they found 6½ pounds of pure heroin and a number of coded notes indicating the locations of caches of capped drugs. Police uncovered numerous stashes.

Cambodia: From Bad To Worse

By GEORGE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON (WP) Cambodia will have to abandon even more of its territory to the Communists in the coming weeks, according to government sources with access to the latest battlefield information.

The Lon Nol government already has withdrawn its troops from the four northeast provinces in the face of the North Vietnamese offensive.

The Cambodian army is too weak to spread itself out over a wide area and thus is making its stand farther south, including the protection of the capital of Phnom Penh.

A Cambodian spokesman in Phnom Penh, in announcing the army's withdrawal from the sparsely settled northeast section of Cambodia, said: "It was not good for us to keep holding those places."

By the same token, the northwest section of Cambodia is not considered as strategic to the Lon Nol government as the area farther south. Administration officals assert that some of this northwest territory is bound to go to the Communists by default.

LIMITED AID

South Vietnam and Thailand have commited themselves to only limited aid to Cambodia. President Nixon has shown no inclination to go beyond air support and military aid for Cambodia in the future.

Whether North Vietnam's current offensive against Cambodia was triggered by President Nixon's invasion of Cambodian sanctuaries, or would have happened anyway, is one of the arguments in the Indochina debate.

President Nixon himself justified that Cambodian operations as a way to reduce American casualties in South Vietnam. With the Cambodian sanctuaries destroyed, it would be safe to continue the withdrawal of American troops from Vietnam, he said.

Latest Pentagon figures showed no sharp drop in American casualties within South Vietnam while allied troops were wrecking the Cambodian sanctuaries.

This picture emerges in comparing American casualties within South Vietnam before and during the Cambodian operations:

- 577 Americans were killed in South Vietnam in the six weeks from May 10 through June 20 — a period when the Cambodian invasion was in full swing.
- 663 Americans were killed in South Vietnam in the six weeks from March 15 through April 25 — just

Mediation Plan Scored By Duncan IWA Chief

International Woodworkers of America accused the forest industry today of going to mediation in their contract dispute only when the industry found it convenient.

Weldon Jubenville, president of the 4,500-member IWA local at Duncan, claimed no mediation officers were to be found when the unions wanted one this spring.

"This gave the companies an opportunity to lock us out," Jubenville said.

The union says there has been no progress in talks with government mediator Clive McKee and Forest Industrial Relations (FIR) in Vancouver. The talks broke off at the weekend and are to resume Thursday.

Jubenville said results of strike votes, now being tabulated, show the union overwhelmingly in favor of a strike. If it comes, he said, it would made the recent towboat strike "look like a Sunday school picnic."

VOTING STRIKE

Votes tabulated so far on an operation-by-operation basis favor a strike by a 95-5 margin, he said.

Votes taken on the same basis in Vancouver have had the same result. All locals in the 30,000-member IWA coast region are conducting votes, with the Victoria region scheduled to start this week.

Jubenville attacked FIR's most recent contract proposal as "just another step toward making the forest industry in B.C. a slave labor camp." FIR had proposed the last contract be extended a year, with any wage increases granted at that time being made retroactive to next December. The contract expired June 15.

In other labor developments:

Pulp: A mediation officer has been appointed in a dispute between two Island locals of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada, and MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. and Crofton Pulp and Paper Ltd. The union served strike notice on both mills Saturday.

Plumbers: The Plumbers' Union filed a $1.2 million damage suit Monday against the Construction Labor Relations Association to recover alleged losses in wages and fringe benefits during B.C.'s 10-week construction lockout.

DEATH BLAST TIED TO FLQ

OTTAWA (CP) — The blast that shattered a national defence headquarters building here last week, killing one person, was the work of "Quebec terrorists," a police spokesman said today.

The announcement followed the release in Montreal of a communique by the terrorist Front de Liberation Quebecois. The FLQ claimed responsibility for the Ottawa defence blast and for another bombing at a postal substation in Montreal.

Laboratory tests just concluded confirm that the "mechanism and other workings" of the bomb are the same as those used in a series of Montreal blasts during the last five or six weeks and attributed to terrorists, Tom Flanagan of the city's detective force said in an interview.

The blast early last Wednesday, St. Jean Baptists Day, killed Jeanne D'Arc St. Germain, 50, and injured three other persons. It occurred at the wall outside a telecommunications room in the downtown headquarters.

Rebuff For Nixon

Times News Services

WASHINGTON—The U.S. Senate voted today to prohibit President Nixon from sending American troops back into Cambodia without congressional approval.

Seven weeks of sometimes bitter debate ended in a 58-37 triumph for supporters of an amendment that would cut off funds for retaining U.S. forces in Cambodia despite Nixon's argument that his hands should not be tied in any way in protecting American forces in Vietnam.

On the showdown vote, 16 Republicans and 42 Democrats supported the anti-war measure, while 26 Republicans and 11 Democrats backed the administration.

MERCENARIES

Earlier the senate voted narrowly to prohibit the U.S. from underwriting expenses and salaries of the armies in South Vietnam, Thailand or other ally fighting in support of the Cambodian government.

The decision was so closely contested that four roll call votes were required for the Senate to express its will. The outcome was a defeat for the administration.

The vote nailing down the curb on backing "mercenaries" in Cambodia was 50 to 45.

Aid Convoy Approaching Phnom Penh

PHNOM PENH (Reuters) — Diplomatic sources said today a 40-truck convoy carrying American military aid to Cambodia is moving along the main road from Saigon to Phnom Penh.

A Cambodian military spokesman said the trucks, driven by South Vietnamese soldiers, were expected in the capital today. Although he would not reveal the exact nature of the military aid in the trucks, informed sources said they were loaded with small arms, radios and ammunition.

Meanwhile, a Cambodian military high command spokesman today said deposed head of state Norodom Sihanouk will be tried in absentia Friday by a military tribunal. The charges against Prince Sihanouk, who set up a goverment-in-exile in Peking, were not stipulated but it was expected that they would most likely be treason and embezzlement of state funds.

MUST END MUTUAL SUSPICIONS

University Master Plan Urged

By IAN PORTER

OTTAWA (CP) — Equal representation of academic, government and community interests on provincial university co-ordinating commissions is proposed in a university-sponsored report as the best means to clear away mutual suspicions.

Based on a 15-month review of relations between universities and governments, the two-man report, published today, says secrecy and uncertainty about the role of the university in society characterizes the administration and financing of higher learning in most provinces.

It proposes that existing university commissions be reconstituted by law with power to co-ordinate university programs in each province.

"The chief purpose of the kind of agency we recommend would be to elaborate and supervise a master plan for universities," it says.

A second section proposes the federal government's role in financing universities be ended and compensating tax revenue shifted to provincial governments.

'Report Designed To Startle, Shock'

The report, published by the commission on relations between universities and governments, was financed by a Ford Foundation grant of $150,000. It is the work of Donald Rowat, professor of political science at Carleton University, Ottawa, and Rene Hurtubise, vice-rector at the Montreal campus of the University of Quebec.

The authors were commissioned by a committee representing the Canadian Association of University Teachers and the Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada as well as the Canadian and Quebec student unions, which have since disbanded. The commission was authorized to recommend "the appropriate instruments by which relations between universities and governments can be established that do justice to their responsibilities."

At a news conference, Professor Rowat said the report is "designed to startle and shock the establishment a little bit."

Both men said they felt the proposal to create university co-ordinating commissions is not itself a radical step but noted that the proposed composition of the commissions would involve a change in government thinking.

Professor Rowat said the main goal of the report was to provide university representation on the provincial bodies. Professor Hurtubise added that although some provisions have been made in Quebec and New

The two commissioners also exposed a difference of opinion about the form of consultation between the federal and provin-

Bell Starts Day For Miss Devlin

ARMAGH (AP) — At 7 a.m. a bell rings and the day starts for Bernadette Devlin, the youngest member of the British Parliament.

Thirty minutes later a key clanks in the lock of her cell door in the Armagh jail, accompanied by the traditional British prison cry of "Slops out!" Northern Ireland's Victorian-era prisons don't have bathooms.

Along with the 12 other prisoners in the women's wing of the old, grey stone jailhouse, Bernadette files along the corridor to the wash basins, watched by women trusties in prison blue.

Breakfast of porridge, tea and bread soon follows. At 8:30 a.m. the 23-year-old firebrand of the Bogside barricades settles down to four hours of sewing shirts for the prisoners in the men's jail across the courtyard.

Lunch is usually meat, potatoes and cabbage, pudding and tea. Afternoon brings another work session, perhaps ironing or scrubbing floors, and a 30-minute exercise period, walking around the prison yard.

In the evening there is an "association" period when good-conduct prisoners talk together or watch television. Lockup for the night is at 9:30 p.m.

Bernadette's jail sentence started Friday when Northern Ireland's Appeal Court refused to authorize an appeal to the House of Lords and ordered her to begin a six-month term for her part in last year's rioting between Protestants and Roman Catholics. Her imprisonment set off a weekend of violence in which six persons were killed and hundreds injured.

Miss Devlin's first visitor in jail was Ivan Cooper, an independent member of the Ulster Parliament and one of the few Protestants still allied with the Roman Catholic civil rights movement. They talked through a glass barrier under the eyes of guards, and Cooper said afterward Bernadette was in good spirits. "Her main anxiety is the trouble outside the prison —the rioting in Belfast and Londonderry."

"I'm starting consultations on a petition for her early release," Cooper said. "After all, she represents 90,000 people in the British Parliament.

"But the petition wasn't Miss Devlin's idea. Her main concern was to make clear that she deplored Protestant-Catholic confrontations and appeals to the working-class people of the province to keep together."

Petitions for early release are seldom granted by the British government. But with one-third time off for good behavior, Bernadette could be out by late October.

Bernadette Cautions Countrymen

ARMAGH, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Bernadette Devlin, Britain's youngest member of Parliament, talked with a parliamentary colleague in her prison cell Monday about the rioting in Northern Ireland.

Miss Devlin, whose six-month sentence for her part in Londonderry rioting last August touched off three days of weekend rioting in which six persons died, was visited by Ivan Cooper, independent member of the Northern Ireland parliament.

"The first thing she said to me was 'Have they all gone mad? This is not the way to settle things'," Cooper said.

He said he found the prison warden "very firm and Miss Devlin is not getting any special treatment."

Saanich Backs Senior Citizens Development

The first stage of a mixed residential development for senior citizens, handicapped and low-income persons gained approval from Saanich council at a public hearing Monday night.

Council was unanimous, but residents who spoke split — eight against and two in favor.

Architect John Di Castri said the first stage will include 19 townhouses and a 59-suite apartment of three storeys.

He said it would be an integrated development, providing not only living accommodation but also therapy in an activity centre, on 6½ acres between Darwin and Vernon near the municipal hall.

The project is planned by the Multiple Sclerosis Society of Victoria and Vancouver Island and the Cosmopolitan Club, aided by a large private contribution.

UNVEILED

He said the three-storey apartment will replace one of the two six-storey apartments announced when plans were unveiled last December.

The full project, when it was announced, was for a total of 142 units, 30 per cent for the handicapped, in two six-storey apartments, one three-storey apartment and 19 townhouses as well as an activity centre, a White Cross centre and a hostel for handicapped children.

Lionel Speller, 3628 Saanich Road, said there are better sites for such a project — he mentioned the Cedar Hill Park area.

There is noise from fire and police vehicles at the nearby sation on Vernon as well as numerous vehicles going to and from the municipal hall.

Other residents said the area will become congested with the development, particularly the roads, and drew attention to the poor state of Darwin with police cars "roaring through."

The two residents who spoke in favor, Mrs. M. C. Green, 871 Darwin, and Mrs. W. P. Aylward, 844 Darwin, said it would be a place for the non-profit promoters to go. Mrs. Green said "you should see the rats out the back" in the present undeveloped property.

Professor Rowat said the Science Council of Canada, which reports to the federal government, should be abolished and replaced with a joint council on research to be appointed by both levels of government.

Professor Hurtubise claimed such a body would duplicate the efforts of the provincial research committees, proposed in the report. He said federal and provincial priorities should be established through consultation among ministers of education.

In the report itself the commissioners maintain that free research is an essential part of the university's function but they reject the notion that universities should have complete autonomy. Ivory tower concepts, the report suggests, "are long overdue for a funeral."

The report says the traditional notion of a university as a "state within a state" has no basis in present fact. But universities must have "substantial institutional autonomy" to guarantee their role as active critics of society.

DEFENSIVE WEAPON

It is suggested they should maintain control over the number of admissions "as a defensive weapon against inadequate financial support."

Universities have faced increased pressures from governments to economize, it says. But both have shown that without the threat of sanctions they are not prepared to co-operate "in any but a trivial sense."

One metod proposed to eliminate secrecy involved in political decisions about higher education is to have the issues turned over for discussion to education committees of the provincial legislatures, it says.

The report rejects the concept of a single board of governors for all the universities in each province, as has been proposed by an inquiry in Ontario, on grounds that it would involve too great a degree of centralization and would meet as well the entrenched opposition of established interests.

AN ALTERNATIVE

The creation of co-ordinating commissions, limited in their administrative functions, is proposed as an alternative. Their role would be to preview the universities, intentions to undertake new programs and to divide provincial financing among the centres.

They would also review university expenditures to the end of each fiscal year and serve to advise governments on student aid policies.

The report says the government should appoint a majority of commissioners, but some of the appointments should be made after consultation with business, labor and professional groups. The commissions should have a maximum of 15 members.

An ideal representation would include one-third from the universities, one-third from the government and one-third on the basis of outside consultation, it says.

The report claims that Ottawa's intervention into university financing followed a 1966 shared-cost agreement has served to distort spending on education by the provinces. It should end this intervention, the report says.

THE WEATHER

The forecast is rain this afternoon, ending overnight. Wednesday should be cloudy with showers in the vicinity and sunny breaks in the afternoon.

The weather office at the Victoria International Airport predicts cooler temperatures for the next few days with a high tonight of 50 degrees and temperatures in the low 60's tomorrow.

Winds in most areas are light easterly 15 to 20 degrees in the Juan de Fuca Strait, shifting to westerly 15 to 25 this evening. Weather statistics are on Page 10.

offered the defeated proposal, which would have softened the Cooper-Church amendment by sanctioning American financing of the troops of U.S. allies fighting in support of Cambodia's endangered Lon Nol government.

The defeat in the senate came shortly after President Nixon, reporting to the nation on U.S. ground operations in Cambodia, had pledged "we shall renew our efforts" to end the war in all of Indochina.

Without elaborating, the president said he seeks "genuine negotiations both in Paris and for all of Indochina." The Paris talks involved only the Vietnam segment of the conflict and Nixon did not indicate what further steps he might take to seek an expanded settlement that would also embrace Cambodia and Laos.

The occasion for Nixon's pronouncement was the passing of the deadline for the exit of all American troops from Cambodia.

Calling the controversial venture a military sucess, Nixon declared that "we still face substantial problems, but the Cambidian operations will enable us to pursue our goals with greater confidence."

Looking ahead, he said in a 7,000-word statement:

"With American ground operations in Canbodia ended, we shall move forward with our plan to end the war in Vietnam and to secure the just peace on which all Americans are united."

NO SURPRISES

Nixon's lengthy justification of his Aprial 30 movement of what he said were 32,000 Americans into Cambodia contained no surprises. Instead, it was his most elaborate explanation to date of why he undertook the move, even though, in his words, "we anticiapted broad disagreement and dissent" on the home front.

Reporting that all U.S. ground forces and logistic and advisory personnel have been withdrawn, Nixon listed guidelines for "our future policy for Cambodia."

First of all, he said, "there will be no U.S. ground personnel in Cambodia except for the regular staff of our embassy in Phnom Penh." Also, there will be no American advisers with Cambodian units.

The president reported, too, that South Vietnamese forces remaining in Cambodia will conduct their operation without the assistance of U.S. advisers or American air or logistic support.

AIR STRIKES

In only one area did Nixon indicate continuing U.S. military involvement in Cambodia, saying:

"We will conduct — with the approval of the Cambodian government — air interdiction missions against the enemy efforts to move supplies and personnel through Cambodia toward South Vietnam and to re-establish base areas relevant to the war in Vietnam. We do this to protect our forces in South Vietnam."

Nixon gave no specifics on how the United States would renew peace efforts, but appealed to Hanoi "to join us at long last" in that effort.

"There is no military solution to this conflict. Sooner or later peace must come. It can come now, through a negotiated settlement that is fair to both sides and humiliates neither. Or it can come months or years from now, with both sides having paid the further price of protracted struggle.

THREAT ELIMINATED

Nixon contended that the Cambodian operation "eliminated an immediate threat to our forces and to the security of South Vietnam — and produced the prospect of fewer American casualties in the future."

He said that all that Hanoi had achieved by its "aggression" in Cambodia was to provoke the destruction of its sanctuaries and help to weld together the independent states of Southeast Asia in a collective defence effort which would receive American support.

New Bed Plan For St. Mary's Mired by Delays

A plan to add 75 new beds for chronically ill patients at St. Mary's Priory has now joined the welter of other regional hospital building projects mired by delays.

Jim Cumming, deputy chairman of the region's hospital board, said today the $300,000 the nuns who operate the Priory are asking for land and buildings is too high.

He said he hopes the Juan de Fuca Hospital Society, organized to eventually take over the operation, will be able to negotiate some better arrangement.

The Sisters of the Society of the Love of Jesus, part of the Order of St. Benedict, have operated the 95-bed extended care hospital near the Royal Colwood golf course for about 20 years.

ONLY FOUR LEFT

There are only four sisters still active in the operation, the rest having retired. Recently the sisters indicated they wanted to leave the hospital field at the Colwood site and the new hospital society was organized to take over.

Since then Health Minister Ralph Loffmark has advised the regional hospital board the provincial government will not share in the cost of purchasing the Priory operation.

Cumming said today that the eight-acre site would be adequate for the 75-bed addition but could not provide for much future expansion. The three buildings on the property are almost obsolete and these factors combine to make the asking price too high.

Besides, he noted, the regional hospital board is in business to plan new beds and buying an operating hospital does nothing to meet the bed shortage.

Former Policeman Dies at 79

Jarvis, born in Doddington, Kent, was a First World War veteran and brigade heavyweight boxing champion. He had been a resident of Victoria since 1910.

As a policeman, he served nine years in uniform, then transferred to the plainclothes branch and for many years was the president of the Victoria Police Mutual Benefit Association.

He was a member of Britannia Branch of the Royal Canadian Legion, the Fourandex, and the Silver Threads Society.

He is survived by his wife, Ellen; one daughter, Mrs. H. (Joan) Taylor, of Kamloops; a granddaughter and a great-granddaughter, and a sister in England.

Funeral services will be at 1:15 p.m. Thursday in the McCall Bros. funeral chapel with Rev. J. A. Roberts officiating.

before the Cambodian invasion was launched on April 30.

● This reduction in casualties of 86 men in South Vietnam compares with an additional 276 Americans killed in the Cambodian operations in the six weeks of May 10 through June 20.

The toll of American battle deaths to be announced Thursday will show a rise to a total of over 100 men compared to 80 for the week ending June 20.

On the brighter side, President Nixon can point to a continuation of American troop withdrawals from Vietnam during the Cambodian drive. The Pentagon reported 427,550 Americans in Vietnam on April 30 and 417,100 as of Monday — a reduction of 10,450 men.

CLIMB IN LOSSES

For the South Vietnamese, the outlook is for a continued climb in their battlefield losses. Admistration sources assert that some South Vietnamese military leaders have complained that the invasion of Cambodia failed to break up the enemy's first line units.

Therefore, goes this Saigon argument, the South Vietnamese are likely to be hit by these North Vietnamese and Vietcong troops as the American force thins out.

Defence Secretary Melvin R. Laird has said that the Cambodian offensive had the primary objective of smashing Communist supplies and headquarters facilities — not killing enemy troops.

Another ominous sign to government officials in Washington is the unusually high rate of infiltration of troops and supplies from North Vietnam southward during this monsoon season. That war traffic, which usually tapers off during heavy rains, is continuing.

Within the last few days, according to military sources, at least four groups of troops — with about 500 to the group — have been spotted moving southward through Laos.

What Hanoi has in mind for these troops is not known.

No New Cases Of Salmonella Turned Up

There have been no new cases of a salmonella infection which struck 60 reunion guests at a hotel dinner 17 days ago, Greater Victoria's senior medical health officer said today.

Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread said tests on victims are continuing and the crash inspection program of area public dining rooms and restaurants is under way.

Eight inspectors are faced with examining about 400 establishments and the health board staff is giving the project top priority.

The salmonella infection, which is spread through food and drink by a carrier, produces acute diarrhea, cramps and headaches. Personal hygiene is crucial to stopping its spread because the organism is produced in the bowels of the victim, sometimes for weeks after he is feeling all better.

Council Rekindles Incinerator Issue

Victoria Ald. Clyde Savage was visibly pleased today to learn that city council will once again have to rule on permitting backyard incinerators.

A move by Savage and Ald. Ove Witt before a Group B committee meeting two weeks ago to ban incinerators on a trial basis during July and August was defeated.

And when Witt spoke on the issue at a meeting of city council last Thursday, he was told that amendments to the provincial Pollution Control Act would cover the problem effective Jan. 1, 1971.

But city engineer Jim Garnett told a Group B commitee meeting this morning the amendments did not cover single-family dwellings within municipal boundaries.

This means it is still up to council to decide whether to ban incinerators.

Both Savage and Witt are strong proponents of the move to ban incinerator burning of garden and lawn cuttings.

City Reassured Women Won't Riot

The Victoria branch of the Voice of Women will hold a "festival of life" in Beacon Hill Park Aug. 8 to commemorate the bombing of Hiroshima.

Three delegates from the group appeared before the city's parks committee this morning and won unanimous support for the proposal.

Mrs. Kathleen Roth, spokesman for the group, said there will be 500 participants from "as many church and civic groups as possible", She also said events would include poetry readings, handicraft exhibits, folk dancing, films, ecology exhibits and childrens' paintings.

DUBIOUS OLAFSON

Ald. Harold Olafson at first was dubious about the proposal.

"Tourism is a vital part of our city," he said, and he wondered whether anti-Vietnam signs would antagonize visiting Americans.

But Mrs. Roth said the festival was pro-life, not against anything.

"I think its a wonderful idea but why bring that horrible day into it?" asked Ald. Clyde Savage.

Mrs. Roth said Aug. 8 was chosen to contrast life with the destruction of war.

"This won't be like that Vancouver gathering with the Prime Minister?" asked Ald Cecil Parrott, referring to a Woman's Liberation Front about abortion.

"We're not a rioting group," said Ruth Johnson, a slight woman in her 60s with white hair.

Fish Swamp Canneries

KING SALMON, Alaska (AP) —Bristol Bay canneries were swamped by red salmon catches over the weekend and the Alaska department of fish and game said it was only the beginning of a record run.

Department biologists predict a salmon catch of 32,000,000 this summer.

About 2,800,000 fish had been caught through Saturday. The catch was so large four canneries were forced to stop receiving fish temporarily.

Department Commissioner Wallace H. Noerenberg said at the current rate, the catch could reach the 8,000,000 mark by July 1 as predicted.

A number of Canadian and Japanese vessels already are expected at Bristol Bay to help handle the catch.

Thirteen canneries are processing the daily catch of about 2,000 gill net boats and another 890 set nets.

July 1 Comes on July 3 For Many in Ontario

By Canadian Press

The modern trend to make statutory holidays part of a weekend appears to be especially strong in Ontario.

The Dominion Day holiday Wednesday, which may be the last under that name, will be just another working day for many Ontario workers.

In other parts of Canada—particularly Manitoba, which is celebrating its centennial year—wholesale turnouts will be seen at golf courses, parks, beaches and highways.

But in Ontario about 60 per cent of provincial factories will be open, M. E. Howard, director of employment standards at the Ontario department of labor, said Monday.

During the last two weeks the department has granted thousands of requests for permission to hold the midweek July 1 holiday either on the Monday just gone or Friday. At General Motors in Oshawa, 25,000 plant workers will take Friday off.

A private member's bill to come before the Commons would change the name of the holiday to Confederation Day, but it would still be held July 1 even if that date comes in the middle of a week. The Commons justice committee approved the bill April 9.

A sombre note was sounded by the Canada Safety Council, which predicted Monday that more than 30 persons could die in traffic accidents during the 30-hour holiday period—from 6 p.m. Tuesday to midnight Wednesday local times.

Last year 43 persons were killed in accidents July 1 across the country—22 of them in traffic.

IS MEMORIAL DAY

In Newfounlland the July 1 holiday is called Memorial Day as residents remember the near destruction of the Newfoundland Regiment at Beaumont Hamel in northern France early in the First World War. Out of 800 men only 68 survived.

In the Atlantic provinces holiday trips to the beach, the park and the golf course will be the rule.

Ethnic groups will dress in national costumes and stage dances at Montreal's Man and His World. Here, as elsewhere in Canada, fireworks displays will be seen.

In other parts of the Prairies outdoor events, picnics and sports hold the limelight. At Red Deer, Alta., an international folk festival will be held.

Vancouevr features the Red Army singers and dancers. At Penticton an antique plane will end its cross-country flight to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the first crossing of Canada by air.

Manitoba July 1: Up, Up and Away

By DAVE STOCKAND

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba's Centennial really gets off the mark Wednesday with the celebration of Dominion Day.

Canada's Year 103 and Manitoba's 100th birthday are a magnetic combination that will draw Prime Minister Trudeau and two-thirds of his cabinet to the land of the old Red River settlement for history's fourth cabinet meeting outside of Ottawa.

Entirely symbolic, it will be the first cabinet meeting in Western Canada.

And its conclusion will signal the start of a day of centennial and Dominion Day whoop-de-doo in which balloons, kites, gliders, radio-operated model airplanes, and even pigeons will carry skyward a Manitoba centennial theme of "up, up and away."

Scores of communities will take part, and many of them will have a cabinet minister for the day to help share in the fun.

The plan is for the ministers to split up after the cabinet meeting in historic Lower Fort Garry, on the Red River north of Winnipeg, and travel individually to points as distant as the Hudson Bay port of Churchill.

TRUDEAU STAYS NEAR

The prime minister's itinerary will keep him within close range of Greater Winnipeg—a kite-launching and balloon send-off in East Kildonan, a street party and folk festival at the burned-out ruin of the St. Boniface Basilica, and a baseball tournament at the town of Steinbach.

The federal party will arrive from Ottawa this evening. After a banquet at Government House, will gravitate toward a festive program at Memorial Park, near the legislature building, where a giant fireworks display will signal the start of Canada's national day.

Wednesday morning, the trappings of history take over.

Mr. Trudeau and his party will take the train to Lower Fort Garry, a train with a difference: Drawn by a locomotive built in Glasgow in 1882 and maintained in puffing working order by the Vintage Locomotive Society.

BUILT FOR FLOOD

The fort 20 miles north of Winnipeg is a monumental reminder of the past, with loopholed great stone walls which servants of the Hudson's Bay Co. began putting up in 1831 after flooding severely damaged the Upper Fort, where downtown Winnipeg now stands, several years before.

Now the fort has been restored as a museum and a national monument.

The cabinet meeting in the dining room of the fort's "big house" will follow greetings by Lt.-Gov. Richard S. Bowles and a tour of the museum and the fort itself.

The brief and symbolic meeting completed—the boom of a cannon built in 1810 will signal that it is over—Mr. Trudeau and cabinet will proceed to a platform outside the fort wall.

There the prime minister will speak briefly and will read a special proclamation, with Premier Ed Schreyer responding.

The Lower Fort Garry program will be carried live and nationally on the CBC English and French networks, from 11 a.m. to noon EDT.

Following a voyage north along the Red River to the town of Selkirk aboard the Paddle Wheel Queen, the visiting cabinet ministers will split up.

Mr. Trudeau will fly back to Ottawa Wednesday evening.

Intermediate Steps

STARTING TOMORROW liquor regulations announced a week ago will come into effect, broadening to some extent the availability of alcoholic beverages by implementing several of the recommendations of the Morrow report. The convenience of tourists is cited as a major factor in easing the laws. This reason for changing the environment of residents of British Columbia is akin to the suggestion someone made a few years ago that the Christ Church Cathedral building be completed because tourists would like it.

The laws by which British Columbians live should be made primarily for the benefit and regulation of British Columbians. Apart from the observance of normal good neighborliness, tourists are mainly a means of raising revenue, but our drinking laws, like any others, should be in our own interests and only secondarily for those of visitors.

The whole question of liquor presents a dilemma for the Social Credit cabinet members as a rather unsavory business which the government is stuck with, to be liberalized enough to meet the demands of drinkers but not enough to rouse the antagonism of non-drinkers. When to this quandary is added the heavy dependence of the government on liquor revenues — the 1969 report of the Liquor Control Board showed a net profit of $55 millions on sales of $185 millions — a certain amount of confusion in the government's thinking is to be expected.

As Attorney-General Peterson explains, with some reasonableness: "We make the product available to those who want it, but the excessive use of alcohol has so many harmful effects that this government doesn't intend to promote it in any way."

The Morrow commission recommendations went much farther than the changes which will become operative tomorrow, but further liberalization may follow if experience indicates that the current reforms will not be abused. We are still a relatively frontier society in regard to drinking, as policemen in front of liquor stores and fights in front of beer parlors attest. But the addition of amenities such as music to the drab business of guzzling beer as quickly as possible might help to capture the citizens'-club atmosphere of the traditional English pub or the entertainment pleasures of the German beer garden.

The latest moves to Sunday drinking and longer hours, with the "housekeeping" provisions for serving single glasses, employment of women, and so on, are steps in the right direction if the drinkers will permit them to be so. But counselling and education on the increasing social problem of alcoholism still remain the high-priority responsibilty of government. The big profits are subject to a lien which cannot be denied.

Fear and Suspicion in Ulster

CENTURIES AFTER OTHER European nations have buried their religious hatchets, Northern Ireland's Catholics and Protestants are still killing each other in the streets. In the latest debacle — sparked by Ulster M.P. Bernadette Devlin's six-month prison sentence on charges of helping to incite a riot last year — six persons died and hundreds were injured.

But Miss Devlin's conviction was only incidental to the long-standing battle between Ulster's religious factions. Outnumbering Catholics two to one, the Protestants insist on keeping the Catholic minority as second-class citizens. Protestant reasoning, and it is not without some validity, is that if the Catholics achieve political power in Ulster, they will erase the 1921 partition and enter into union with the Republic of Ireland.

In an attempt to reach a compromise, Major James Chichester Clark last May replaced his cousin, Captain Terrence M. O'Neill, as premier. Major Chichester-Clark promised a number of reforms including landlord-tenant legislation. Universal suffrage, also urged, has been postponed to 1971. Ulster Catholics claim universal suffrage will be meaningless unless electoral boundaries are redrawn so the Catholic vote will have more weight.

While Major Chichester-Clark is a moderate, in Ulster terms, his government is staunchly Protestant in form. Some members want to re-arm the police, who were disarmed by the British last year, and restore the new reserve as a special constabulary. The old reserve, known as B-specials, was de-mobilized after last year's riots because of its Protestant sympathies.

Ulster's Catholics are convinced that the governments of Westminster and Stormont wear the same old faces with new veils. With suspicion on all sides, and a government that appears reluctant to grant the Catholics real equality, it is difficult to foresee even temporary peace in Ulster without the use of British troops.

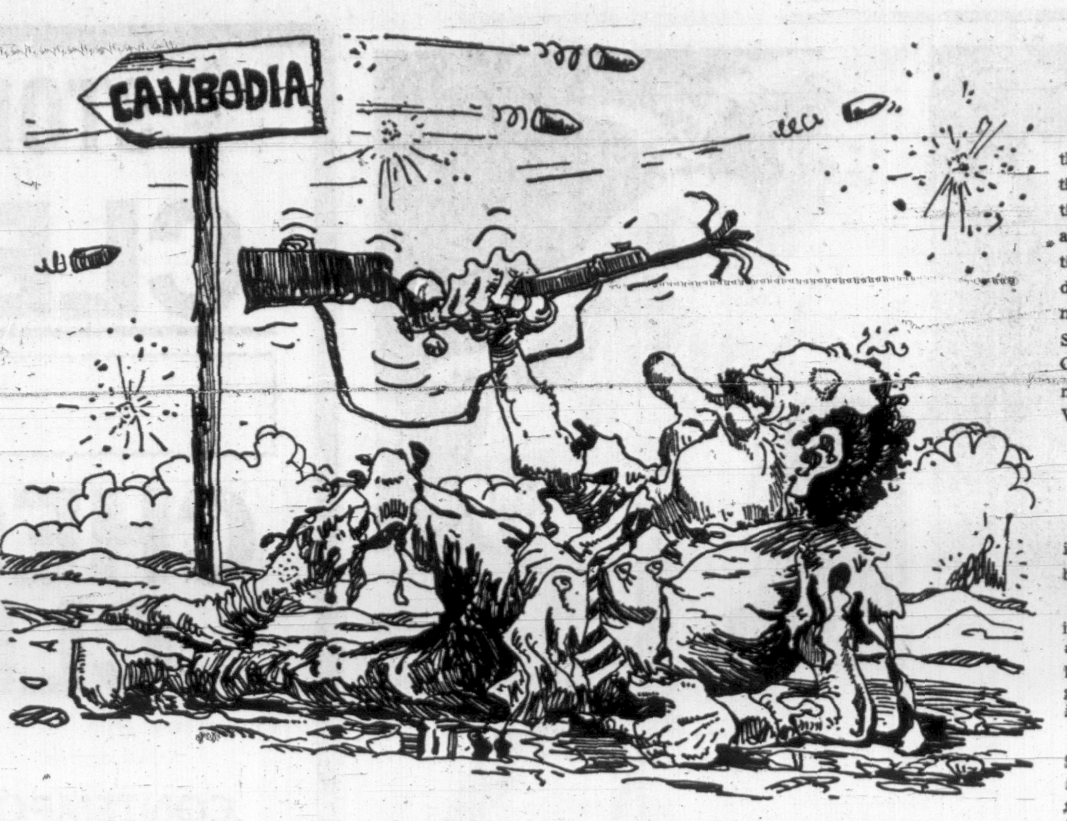
When Will We Learn?

"DEATH OF A DELTA" IS THE hyperbolic title which 23 Alberta scientists use to describe the continuing process of drought in the Peace-Athabasca area. According to the scientists the 1,000-square-mile delta is being turned into a mud-flat desert by the Bennett dam 725 miles upstream.

Few persons would deny that the dam is at least a contributing factor to the drying-up process but in the past two years sparse rainfall has lowered Lake Athabasca by five feet. Before all the blame can be laid at the base of the Bennett dam penstocks, drought conditions in previous years should be known. Three years ago the dam was closed off and three summers later there is a severe drought. It is too easy to leap to conclusions.

But when the dam site was chosen 11 years ago little attention apparently was paid to ecological matters. And in 1966, one year before the dam was opened, the director of Alberta's fish and wildlife service predicted the drought and suggested blocking a tributary river to maintain the level of Lake Athabasca. As in many such cases, nothing was done.

If the Bennett dam is proved to be the major cause of the drought then steps should be taken to ensure the release of more water. The delta is one of the major flyways of migratory fowl and the habitat of North America's last herd of wood bison. More than 200 trappers and fishermen make their living in the area. Whether the eventual cause is the dam or nature's cycles is not the point. The damage, for this season at least, has been done. If the voices of caution had been listened to in the first place, and wider ecological studies done on the dam's effect, residents of the delta area and the people of British Columbia and Alberta would not be in their current quandary.



"... and let that be a lesson to you ..."

Bitterest Pill

The bitterest pill to swallow is that of the postmen who, because they unionized their members, have got the crazy idea that they now are in the driver's seat, and naturally assume they know where they are heading. To me, they must be dumb if they think "more, more, give me more" is the answer to our trouble. So let the people with leaders like Mayor Courtney Haddock show that there is a much better way. — Harry Wyer, 234 Vancouver.

Mobile Homes

Recently you had a couple of articles in the "Times" regarding Mobile Homes, by Maureen Duffus and Judi Freeman.

It is high time for the press to look into this matter. Here we have what appears to be the ideal answer to the problem of low cost housing, but the government at all levels can't make up its blooming mind.

Keep at it! Mobile homes have improved tremendously and they will improve further in the future. I am sure they are here to stay. — B. F. Schulz, 139 Estelline.

A Bungling Report on the Mafia Probe

THE attorney-general of Ontario, Arthur Wishart, is 67 and looks at least 10 years younger. But he was ashen faced and looking very much his age after the Legislature's estimates committee finally talked itself out on what has become known as the Duke affair. And small wonder. Mr. Wishart had begun the committee's hearings with what he called a complete and factual report of a "very thorough" investigation into allegations by Dr. Morton Shulman (NDP, High Park) that senior officers of the Ontario Provincial Police had consorted with George Clinton Duke, a wealthy Oakville businessman, who in turn had consorted with known members of the Mafia — a report which concluded that while "indiscretions" had occured, nothing sinister had transpired.

Greer

But after three days of cross-examination, all of it of course by NDP and Liberal members of the committee, Mr. Wishart found himself entangled in the most incredible web of contradictions, errors and omissions, lamely protesting his exhaustive report had had to be assembled in great haste and frantically promising further investigation to resolve the "honest doubts" which so obviously remained. A lesser man would have collapsed; a bigger man would have resigned.

Shulman Charge

Dr. Shulman charged at one point that Mr. Duke, a man with a lengthy and very serious criminal record of many years ago, associated with Mafia personalities, specifically: that Johnny "The Enforcer" Papalia of Hamilton and his bodyguard, Donald "Red" Le Barre, had visited the Duke home, and that Duke and Papalia shared an apartment in a Hamilton high-rise owned by Danny Gasbarrini, a Burlington construction contractor whom Dr. Shulman described as a Mafia kingpin in Canada.

Mr. Wishart admitted that Papalia, Gasbarrini and Le Barre are under constant surveillance by police intelligence units. But information from these sources, he said, "indicates no record of significant contact" between them and Mr. Duke. He said Duke denied any association, saying he knew Papalia and Gasbarrini only as a result of meeting them in the course of running his lawn equippment business; he had once spoken to Le Barre at the Leander Boat Club in Hamilton.

As for the Hamilton apartment, it was true Papalia lived under an alias in No. 607, 255 Bold St., a building owned by Gasbarrini. The police have informants in the building, Mr. Wishart revealed, and there is no evidence Duke ever visited No. 607. What Duke admitted to was visiting No. 1405 on occasion for purposes of liaison with a paramour; he denied knowing Gasbarrini owned the building.

Police in Dark

Dr. Shulman, it appeared, had struck out again. But only temporarily. It developed that the police intelligence reports really had nothing to say about contracts between Duke and Papalia and company; all that Mr. Wishart reported was what Duke admitted to. In short, persons under constant police surveillance were getting about without the police knowing of it. In short, the investigators did not seem too familiar with the results of their own investigation.

Most serious of all, Dr. Shulman demanded to know if the investigators had not interviewd Mrs. Duke and Police Chief Leonard Lawrence of Hamilton, and was it not true Mrs. Duke had told Chief Lawrence she feared for her life because of certain incidents that had occurred during a visit by Papalia to the Duke home. This produced great consternation amongst Mr. Wishart, Commissioner Silk and their officials, as a result of which one can find in the transcript statements that Chief Lawrence had reported last December without disclosing his source, that there might be a meeting between Duke and Papalia; that no meeting had taken place; that there was an association between the two men; that there might be an association; that the OPP took it very seriously, and that it was all a rumor.

Mrs. Duke was never interviewed by the OPP investigators; she was approached twice by other police officers and gave two "assurances," that Gasbarrini, Papalia and Le Barre had never visited the Duke home and, on the second approach, that two of the three had. Therefore, the OPP concluded, there was no point to getting a statement from her.

Similarly, Messrs. Gasbarrini, Papalia and Le Barre were never questioned. What Le Barre, for example, was doing buying lawnmowers remains an intriguing speculation. The superintendent of the Hamilton apartment building was not approached, although Mr. Wishart twice said he was and three times said he wasn't. The neighbors to Apartment 607 were not questioned.

The evidence turned up concerning Dr. Shulman's other central charge, that senior OPP officers had socialized with Mr. Duke, was not much better. Statements were taken in which officers vehemently denied ever seeing or meeting Papalia at a Duke function, followed in the next breath by the admission that they did not know what Papalia looked like. How Duke was able to get and renew a permit to carry a gun, when his criminal record was right in his file, was never explained. Why nine OPP officers of superintendent rank or better found it necessary to attend 18 Duke "lawneramas" and barbecues as part of their official duties remains a riddle. Why Duke so cultivated the friendship of the OPP has gone unanswered; he wasn't even asked.

What was established, however, is that Staff Superintendent A. M. Rodger and Supt. Albert Wilson continued to socialize with Duke after Commissioner Silk ordered them to stop, and for this they have been suspended and charged under the Police Act. The charges will probably be held in camera and the why and wherefore of what they did will never be known—unless and until, of course, Dr. Shulman is able to refuel.

A New Humane Image for Hanoi

THE world knows a good deal more this week than it did last about the Communists in Vietnam and Cambodia. This new insight is the result of accounts which three first-class journalists have written about the 40 days they spent in captivity in Cambodia. Some of the new data is miscellaneous military-related information which the correspondents could not help observing behind the enemy lines: the effectiveness of helicopter gunships, for example, and the fact that North Vietnamese "advisers" are serving with the Cambodian rebels.

Frye

But perhaps the most striking fact which emerges is in the realm of psychological warfare. The Communists clearly wish to be regarded as humane in their treatment of prisoners.

"Once we take a person prisoner we never kill him," the soldier in charge of the group said at one point. "War is not to kill people but to win a cause."

The extent to which this is propaganda is irrelevant. The important fact is that the Communists wish to project this image. And if the world cares about what happens to people still in their hands, it will be slow about scorning this as a fraud.

Some time during the first week of captivity, beginning May 7, the three correspondents — Elizabeth Pond of The Christian Science Monitor, Richard Dudman of The St. Louis Post-Dispatch, and Michael Morrow of Dispatch News Service — clearly began to benefit from orders from above that they be treated as "good people."

The first few days had been rough, and they had survived as a result of resourcefulness, courage and extraordinary restraint. One will not soon forget, for example, the vivid picture of Miss Pond, subjected to attempted rape, saying to the soldier quietly in his language (French), "You are my brother and I am your sister" — and seeing him desist.

This kind of response to provocation derives directly from the Sermon on the Mount: ". . . bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you, and persecute you; that ye may be the children of your Father which is in heaven . . ."

It got results, proving anew that Christianity is by no means irrelevant to the 20th Century. But while refusal to look upon the captors as adversaries did much to soften hostility and carry the three through their initial, terrifying hours, and while it may also have helped influence the command decision, it was certainly that decision which most significantly shaped their subsequent treatment and led to their release.

The fact — it is almost certainly a fact — that there was such a decision indicates, among other things, that an investment was consciously made in cultivating world opinion, notably American opinion. The accounts that the three have written have predictably reached millions, doing nothing to undercut anti-war sentiment, and probably strengthening it.

If the Communist command determines that its investment in a humane image has paid dividends, it would logically follow that further such investments might be made in the cases of other prisoners, military as well as civilian.

The three correspondents were, of course, aware of this, though it was only a subordinate consideration, I am told, in their minds. They wrote frankly what happened; and the fact that, with certain exceptions, it portrayed the Communists as three-dimensional human beings rather than ideological automatons was the result of a deliberate Communist effort to behave that way.

The expectations of the three captives helped to bring this about, and the world's expectations can be influential for the future.

A man — even a man dedicated to Communist revolution — will frequently behave the way his opposite number expects him to behave. At least, it is more likely that he will be brutal if others make clear they regard him as a brute.

Grounds for Gratitude

If the price of obtaining civilized treatment for captives — including an opportunity for them to communicate with their families, immunity from assault, proper food and care, release for noncombatants — is to classify the enemy as civilized and humane, then the world should be grateful they wish to make the transaction.

This will require overlooking past misdeeds, but that, too, should not be an excessive price to pay. A natural reaction — that "we will regard them as humane — when they consistently act humanely" — may actually be reversing the only practical order in which results can be obtained.

Previously, the North Vietnamese have seemed to wish to trade humane treatment of prisoners for a peace settlement on their terms. The prisoners have in effect been bargaining pawns at Paris.

If this is now changing, or if there is an opportunity for it to change there is reason for satisfaction. The final weeks of the three journalists' captivity, when the captors must have known they were establishing, as it were, a record for later publication, is encouraging.

By the time the three were released, the correspondents felt friendly enough to offer their guards gifts. The guards had protected them from war perils, and had even played chess with them on an improvised board.

The three had not been brainwashed or converted to Communism; they had simply bridged the gap which war and hatred had opened. And the guards, for their reasons, had been willing to cooperate in the bridge-building.

It will be a rare world when this kind of brotherhood can heal antagonisms on a wider scale. The fact that it can work in microcosm shows there is nothing wrong with the principle.

"IS THERE ANYTHING I CAN BRING US FROM YOUR REFRIGERATOR MR. WILSON?"

Looking Back

From the Times of June 30, 1910

We would not have Dominion Day other than it is; the most joyous holiday in all the year. It is not a day to be dreaded by nervous persons who hate the din raised by powder explosions no less than they deprecate inflammatory addresses delivered in strident tones by patriotic orators. Let young Canada be. Let the day be associated with relief from the grinding toil which is the common lot even in this comparatively happy land of promise and prosperity.

ACCENT OF DISGUST IN QUEBEC SEPARATISM NOW

'Independence Only a Matter of Time'

RENE LEVESQUE

He sat there with all the easy confidence of the prize pupil come back to spin a dream for his old teachers. And they listened. Some, in respect, for one so young—23—who could dream a dream, and fight for a dream, of freedom for his people.

They knew too many his age who were chasing the dollar or dreaming of finding a dream in a smouldering grass fire. Others grumbled at his arrogance. Still others bluntly questioned the logic of his case and predicted direly that he was in for a rude awakening.

Almost their only point of agreement was that he didn't dress in rag tags and beads. His tailored, light brown summer-weight suit would have graced any trust company office.

For although his listeners were teachers — or most of them — he wasn't the prize pupil come home. He was Claude Charron, a teacher himself, of political science at a junior college, and the youngest member ever of the Quebec National Assembly.

And the dream he was spinning for his listeners at Glendon College's weekend conference on The Other Solitude was one of a separate Quebec.

It was an unsettling dream to hear about. A half-dozen preceding speakers had left them with the impression that an independent Quebec was far from being an imminent phenomenon. Charron's attitude was one of wry amusement at this innocence.

By MAX McMAHON
Toronto Star

Independence was only a matter of time. A very short time. Doubters would soon hear Rene Levesque, Charron's leader in the Parti Quebecois, spell out in bitter terms how independence would be a French-only thing, in no way affected by the understanding or lack of understanding of English-speaking Canadians.

If the easy-liberalism of some of the teachers had led them to give a sympathetic hearing to Charron's case, Mr. Levesque's bitter-at-their-world tones caught them up shortly. It was all so different from the end-of-session, summer-soft intellectual picnic they had been enjoying.

They had been entertained, and informed, on opening night Friday by Robert Cliche, the former Quebec leader of the new Democratic Party. He turned on all the Gallic charm and wit for which Quebec was famous before it began to take itself so seriously.

His beloved region, the Beauce-Chauliere, southeast of Quebec city, should never have been opened up to colonization in the first place. Farming and forestry could never support it. The Maine border was in the backyard, and people had been spilling over it ever since the region opened a century and a half ago.

"We went to replace the Chinese in the textile mills." And, with a broad grin, to loud appreciative laughter—"And we won."

"The constitution? Take that business of the squabble between Quebec and Ottawa over jurisdiction in manpower. We have a saying. 'It doesn't matter if it's a dog or a bitch that bites you'."

Saturday morning was heavier, but still reassuring. Roland Morin, public relations director for the United Auto Workers and leader of the provincial NDP, was first up.

He asked whether the 24 per cent separatist vote in the recent Quebec election reflected nationalism or the reaction of a people whose economic situation ranged from destitution to the threshold of poverty. It was an apt description of conditions in six ridings the Parti Quebecois captured in Montreal and the one they took in the Saguenay.

He suggested that voters had chosen the Parti Quebecois as the only party that ran enough candidates to be a logical alternative to either the Liberals or the Union Nationale; the only party that had some elements of reform in its program; and they backed it in areas where nationalism was relatively strong and the labor movement relatively weak.

Emile Boudreau of the United Steel Workers painted a pinker nationalist picture. "Look at organizing and raiding campaigns in recent years," he said. "There hasn't been one where the unions haven't relied on the nationalist argument."

▣

But then he tempered even this. "I'm not talking separatism. There are all shades of nationalism."

As to the election: They didn't vote Parti Quebecois because it was a leftist party. They voted for it because it was a nationalist party. At least 50 per cent of the workers voted Parti Quebecois."

Evelyn Dumas, labor authority for the Montreal Star, and a shrewd negotiator of newspaper contracts when she was a member of the Confederation of National Trade Unions, foreshadowed some of Charron's predestination.

"Organizers used to shy away from nationalism because it had always been a reactionary thing. This has changed. Today, a measure of autonomy for Quebec unions is taken for granted. A few years ago, anyone who argued for autonomy was accused of being a separatist. Today it is taken for granted that there must be different services and different structures because Quebec is different."

Claude Charron, a professor at Glendon and a former student leader at Universite de Montreal, was a forerunner, too. He showed how students a decade ago had set up parallel organizations to demand their rights from university administrations and them dissolved them when they found they were being "involved" in the university establishment.

They now wanted changes in society, and confrontation through small groups was the way to achieve this. Big groups could be formed for special occasions.

Charron had been one of this latest generation, and when he became a teacher of political science at a junior college, he joined his students when they "occupied" their institution to demand wide-ranging changes in administration and curriculum.

Hunching forward toward the microphone on the table before him: "It's not easy. Some are turning to violence. That's easy. What they have lost, though, is the possibility of speaking. The students are a social class in Quebec now. Different from the bourgeois. Different from the workers, even workers of their own age.

"We are the generation in gestation, the best educated, who have known no economic crisis and no war. We can take the control we need to be normal . . . We don't want just to take power. We want to change it . . .

"I have a dream. I had a Canadian dream until I found I wasn't discovering myself. If the Quebecois dream is over, I'll find another. I'll not look to the past." Then he left to see Hair.

Rene Levesque was dropping the past, too—the past in which he had spent so much time trying to tell English Canadians what he and his followers wanted.

That had all ended during the election, he said, when the big business-Liberal axis had perverted federal statistics to show how much Quebec gained from Confederation; when TV cameras were called in to film Brinks' trucks "fleeing" with securities; and when English Montreal newspapers defamed Canadians and tried to sow panic among the people.

"From 1966 on, when they broke Daniel Johnson's Union Nationale government, there's been a concerted effort by the business community to paint Quebec as black as possible; to keep investment out; to keep the French in panic as much as possible . . .

"It's degrading and debasing. And collectivly you're responsible. They're your business leaders . . ."

Bombs, if they don't bring injury or death, are "no worse than intellectual terrorism . . . There's more dishonest violence, more debased poison in the English establishment than in the kids using bombs in Quebec . . .

"When separatism comes, it will have to be French. We'll have to stop wasting energy on the English-speaking component of Quebec.

"Our basic support is in the working class. The so-called new elites and the students are massively in that end of the ballpark. When you have those groups, the future is there . . .

"We went into the election with 40,000 dues-paying members. We came out with 80,000 and it now is 90,000 . . .

"Quebec isn't about to become a nice housebroken province again . . . Separatists aren't about to become a nice little nuisance in federalism, being useful to help the rest of Canada to find its identity.

"We are separatists and we are going to separate."

By T. D. ALLMAN

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia — With the American pull-out scheduled to be completed this week, and the government in firm control of little territory outside the capital city, "the Cambodian leaders and people finally," as one French resident here put it recently, "are beginning to realize the magnitude of the catastrophe."

The buoyant naive optimism which immediately followed the ouster of Prince Sihanouk has given way to concern and budding pessimism. Only by conceding exceptional powers to a parliamentary committee did the government of General Lon Nol last week accommodate major discontent in the national assembly — the same body that voted Prince Sihanouk out.

'Army Useless'

Says one Cambodian businessman, "the students are unhappy, the army is useless, the government is ineffective, our friends are indifferent and the Viet Cong are everywhere."

The Cambodians themselves invariably use the same French word, "inquietude," to describe their present emotional state. They are alarmed, but not yet panic-struck — although many fear that emotion will take hold after today.

There still lingers here the residue of the giddy days when the nation was temporarily united in the novelty of Sihanouk's absence, hopes of economic progress and the hatred of the Vietnamese. Now, with the country's economy destroyed and the military situation not reassuring, the doubts are everywhere.

A rickshaw pedlar complains about rising prices, the fact that his village no longer exists, and asks, "is it true the Americans are going to leave us too?"

A rich businessman has sent his wife and children to France, "for the summer" though the hot season has ended. "There's no trade now," he says.

The disappointed hopes and the growing fears eventually work their way up to high places. Last week, in a crisis the Cambodians managed largely to keep secret, the National Assembly balked at government proposals to rule by decree, lambasted the government for acting too slowly and not winning enough foreign aid, and came close to demanding the resignation of several cabinet ministers.

Paper Over Crisis

Cambodian sources credited the figure head chief of state, Cheng Heng, for papering over the crisis before it became public. Under an agreement worked out last week, the assembly named an executive committee to oversee the government.

Few observers here expect the Lon Nol government to fall by coup detat or vote of parliament in the immediate future. But the friction in the assembly, where the dissidents openly called for a total military alliance with South Vietnam and America and for a complete abandonment of neutralist objectives, is perhaps a foretaste of the broader fissures that may develop if things get even worse — as many diplomats here expect.

A military attache, for example, says the Cambodian army has deteriorated, not improved, in the last three months. "They are not becoming expert at war, they are just becoming more and more demoralized."

Adds another military observer, gloomily, "the army has gone from 35,000 men to more than 100,000 men in three months. The chief result is that 55 battalions of unarmed men must now be fed at government expense."

The official line is still one of optimism. "We will win in the end," says commandant Lon Non, brother of the prime minister. "Every day our troops are getting better. We drove the Viet Cong out of Kampong Speu and out of Kampong Thom," he adds, failing to mention that South Vietnamese troops did most of the fighting and that the towns were largely destroyed, further alienating the provincial population.

'We Need Guns'

A more reflective assessment of Cambodia's plight comes from one of the architects of Prince Sihanouk's downfall. Sixty-nine years old, Sim Var was one of the founders of the Cambodian independence movement and virtually the only Cambodian leader to criticize Prince Sihanouk in public prior to March 18.

"We cannot fight alone," he says. "We don't need foreign troops but we need guns, equipment, training. The Thais promised troops, but then send us only symbolic gifts. The Americans are withdrawing. The South Vietnamese will leave some troops, but they will not be sufficient."

"Events have passed Cambodia's ability to influence them," he continues. "We are now in the hands of the great powers. The war will end when it pleases the Americans, the Russians and the Chinese.

"The source of Cambodia's tragedy is that the war has lasted too long in Vietnam. The world has been rendered insensible to suffering by the atrocities there.

"For this reason, the world is indifferent to our pleas, and even the neutralists do not help us. The Americans are tired of the war. They no longer care."

Little Time Left for Music

By PETER SWANN
(Director, Royal Ontario Museum)

Do you suffer from insomnia? If so I have a new game to help you. I usually wake early and spend an hour or so wondering whether to try to sleep or get up and work.

The radio keeps me company. So I have started to count ads. Advertisements are so much a part of our lives that we tend to take them for granted.

Counting sheep was once the cure but sheep are not such a part of our urban existence that they are boring whereas ads are a large part of our lives and are boring. Spot ads on radio are an instance.

Listening to one of my favorite private radio stations from 6:11 to 7:11 a.m. some time ago I decided to count and time the ads. In that one-hour period there were 15 ads for a total of 12 minutes, i.e., one minute in every five or 20 per cent of the broadcast time was spent in advertising.

I assume there are regulations governing such proportions and people with pencil and paper checking them. But it struck one as a fairly heavy proportion.

Most were 60-second productions—some slightly longer, a few were only 30-second spots. Allowing for news and gossip there seemed to be remarkably little time left for music.

Perhaps this does not matter so much when one has fine artists like Ethel Merman belting out the ads—Canadian content or not. Most records are not played in full, which helps create the illusion that you are getting lots of music.

★ ★ ★

Significantly enough, one of the few discs was Johnny Cash singing, amidst all the not-so-hidden persuasion, and the Voice of Modern Youth Cries What Is Truth? That particular youth would surely have been hard put to it to find out!

We were being tempted to buy everything from cars to banking services—ending with a convenient blanket offer from a finance corporation to help us buy anything and everything. One consolation of this particular station was that many people held prisoners in their automobiles as they drive into town, could listen to the pollution count to which they were contributing so handsomely.

It seemed only fair to time the subsidized CBC over the same period. It had eight and a half minutes of advertising, 10 minutes of information on labor problems and farm news—and a mammoth public service advertisement of more than six minutes for the Salvation Army.

As opposed to the six minutes public service on CBC there was on the private station a 15-second public service announcement.

So as the CRTC meets in Ottawa and the broadcasting giants clash literally over our ears, perhaps we can all have a good think about what we would like to hear. Perhaps the air waves are indeed public property and not to be exploited for X million dollars per year profit by anybody!

Perhaps they are up for grabs. Perhaps the private companies perform a public service—even if it's only 15 seconds during an hour of 3,600 seconds. Perhaps they do care more about their responsibilities than their profits. Perhaps the CBC has too many ads and is neither fish, fowl nor good red herring.

Perhaps we should not be thinking so much about "Canadian content" as "content" period. I would like to hear what the man in the street thinks. He hasn't made himself heard very much over the clamor.

'LOT LESS' POLLUTION HERE

Author Seeks Spa-in-Sky and Finds Cowichan

By DONNA CLEMENTS

DUNCAN — After three trips around the world, searching for a Shangri-La, Canadian author John H. Tobe has settled in the Cowichan Valley.

Tobe, 63, his wife, her sister and 83-year-old mother, arrived from St. Catharines, Ont., a week ago to take up residence at their newly-purchased 127 acres on Rice Road near Crofton.

The author, publisher and nurseryman said he would like the farm to be self-sustaining. He has already planted a big garden because "we want to eat what I grow. We live off our garden."

Tobe said pollution drove him out of Ontario, after living there all of his life.

"I have always loved Ontario and it has been very good to me," he stressed, "but I don't love pollution.

"Hamilton is the most vile, vicious city in North America for pollution."

Tobe said he is not willing to die for the problem.

"This province has an ideal climate," he said. "I know there is pollution here too but a lot less than where I come from."

Tobe's main interest is "health."

"I became firmly entrenched in the subject about 15 years ago," he explained.

He has written 21 books which have sold over 250,000 copies.

"The biggest market is in the United States."

The horticulturist had been operating his present nursery in St. Catharines and publishing a magazine to help sell his product for many years before he wrote and published his first book, Growing Flowers, in 1956.

●

"I gathered all of the information I had published in the magazine over the years and put it in the book," he explained. "I like to write and when I finished the book I didn't have an avenue so I opened it by publishing the book myself."

Tobe said the book sold so well that two years later he wrote and published Romance in the Garden.

His third book Hunza, was written after a trip to the country in the Himalayas.

"I had read that the people from Hunza were the healthiest people in the world and I wanted to see," he said. "In my opinion they are the healthiest people. I think it is partially because they do not have too great a connection with the outside world and get too little meat."

This book was published in the United States and has sold over 30,000.

TOBE
. . . health bug

Tobe said the success of one book, No Cook Book, surprised him. "It is a book filled with recipes for meals 352 days of the year and not one thing is cooked.

"The basis is no food was ever nutritionally enhanced or improved by cooking. Therefore anyone who eats raw foods will be healthy."

His book Guideposts to Health and Vigorous Long Life sold well but Tobe said his most successful book has been Proven Herbal Remedies which has sold well over 72,000 copies and will soon undergo another edition.

His latest book which has just been published is "I found Shangri-la."

"I visited all kinds of different places when I travelled around the world in 1959-61 and 63 studying the different healths, peace and comforts of the people," he said. "In my book I explain that I think I found the place which is the closest a human being will ever come to paradise."

Tobe said he had difficulty finding the community in Ethiopia but after much searching he visited the Falashas people.

"They are called the black Jews of Ethiopia. They live in only the remote areas of the country and have to live by themselves. I found they lived in a perfect setting for people to live and they have no real contact with civilization. I found the people to be intelligent; healthy looking; handsome and as clean and wholesome as anyone I had seen in my life."

Tobe is now writing a book on Security from a Little Land. "I have drafted it and it has already been sold," he said. "In the book I am telling people how to live on a small piece of land, be independent and find security."

Throughout his career Tobe said he has made many startling statements in his books and while speaking.

"I challenge any man, scientist or otherwise, to refute them."

"I am always backed by positive scientific evidence," he stressed. "I have a very thorough library that varies on health. I use only the best texts and authorities. They can not prove me wrong because I use their own ammunition."

Tobr said he only brought 12,000 books out of his 60,000-book library.

"I had to store the rest, I hope to bring them later."

The author said he is not a crusader and is only writing the books because he feels it is his debt to society to advise people about what he has learned.

"I am only advising people to make them more aware of the problems," he said. "What they do with the information is their own business."

Tobe said the main thesis of his writings are: no food is ever improved by cooking or heating; no food is improved by adding any chemicals whether used for a preservative or a flavor enhancer and maintaining agricultural chemical habits, we are throwing nature out of balance."

"I have had a garden for over 20 years and have never used a drop of chemical."

"Tobe said he practises what he preaches but is not a vegetarian.

"I eat mainly raw leafy vegetables and only have cooked foods, when I do, for my evening meal. I seldom eat meat and when I do it is usually raw salmon."

His main beverage is a herbal tea.

●

Tobe said he still owns his farm, Home Nursery in St. Catharines.

He hopes to move his publishing business to the Duncan area. He publishes his horticultural magazine called Natural Living twice a year and the Provoker, which has over 125,000 subscribers, bi-monthly.

CROFTON — The Crofton Pulp and Paper Co. said today its wood chip spillage problem is under control.

"We feel everything is under control now," said Reynolds. "I feel we are doing a pretty fair job."

Reynolds said all the mill's suppliers have been warned that wood chips scows must be kept in good repair and no overloading allowed.

Drug Conviction Nets Man 10-Year Sentence

VANCOUVER (CP) — John McKeoff, 36, was sentenced to 10 years in prison Monday following his conviction in Vancouver's marathon drug conspiracy trial.

McKeoff, convicted by a county court jury of conspiring to traffic in heroin, was sentenced by Mr. Justice W. R. McIntyre who said that no one could review McKeoff's criminal record and his 20 years of addiction without great sympathy.

McKeoff was the only one convicted in the trial which followed a year-long preliminary hearing and the judge directed that a new trial for two other accused, Edward Ponak, 34, and Conrad William Gunn, 36, be held Sept. 8.

The jury that convicted McKeoff failed to agree in the case of Ponak and Gunn, both of Vancouver.

In a related B.C. Supreme Court trial, David Galloway, 42, of Vancouver was found guilty Monday of tampering with a jury in an earlier trial for McKeoff and others. He was remanded to Thursday for sentencing.

Mr. Justice McIntyre said Galloway attempted to "pervert the cause of justice" by suggesting to a co-worker whose husband was the jury foreman that the husband would be paid $10,000 for arranging a hung jury. That trial was declared a mistrial.

RULING FROM COURT

Crux Hearing Private

VANCOUVER (UPI) — A preliminary hearing into charges of fraud and theft against three former directors of the now defunct Commonwealth group of companies opened here Monday with a court ruling evidence cannot be published until the case is over.

Provincial court Judge James Bartman said he had to make the order after it was sought by lawyer Jack McGivern, who represents A. G. Duncan Crux, former head of the 30-company empire.

Crux, 63, Cornelius Polvliet 59, former adviser and director to the group, and Mrs. Margaret Harling are appearing before Judge Bartman.

Crux and Mrs. Harling, his former law partner, have elected trial by judge and jury. Polvliet has chosen to be tried by judge alone.

The charges being dealt with initially are that Crux, Polvliet and Mrs. Harling — between Aug. 1, 1964 and Dec. 31, 1967 — fraudulently converted shares in Commonwealth Trust Co., the property of Commonwealth Savings Plan Ltd., of a value in excess of $50, to the use of guarantee establishment thereby committing theft.

Polvliet and Mrs. Harling are accused also of a similar offence between the same dates with respect to Commonwealth Trust Co., shares belonging to Commonwealth Investors Syndicate Ltd.

Jobless Must Pick Up Cheques

Due to the uncertainty of mail delivery, Unemployment Insurance Commission cheques and other documents will be issued only at UIC offices, regional director Duncan Young announced Monday.

Until postal workers settle their dispute with Ottawa, Island residents on unemployment will have to pick up their cheques in Nanaimo or Victoria.

Other issuing offices throughout the province are Vancouver, New Westminster, Terrace, Prince George, Prince Rupert, Kamloops, Kelowna, Castlegar.

The Monday announcement applies only to B.C., but similar arrangements for distribution of cheques and documents have been made in Winnipeg and parts of Ontario and Quebec.

The Vancouver and New Westminster offices will open Saturday to issue the first batch of cheques.

Other offices listed will issue their first cheques during regular business hours — 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. — starting Monday, July 6.

"We have a responsibility to ensure that as many claimants as possible receive their unemployment insurance benefits payments," Young said Monday.

Persons who are unemployed but have not het established a claim must do so at one of the issuing offices.

A spokesman for the Vancouver post office said claimants can expect to stand in line when they pick up their cheques because there is an exceptionally large claim load this year.

With some 80,000 active claims, in the neighborhood of 38,000 cheques are being issued weekly.

Man, 73 Robbed Of 60 Cents

A 73-year old man was knocked down and robbed of 60 cents early Sunday morning.

Emile Perreault, 822 Tolmie, was admitted to St. Joseph's Hospital suffering a broken arm after a young man knocked him to the pavement in the 2800 block of Douglas just after midnight.

The thief stole 60 cents, which was all that his elderly victim was carrying.

Air Strike Set in U.K.

LONDON (Reuters) — A spokesman for a union representing airline stewards and stewardesses said today there is no hope of averting a 24-hour walkout starting at midnight tonight against Britain's two major airlines.

Peter Milani, secretary of the British Airline Stewards and Stewardesses Association, said the strike would begin at midnight against the British Overseas Airways Corp. and British European Airways.

It is estimated that a strike would ground 200 airliners and affect the travel plans of at least 15,000 passengers.

The union, which says the strike will be the first of a series of weekly 24-hour stoppages, is seeking to have cabin staffs regarded as air crew and have the right to retire at age 55 instead of 63.

Only stewards and stewardesses in Britain and the Channel Islands will take part in the strike.

Cable Campaign Soon to Spread

He said Saturday he will write letters to daily newspaper editors in 32 cities with populations of more than 100,000.

He also disclosed that Victoria area petitions have gained about 6,000 signatures.

MIRACLE COATING REPLACES PAINT

Another boon to the space age has been accomplished for home and apartment owners — an exterior wall coating so tough and durable it is guaranteed to totally eliminate exterior painting for over 15 years. This remarkable product combines the long-lasting properties of fiberglass, asbestos, mica and perlite to make a wall surface that resists all climatic extremes. 16 colors available.

Guided missile manufacturers for the United States government have found this material a superior product for insulation of heat shields used in the space program. Over 2 million world-wide applications have been made on industrial, commercial and residential buildings since 1946.

Applied With a Gun

"Fiberglass" Textured Coating is applied with heavy-duty spray equipment under high pressure. It fuses itself to the wall surface to a thickness of 20 times that of paint. It remains flexible and withstands cracking and surface expansion and contraction. Every application is registered and factory-guaranteed for 15 full years against chipping, peeling or flaking.

Free information on how easily you may have "Fiberglass" Textured Coating applied now at low bank terms, with no down payment, may be obtained by calling direct or collect to Textured Coating Division:

Materials Index Shows Decline

OTTAWA (CP) — Softer lumber and concrete prices led to a decline in the Dominion Bureau of Statistics building materials price indexes in May, the bureau has reported.

The index of residential building materials declined to 138.5 from 138.7 in April, and the non-residential materials index eased to 129.3 from 129.4. They were 145.0 and 126.7 respectively in May, last year.

Both indexes are based on 1961 prices equalling 100. The residential materials index was down 4.5 per cent from a year earlier, with lumber prices down 9.5 per cent.

COMPUTER COMPANY DECLARED BANKRUPT

VANCOUVER (CP) — Directors of Computime Canada Ltd., a Vancouver computer company, declared the firm bankrupt Monday.

A company spokesman said the firm's liabilities, secured and unsecured, amount to about $920,000.

The company was launched as a "total services" computer operation in the fall of 1968 and until about two weeks ago ran the largest and most sophisticated commercially — available computer in British Columbia.

Sub Tanker Plan For Moving Oil

WASHINGTON (CP) — General Dynamics launched a campaign Monday to promote its idea of a nuclear-powered sub marine tanker—instead of a pipeline or surface tankers—to move Alaskan oil to the East Coast.

"Major oil companies are expanding their studies of the nuclear-powered submarine tanker as a means to transport the oil," said Samuel B. Winram, a General Dynamics executive, in presenting a model of the sub at the opening day of the Maritime Technology Conference.

Canadian authorities, he added, "have shown a great deal of interest."

"The Canadians say 'whatever goes through there (the Northwest Passage, we are going to regulate it'," he said in reference to recent Canadian moves to ensure environmental control over the Arctic.

Winram's argument is that the plan to run a pipeline south through Alaska from the vast boil find on the North Slope could be tied down for years by court actions now in progress by groups concerned with the pipeline's effect on the environment. The big-five oil companies could not afford to hold off too long in making definite plans.

SUBS FASTER

As for surface tankers, such as the Manhattan sent on experimental voyages in the Arctic by Humble Oil Co., it is General Dynamics' belief that the experiment "has stimulated new interest in the submarine tanker idea."

Although the Manhattan could carry about twice as much oil as a 170,000 ton submarine tanker, the sub, travelling 18 knots, could make the trip in about half the time—"the crucial factor," Winram said.

Under the plan now being evaluated, the sub tanker would cruise at a depth of 300 to 400 feet in a steady 28-degree temperature and so would avoid the hazards of waves, wind, ice and storms.

The craft could be built in 4½ years at General Dynamics' Quincy, Mass., shipbuilding division.

The tanker would be loaded from undersea terminals while submerged, make the 4,200-mile round-trip between Prudhoe Bay and Atlantic ports—in Newfoundland or Greenland—in about two weeks. The oil then could be trans-shipped to U.S. and Canadian markets.

SIMILAR FACILITIES

Winram, director of arctic transportation for General Dynamics, said that at this early date there are "arguments both for and against" both Newfoundland or Greenland terminal points—both have similar facilities.

"A fleet of submarine tankers could become a year-round mobile pipeline which could be a safer, reliable and socially-responsible method of transporting oil from Alaska's north slope to the East Coast of the United States and Canada," he said.

"The oil could be delivered at costs lower than those attributed to the projected pipeline system and competitive with those of ice breaking surface tankers."

United Fruit, AMK Corp. Merger Set

BOSTON (AP) — Stockholders of United Fruit Co., voting in Boston, and those of AMK Corp. in New York City have approved merger plans which will lead to a new firm named United Brands Co.

Both stockholders' meetings approved plans Monday.

The proposed agreement calls for a stock swap. Each share of United Fruit common will be exchanged for 1 7-10 shares of a new capital stock plus one share of a new $1.20 series A preferred stock, convertible into seven-tenths of a share of the new capital stock.

Each share of United Fruit preferred will be exchanged for 2⅜ shares of the new capital stock and 1 4-10 shares of the new preferred.

One share of AMK common will be traded for one new capital share while each share of $3 AMK preferred will be exchanged for one share of the new $3 preferred.

Holders of AMK $3.20 preferred will swap each share for one of a new series B $3.20 preferred.

IBM Develops New System

NEW YORK (AP) — International Business Machines announced today the development of a new medium- and large-scale computer system which it said is faster and has a higher storage capacity than previous models.

"We are confident that the performance of the System-370, its compatibility, its engineering and its programming will make it the standout for the '70s that System-360 was for the '60s," IBM President Thomas J. Watson Jr. told a news conference.

IBM said System-370 will replace the System-360 which currently accounts for a substantial part of the IBM computer market. IBM is the world's biggest manufacturer of computers.

IBM said the new system will come in two models. Both models, the company said, are currently in production and should be available early next year.

IBM said both models operate between four and five times faster internally than the old model.

Output Index Registers Gain

OTTAWA (CP) — In its first issue of a new monthly index of domestic production, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Monday that output rose by one per cent in April, after slumping in March.

The bureau reported that its index of real domestic product, based on 1961 output equalling 100, rose to 157.5 in April from 155.9 in March. It fell in March from 157.0 in February and 156.7 in January.

Hitherto, the bureau has issued the indexes only on a quarterly basis. The index for the first three months of 1970 was 154.8 compared with 153.7 in the last quarter of 1969 and 152.1 in the first three months of last year.

The new index for April means that Canadian production that month ran 57.5 per cent higher than the average for 1961.

Manufacturing — representing almost one-quarter of total output — rose by 1.4 per cent in April. Construction declined sharply in March but showed some recovery in April with an increase in residential building activity.

The index measures output in so-called real terms — that is, discounting price increases, rather than in current dollar terms used in measuring the gross national product. In the first quarter of 1970. the gross national product ran at an annual rate of $82,876,000,000. GNP figures continue to be released on a quarterly basis.

The real domestic product of the country also differs from its gross national product in two other ways. Instead of measuring the prices of goods and services sold, the real domestic product counts the cost of the factors of production — land, labor, materials and management — from which production is derived.

The real domestic product measures the value of all goods and services produced in Canada, but not incomes received from abroad. The latter are included in the gross national product.

DBS said the new monthly index of real domestic product will be a more timely measurement of industrial production. About 130 industry and other indices go into its compilation, and the index is adjusted to smooth out disruptions usually caused by seasonal factors, such as variations in activity in outdoor industries.

CANADA LEADS WAY

Canada is the first of the major industrial countries to produce monthly index of real domestic output. Neither the United States nor Britain produce such statistics and it took DBS a decade to produce the formulas employed.

With the new data, DBS said, industry leaders and economists should be able to keep a sharper eye on production trends in major industries, such as manufacturing, and pinpoint more quickly trends in expansion or stagnation.

Real domestic product indexes do not always follow changes in the gross national product, either in the timing or the extent of the changes.

A statistician said that divergence between the two frequently is sharper when longer-term trends are being reversed. But such divergence does not always accompany a turnaround in the economy and cannot be used as an indicator of a change between expansion and contraction.

Royalty Cut Protested

EDMONTON (CP) — A provincial government decision to reduce royalties paid by Great Canadian Oil Sands Ltd. has been described by the leader of the Alberta New Democratic party as an "outrageous concession to a subsidiary of a giant multi-national corporation."

Grant Notley said in a statement the firm is a subsidiary of Sun Oil Corp. which had gross income last year of nearly $2,000,000,000.

"The company is not entitled to a royalty reduction," Notley said.

"We must remember that cutting the royalties in half is nothing more than an indirect subsidy by the taxpayers of Alberta. To this subsidy we must add the taxation concessions provided by the federal government to the mining and petroleum industry."

He admitted the firm, which is trying to establish oil extraction from the Athabasca oil sands in northern Alberta, had lost money in the last few years.

Pacific Northern

Ron Rutherford, president of Pacific Northern Gas Ltd., said here Monday his company is deferring indefinitely dividend payments on its 6¾-per-cent redeemable preferred shares.

He said the step was taken because of the shutdown of its biggest customer, the Columbia Cellulose operation in Prince Rupert, due to an industrial dispute.

Programs Planned

Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin says the government has a number of programs to help exporters adversely affected by the unpegging of the Canadian dollar from a fixed exchange rate.

When George Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings) and Edward Broadbent (NDP—Oshawa-Whitby) pushed the trade minister in the Commons on what he is doing to maintain Canada's exports — which now cost other countries more money because of a rise in the dollar's value — Pepin said Canadian exports have been doing well and the country has a $1,000,000,000 trade surplus.

Pepin said he and Finance Minister Edgar Benson were eager to study situations where Canadian industries were suffering from the mloating of the dollar and the government had a collection of programs prepared to deal with the problem.

Trancontinental

Transcontinental Resources of Vancouver Monday reported net income of $45,461 in 1969, down from $447,381 the year before.

New CZ Sawmill Set

VANCOUVER (CP) — Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd. announced Monday it has acquired an 11-acre site at Bella Coola for construction of a $5,000,000 sawmill near the northern British Columbia coastal community.

Robert G. Rogers, CZ president, said an agreement to purchase the Clayton Creek power station site a mile north of Bella Coola was concluded with the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority.

The sawmill is the first phase in Crown Zellerbach's plan to establish an $80,000,000 forest productions operation in the Bella Coola area. Other phases will include a second sawmill and a pulp mill.

Mr. Rogers said the company hopes to have the first sawmill in operation by 1972 producing 64,000,000 board feet of specially cut lumber for Japanese markets.

'Impaired' Man Just Disabled

A charge of impaired driving brought against John Franklin Dyer, 50, of Glen Lake, was dismissed Monday in court by Judge William Ostler on grounds the symptoms of impairment reported by police could easily have been the result of a physical disability.

Court was told that May 30 Colwood RCMP responded to a report of a truck in a ditch on Humpback Road.

The attending officer said he found Dyer asleep behind the wheel, had difficulty waking the accused, and noticed that he stumbled while leaving his car.

At the police station Dyer was asked to take sobriety tests, and when asked to pick up coins from the floor stumbled several times.

He stated further that he had recently cracked several ribs as a result of a fall while at work. Favoring those ribs caused him to stumble at the police station, he said.

When the truck ran into the ditch at a narrow part of the winding, hilly, gravel road, he settled down to wait for someone to drive past.

Although he said he did not remember being asleep, Ostler said this was not unusual for a person who had been awakened suddenly.

He said further that Dyer did not show a marked departure from a normal response to the sobriety tests and that his reactions could logically be explained by his disability.

A Vancouver man who drove at high speeds in evening traffic on the Trans-Canada highway and Douglas Street May 22 was fined $300 in court Monday for impaired driving.

Steven Zivkow, 32, was seen travelling at speeds up to 50 m.p.h. near Wascana, and was seen to pass a truck illegally on the righthand side.

Later he was seen on Douglas Street at about 9:20 p.m., travelling north in a southbound lane at 60 m.p.h.

Subsequent analysis showed his blood alcohol reading to be .11 per cent.

Ernest Bartlett, 47, of 132 Olive, was fined $100 on a charge of failing to remain at the scene of an accident May 20 at Humboldt and Douglas.

He was seen weaving in the 1900 block of Beach Drive June 13, and his blood alcohol reading was .13 per cent.

Theodore Stephens, 31, of 1472 Fort Street was committed for trial in a higher court on a charge of breaking and entering and theft.

Stephens waived preliminary hearing and elected for trial by judge without jury. Ostler set bail at $1,500.

CANADA LUCKY, SAYS TRUDEAU

Text of the message:

At times we are so close to events that it is difficult for us to perceive the reality behind them. The demands and worries of every-day living often crowd out or hide the larger truth so that we are not aware of it.

Our national holiday on the first of July provides an opportunity to think about Canadian life as a whole and to remember the many advantages we enjoy. Canada, with her vast territory, abundant resources, stable, democratic institutions, and her traditions of freedom, goodwill and tolerance is one of the most fortunate countries in the world.

Even so, there are problems which we must face. There are frictions between our two major language groups; the gap between the haves and the have-nots is still too wide; the varied interests of different regions create feelings of isolation; misunderstanding damages the relations between the older and younger generations. Fortunately for us our problems are not as numerous nor as serious as those that afflict many other countries. They are, nevertheless, just as real and we cannot ignore them.

In solving such problems we can strengthen and improve ourselves. To overcome them, we must build a society in which brotherhood has replaced distrust, equity has triumphed over poverty, a feeling of unity has eliminated regional isolation, and mutual understanding has closed the generation gap.

* * *

In a world where injustice, vengeance, hatred and war hold sway, Canada's role can be a noble one. If we can reconcile the forces which threaten to divide us, we will show that, however different we may be, we can live as brothers, and as equals.

In this country, our diversity of languages, cultures and outlooks gives us a chance for mutual enrichment. Let us be proud of this diversity and work together with all our energy and enthusiasm for the unity and progress of Canada.

The Weather and You

By Carl Riblet Jr.

If you take out a map of Canada, the United States and Mexico, you can see how human fertility follows the weather, when it reaches its peak, and ebbs to its lowest point of the year.

In Mexico, where the weather is hot in summer and sometimes cold in winter, reproductivity in humans occurs much more in winter and much less in summer. The same holds true for the Carolinas and Florida.

Up north, however, Montreal and Boston, where summer warmth is very seldom very depressive, fertility in humans reaches its highest point in midsummer and then drops to its lowest during the steady cold in winter.

You might like to know, when you celebrate your birthdate, that it is the inevitable outcome of earlier events in the changing weather.

DIRECTOR STILL SHOOTS STARS

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — It's time for some straight talk about that much maligned institution. The star system. The talker—Otto Preminger.

The word has been passed around that the star system is dead in films, that actors who were getting a million dollars a picture last year are now lining up for unemployment insurance.

Producer-director Preminger is reputed to be a tiger who chomps on actors for hors d'oeuvres. Hence you might expect him to kick the star system into the freshly dug grave. He didn't. Not exactly.

"Would I pay an actor a million dollars a picture?" he mused in his palatial Paramount office. "Of course not. But then, I don't think there are any actors asking for a million dollars—this year.

FOR PROTECTION

"Myself, I don't believe in stars. Perhaps the star system meant something in the years when certain personalities had their own followings. Like Clark Gable. It is said that the only pictures of his that didn't make money were the one he did with Myrna Loy about Ireland (Parnell) and the last one, with Marilyn Monroe (The Misfits).

"But now there is no star that can guarantee a picture's success. Yet the star system has been preserved—until now—by producers who felt they needed stars for protection.

"If the picture's a flop, the producer can excuse his own stupidity by saying, 'Look I had Elizabeth Taylor in it; what else could I do?'"

Preminger has hired Paul Newman, Frank Sinatra, Kim Novak and dozens of other stars for his films, and he says he would do so again.

"After all, stars become stars because they have certain qualities. Most of them are good actors, or at least learn to give a good performance. A star name in the right part can add value to a film."

For his latest film, Tell Me That You Love Me, Junie Moon, Preminger went the unknown route. Well, almost.

He cast Liza Minnelli in the female lead at a time when she was a star in night clubs and television only. He picked Ken Howard from "1776" and James Coco from off-Broadway. Stage director Robert Moore wanted to observe on the set; Preminger cast him as one of the leads instead.

The combination appears to have worked. Junie Moon has received the best reviews of any Preminger film in recent years. His description of it:

"The story of members of three minority groups—the young, the poor and the crippled—and their demand for the right to life."

Preminger conceded that the film industry is suffering a malaise. But he doesn't agree with the panic talk.

"The movies have always been lucky; some new development comes along to save them. Perhaps the videotape casette will make a whole new market for films."

Summer Session Starts Thursday

The University of Victoria's summer session will open Thursday with an enrolment of 1,460 students, an increase of 130 from last year.

Sixty-five people will live in residences to take part in La Maison Francaise, the annual French language immersion program. Twenty of the students will have tuiton and living expenses paid by the federal government.

Five visiting faculty members will deliver lectures in a Wednesday evening lecture series to be held at the student union building.

Color the Seals Green and Gold

Charlie O. Has Control; Filling Arena First Goal

NEW YORK (AP)—Just because Charles O. Finley is the new owner of Oakland Seals, don't expect the National Hockey League team to start wearing white skates to match the white baseball shoes Finley's Oakland Athletics wear.

Not right away, anyhow.

"White skates are out right now from what I've heard the governors say," Finley said Monday after his $4,500,000 bid for the ailing Oakland franchise was accepted over a comparable offer by roller skating promoter Jerry Seltzer. "One governor told me they'd be fine but the fans in his building would wave hankies and blow kisses at the players."

Getting fans in Oakland's building is Finley's first project. He is the third owner of the financially-troubled team in as many years and his investment "paid off all of the franchise's outstanding obligations and left a modest excess," said Clarence Campbell, president of the NHL.

Campbell said the Seals will be owned officially by Charles O. Finley and Co. Inc.

DEBT DEVELOPED

The Seals joined the NHL in 1967 when the league doubled its size by awarding six franchises at $2,000,000 each. But the club never attracted enough support to pay its bills.

A year ago the team was sold by San Francisco Seals Ltd. to Trans-National Communications Inc. of New York for $3,400,000. The new purchaser defaulted on scheduled payments and the original owners, headed by Barry van Gerbig, sought return of the franchise for resale, with Finley a prospective purchaser.

Trans-National fought the van Gerbig group's move to regain possession with a restraining order and also filed a bankruptcy petition, which it later asked to have dismissed.

"If I thought white skates would increase attendance from 6,000 to 10,000," said Finley, "I might consider them."

Finley first stepped into the sports picture a decade ago when he purchased Kansas City Athletics. After a turbulent seven years spiced with several civic battles, Finley moved the team to Oakland after the 1967 season.

"I looked into possibly buying the Seals then," he said, "but I didn't pursue it because the A's were just moving and I wanted to concentrate on baseball at that time."

SEALS GO GREEN, GOLD

Finley outfitted his American League baseball club in flashy uniforms which feature kelly green and gold color combinations—"my favorite colors." He said he expected to use the same colors for the Seals.

"You know," said Finley, "many people refer to my operation in baseball as flamboyant. I like to think of it as colorful. Regardless of what you're selling—baseball, insurance, hockey—you've got to put color into fit.

"If people think a colorful uniform is flamboyant, then it's too bad. I like color and my players like their uniforms."

Finley said he believes the main problem in Oakland so far has been in the area of promotion.

"I believe in making fans feel wanted and appreciated. I want fans to feel entertained at a game—during the periods and between them too. But I learned in baseball that you can have a lousy team and no matter how much promotion you do, it's impossible to ballyhoo a funeral."

Bill WALKER

The week in review, or what price the effort in trying to promote a sport in the city. Ask the leagues, ask the professional promoter, ask the players, or ask the fans. Last week was an excellent example of non support. And not the first, nor the last.

First, there was the senior amateur baseball game at Athletic Park.

I didn't have the heart to ask what the gate was. It wasn't necessary. But there were more players and officials on the field than spectators in the park.

And the prime topic of conversation of the officials was not: "When are the Essos going to win?" but the dreaded words:

"Damn it, there goes another one."

Yes, broken bats and lost baseballs are the talk of the league, for reasons which soon will become obvious, when it should be:

"Hey, did you hear about Pete Duncan going to San Jose" . . . and "that's where Bob Burrows is, isn't it?"

That's the type of graduate the city baseball program has. That's the calibre of competition here.

But try and break even. Oh, boy! And here's why.

The park rental fee is wonderful. It's only $10 a night or a precentage of the gate, whichever is greater.

"We've got a good deal on the park; we can't kick at that," says league president Bill Prior; and we pay the umpires $12 a game," he added.

◆

"But those bats! They're killing us." Prior went on.

He explained that baseball bats which were $4.75 at the start of the season, now are $5 each. And with only 24 games played, and the season not yet at the halfway point, the toll has been terrific.

Last week, the official count of shattered hickory stood at 8½ dozen. On Thursday three were split asunder. It doesn't take a mathematician to total that expense.

Baseballs, fortunately, are supplied by the Victoria and District Association, and it's a good thing for the budget that they are. Because they come at $36 a dozen, and about two dozen is par for the week. Super chasers in the park and outside the fence cut down on the loss. Returns are worth 25 cents.

There is the hope that attendance will improve with the weather. But how warm does it have to get? is the critical reply.

At any rate, over 100 is an excellent crowd. An average of 75 per game is acceptable and the current figure.

Sickening may be a better word for it.

Senior men's softball is in the same type of boat. There was a recent game at Heywood Ave. Park, for example, in which the head count totalled 127. This was not "paid". Many moved when the subscription box was passed, and the collection was not much, either.

◆

But the calibre of play was good, and the game exciting and close until the final out. Which is all a fan can ask, even for nothing, which most of them gave.

Wednesday night at Memorial Arena the Shamrocks were at home to the league-leading new Westminster Salmonbellies in lacrosse. Here was a natural. The Rocks had won two straight, and three out of four and were against the class club.

But there were less than 2,000 fans in the place. Granted the attendance was almost double the previous week. But these were the No. 1s, the intercity representatives. This is a major summer sport, and costs run high, much higher than for the ball players. There is no cut rate on air fare.

This was the occasion of the Y-Times track meet at Centennial Stadium.

Here was grand collection of fine young athletes, a willing core of hard-working officials and coaches, as usual, and they were competing on the finest track west of Winnipeg.

But people? There weren't many, again.

It is not the purpose here to advise fans how to best spend their sporting dollar. Because that would be a violation of human rights, and it wouldn't work, either.

But rather, there is the simple suggestion that may have some merit.

If you have a free night, this week, or next, or anytime this summer, do try and take in a local event.

You may get a pleasant surprise, and release some inhibitions as well. Just as I have.

Senators' Late Belts Too Much for Orioles

By The Associated Press

Baltimore's ailing Orioles came out on the short end of a 5-3 decision Monday night—the third straight game in which Washington Senators came from behind in a final at bat to win an American League game from the Orioles.

Saturday night it was Wayne Comer's bases-loaded eighth inning double that did the damage. Sunday, Rick Reichardt rifled a pinch two-run homer to turn the game around in the 12h. And, Monday night, it was a three-run homer by Aurelio Rodriguez that wiped out a Baltimore lead.

Elsewhere in the league Monday night, Minnesota Twins tripped Kansas City Royals 5-4 and California Angels battered Milwaukee Brewers 10-3.

The Orioles' American League East lead was trimmed to two games over idle New York as they lost their fifth game in the last seven starts.

Frank Howard had an early two-run homer for the Senators but Baltimore battled back to tie the score in the fourth.

Then the Birds went ahead in the seventh on singles by Brooks Robinson and Ellie Hendricks and a sacrifice fly by Mark Belanger.

Washington's Ed Brinkman opened the eighth with a single and Howard walked with one out. Reichardt, Sunday's hero, bounced out but Rodriguez followed with his 12th homer of the year to win the game.

Hot-hitting Cesar Tover cracked four straight hits including a game-winning triple as Minnesota overcame a four-run Kansas City lead to beat the Royals.

Tovar's sixth inning triple drove in winning pitcher Jim Perry, who was credited with a double when his fly ball fell between outfielders Amos Otis and Pat Kelly.

Tovar, who has raised his average 30 points and moved past .300 in the last five games, led Minnesota's comeback after the Royals tagged Perry for four runs in the first, two of them on Ed Kirkpatrick's double.

PERRY PITCHES WELL

Perry allowed only two hits after the third inning and mowed down 14 in a row over one stretch. Ron Perranoski came on to get the final out.

Sandy Alomar, whose 22-game hitting streak was ended Sunday, cracked two triples, a double and a single leading California's romp past Milwaukee.

Clyde Wright rode the 12-hit Angel attack to his 11th victory of the season, Ed Fisher finished up.

Alomar scored three times and drove in one run. He started California off quickly when he tripled in front of Roger Repoz' first inning homer.

Tommy Harper had three hits including a homer and Max Alvis also connected for the Brewers.

New York Mets rallied in the ninth inning to nip Pittsburgh Pirates 3-2 in a first place National League showdown between East Division contenders. It was the Met's second victory in five meetings with Pittsburgh this season.

Pinch-hitters also supplied the punch as the St. Louis Cardinals struck for four runs in the eighth to down Chicago Cubs 8-6 and move past the skidding Cubs into third place in the East, 3½ games off the pace.

Houston Astros whipped Los Angeles Dodgers 10-5 in the only other league action. Philadelphia Phillies scheduled game at Montreal against the Expos was rained out.

Shamrocks, Adanacs In Crucial Meeting

COQUITLAM —Led by a six-point performance by Brent Ojanen, Vancouver Burrards downed Coquitlam Adanacs, 14-9, in Western Lacrosse Association play here Monday.

The win moved Burrards to within two points of league-leading New Westminster Salmonbellies, and kept the Victoria Shamrocks tied with Coquitlam for third place.

New Westminster at Vancouver tonight, while the Shamrock-Adanac battle for the final playoff spot resumes at Memorial Arena Wednesday, starting at 8 p.m.

Ojanen snapped a three-game scoring slump to lead the Burrards with four goals and two assists over Coquitlam, while Ross McDonald and Gord Frederickson added two goals each for the winners.

Owl Wins Five in Row

By PAT DUFOUR

Gale-force winds tested the mettle of boats and crews competing at the Royal Victoria Yacht Club this weekend when Bob Grundison's Owl pulled off a sailing hat-trick by winning every one of a five-race series for all Thunderbirds in the Victoria area.

The wind was so strong at the start of the second race Sunday Grundison led the fleet around the first windward mark with Owl under main alone, having downed the jib for more comfortable conditions while waiting for the gun.

Gordie Nickell's Redskin came second, followed by John Booth's Umpka and John Malleson's Sunday.

Seventeen Haidas competed in a five-race series for both local and mainland boats.

The big winner was Greg Oliver's T'Weather who won four out of the five sailouts and became over-all winner by a handsome margin. Other top boats were Brian Saunders' Impulse, Don McCowan's Haida III, both of Royal Vic., and Irving Young's Kya-Lu of Royal Vancouver Yacht Club.

* * *

Six Unicorn catamarans also held a series this weekend at Cadboro Bay. Royal Vic sailors Robert Thompson and Pat Chaworth-Musters came first and second, followed by Jim Musgrave of the Esquimalt Squadron, Canadian Forces Sailing Association.

While veteran sailor Jack Woodward was crewing in T'Weather this weekend his son, Brian, was on Lake Washington trying to emulate his father's coup when Woodward's crew became the top in the Pacific Northwest in Mallory Cup competition in 1967.

Brian and Peter Watts crewed for John Davies, who came last out of five boats.

The top two spots both went to Canadian crews. The winner, Alan Sturgess of Royal Vancouver will represent the area in the North American finals. Phil Leisch of the Hollyburn Sailing Club placed second.

Seven boats from CFSA raced from Cadboro Bay to Roche Harbor Saturday, starting in strong winds that peetered out to a drifter by the time they reached the finish line at Mospuito Pass. The race was won by Fred Douglas' Black Hawk. She was followed by Mike Weir's Blue Goose and Bob Bissell's White Swan.

Some of the British Columbia Golf Association executives pull up short when it comes to the Dept. of Think.

They snubbed Dave Mick, but others have since stepped in to try and rectify a wrong. As a result, the Gorge Vale golfer still may receive his invite to the B.C. Men's Invitational, a 36-hole tournament to be shared by the Point Grey and Marine Drive courses in Vancouver later this week.

The BCGA's original list contained the names of 27 golfers. Fourteen draw in because they are either champion or runnerup in seven zones. Seven of the remaining 13 include the B.C. qualifiers in the provincial tournament (No. 8 qualifier was a Seattle golfer).

Mark Daniel of Vancouver had to be given the eighth invite because he missed a qualifying berth when he lost a playoff to Larry Haddock. Mick missed the playoff situation by one stroke. By order of appearance at the amateur, Mick should have considered No. 9 on the invitation list.

For reasons best known to themselves, the BCGA selection committee didn't see it that way. It rated five golfers ahead of Mick. The invited five all hail from zone two, thus giving the Vancouver-lower mainland area 14 of the 27 berths.

Okay, concede zone two as having the bulk of the province's best players. Nonetheless, the selectors show obvious bias by not considering Mick. His B.C. Amateur medal score was better than those recorded by six of the zone two players invited.

Though he wishes it could be so, Mick is the first to admit his chances of earning selection to the four-man Willingdon Cup team are slim. Those chances go from slim to none unless he plays in the Invitational.

Regardless of the breadth of his chances, Mick deserves an invitation. For that reason, the Victoria District Committee fired the following request (as opposed to "suggestion") to the B.C. body on Monday: "Lawrie Kerr unable to play. As David Mick is last year's winner, missed B.C. Amateur qualifying by only one stroke, and is zone one intermediate champion, request he be invited to take Kerr's place."

Kerr, B.C. Amateur winner Carl Schwantje and Ken Floyd, runnerup in the city (zone one) tournament, were the only Victorians invited. Neither Kerr nor Floyd are in contention for Willingdon Cup selection.

Lawrie hasn't campaigned for selection, did not play in the Amateur, and is passing up the Invitational because he's heading for Spokane and the PNGA tournament next week.

On Mick's behalf, it is nice to remember that Dave won the inaugural Invitational at Colwood last year, and that he was the B.C. Amateur medallist in 1968. The irksome aspect of the snub is the fact that the BCGA does not recognize moral obligations.

Victorians are somewhat skimpy when it comes to supporting provincial tournaments. Dave Mick has been an exception. Only 19, he hasn't missed a provincial tournament—senior or junior—in the last four years.

In other words, he has given the BCGA his support.

The BCGA, by its action, feels that is not important.

Uplands members participated en masse in Saturday's opening of their "new course." It was mostly fun and games, and for that reason the rounds by Bob Hunt and Joan Lawson won't count.

Mrs. Lawson had a 75 to match women's par, Hunt scored a two-over 72 to lead the day's low gross scorers. However, those scores won't go down as official. In order to speed up play, 18-inch "gimme" circles had been marked around all cups.

The opening of the new 14th, 15th and 16th holes has eliminated the old "birdie alley" and has added considerable toughness to the back nine. The over-all yardage increase goes from 6,215 yards to 6,228.

The yardage increase doesn't seem like very much, and the discrepancy lies with the new measuring system.

Member Peter Stocks added his contribution to the day by scoring a hole-in-one on the "new" eighth. It was formerly the 11th.

And also for the record, Doug Peden and Mrs. Lawson combined to win the horse race over Fred Switzer and Kay Tribe.

Canucks' Choice Claims Open Spot

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Nine Canadians, led by amateur Dale Tallon, a 19-year-old draft choice of Vancouver Canucks of the National Hockey League, qualified Monday for the Canadian Open championship which begins Thursday at the London Hunt and Country Club.

Tallon shot a two-under-par 70, although he had a one-over-par on the par-three 18th hole, to finish behind five professionals from the United States. Fifty-three of the 206 amateurs and professionals made the cut.

The five U.S. professionals were Denny Tiziani of Ironwood, Mich., Chick Evans of Burlington, Vt., Chuck Courtney of LaJolla, Calif., Dick Rautman of Menlo Park, Calif., and Curtis Sifford of Los Angeles.

John Schroeder of San Diego tied with Tallon.

A hail storm and high winds hampered the qualifiers. One of the surprises was the play of Bill Wright Jr. of Edmonton, the 29-year-old who won the Ontario Open at Guelph last week.

Wright was eliminated after shooting a 78. He had rounds of 66-69-66 in Guelph.

TWO TIED

Canadians at 72 were Ken Fulton of St. Julie, Que., and Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg. At 73 were Tom Tremblay of Brantford, Ont., Gary Pitchford of Toronto, Moe Norman of Gilford, Ont., Frank Whibley of Toronto and Lawrence O'Hearne of Dartmouth, N.S.

Gary Bowerman of Toronto qualified after making a birdie on an extra-hole playoff. Bowerman and 12 others had been tied at 74 and only nine openings were available.

Canadians who did not have to qualify included Al Balding, George Knudson, Stan Homenuik, Bill Wakeham of Victoria, Dave Clayton, Adrien Bigrass, Orest Spooner, Wayne McDonald, Wayne Young, Gary Mave, Herb Holzscheiter and Ken Girard.

American professionals include defending champion Tommy Aaron, Sam Snead, Art Wall Jr., Gene Littler and Don Massengale.

Dave Hill, who finished second in the Cleveland Open last week and who criticized the Minnesota course in the U.S. Open earlier this month, withdrew because of ill health.

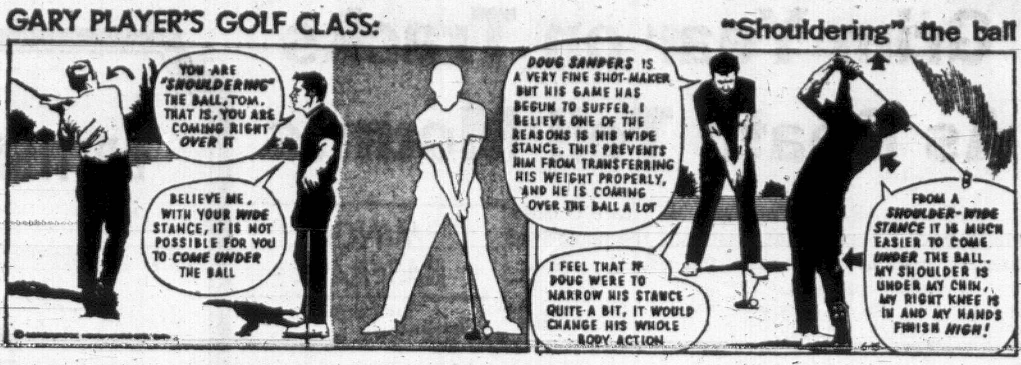
B.C. Team Sweeps Synchronized Laurels

HALIFAX (CP) — Carol Stuart of British Columbia's Dogwood Club captured the figures and solo competition at the junior Canadian synchronized swimming championships which concluded here Monday.

Diane Hampton, also of the Dogwood Club, took second and Laura Wilkin of the Calgary YW Aquabelles placed third.

British Columbia won the team trophy with 67 points. Alberta was second with 34 and Quebec third with 23 points.

GARY PLAYER'S GOLF CLASS: "Shouldering" the ball



YOU ARE "SHOULDERING" THE BALL, TOM. THAT IS, YOU ARE COMING RIGHT OVER IT
BELIEVE ME, WITH YOUR WIDE STANCE, IT IS NOT POSSIBLE FOR YOU TO COME UNDER THE BALL
DOUG SANDERS IS A VERY FINE SHOT-MAKER BUT HIS GAME HAS BEGUN TO SUFFER. I BELIEVE ONE OF THE REASONS IS HIS WIDE STANCE. THIS PREVENTS HIM FROM TRANSFERRING HIS WEIGHT PROPERLY, AND HE IS COMING OVER THE BALL A LOT
I FEEL THAT IF DOUG WERE TO NARROW HIS STANCE QUITE A BIT, IT WOULD CHANGE HIS WHOLE BODY ACTION
FROM A SHOULDER-WIDE STANCE IT IS MUCH EASIER TO COME UNDER THE BALL. MY SHOULDER IS UNDER MY CHIN, MY RIGHT KNEE IS IN AND MY HANDS FINISH HIGH!

YOUNG TENNIS STARS LAUNCH TITLE QUESTS

Tennis courts around the city were swarming today with eager youngsters with racquets in their hands and dreams of titles in their heads.

They were embarking on title quests in their opening matches of the annual Pacific regional junior tournament, which has attracted approximately 250 entries from young players who are competing in four divisions—in ages under 12, 14, 16 and 18 years.

Base of operations is the Racquet Club of Victoria, which will be the scene of the majority of matches. However, the entry list is so large that in order to reach final rounds Friday afternoon, many of the preliminary battles must be shifted to other Greater Victoria courts.

Competition will resume each day at 10 a.m. and organizers expect that play will finish around 6 p.m. on Wednesday and Thursday.

Performances in the tournament will count toward 1970 tennis rankings in the Pacific Northwest.

Ten Teams Enter Softball Tourney

Teams from as far away as Seattle are expected to participate in the second annual Stuffy McGinnis invitational men's softball tournament to be played at Royal Athletic Park this weekend.

Port Alberni and Richmond teams will also be represented at the tourney as well as Denford Electric and Langford Drywall from the Major Men's league.

The host McGinnis League will be represented by Colwood Inn, Century Inn, Bell's Men's Wear and Labatts in the three-day, double-knockout affair. The first game is scheduled for 6:30 Friday.

TWO AT CENTRAL

The 10 teams participating will play a total of 18 or 19 games, all but two of them being played at Royal Athletic Park. Central Park will be the site of a game Saturday and Sunday.

In McGinnis League action at Heywood Avenue Park Monday, Labatts defeated Gilmour Construction, 6-5, on Bill Mundie's two-run homer in the bottom of the seventh inning.

The two points moved Labatts into a tie for second place with Century Inn.

Langford Checked By Polz

Langford Drywall slipped further into the Major Men's Softball League cellar Monday, going down at the hands of Strathcona Hotel, 7-1, at Central Park.

The Hotelmen's Bill Polz pitched a three-hitter and struck out eight Langford batters for the victory. He also walked eight and needed some well-timed strikeouts and fielding to keep the losers to one run.

Mir Continues To Set Pace

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The yacht Mir, skippered by George A. O'Brien of Vancouver, was reported Monday the leader in the Los Angeles-to-Tahiti trans-Pacific yacht race.

High winds played havoc with the leaders, prohibiting any accurate reports, but a broadcast monitored from Blackfin, the early leader, reported that winds were so strong the vessel heeled over and for a time was unable to charge its generator.

The broadcast said four yachts crossed the Equator Monday, the 15th day of the 3,571-mile race, and that several others were within 100 miles of the Equator.

Based on the broadcast's estimates, Mir was 128 miles south of the Equator and 81 miles ahead of Blackfin. Widgeon, piloted by G. Norman Bacon of Santa Barbara, Calif., was reported third, 40 miles south with Aries 10 miles back in fourth.

Stars Meet Villa; Essos Win First

Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League all-stars, who have hopes of collecing titles later this summer, have picked a powerful foe for their first test of the season.

The all-stars open the exhibition part of their schedule Wednesday when they take on the Burnaby Villa team from Vancouver in a doubleheader at Royal Athletic Park, with games slated to start at 1 and 3 p.m.

Villa, comprised mainly of Canadians who have played baseball with university squads in the United States, started play last weekend in a newly-formed circuit with an old name — Western International League.

Also playing in the new league, which organizers hope will revive amateur baseball interest in the Pacific Northwest, are four clubs from Washington State.

Another WIL team is scheduled to play an exhibition twin bill with the all-stars in Victoria on July 18.

CITY TEAM

The Victoria all-star squad to play Villa follows: Catchers, Dave Morgan and Bob Lumley, pitchers, Pete Jolly, Doug Hill, George Brice and George Hemming; infielders, Barry Harvey, George Fuller, John Yankoski, Dave Rivers, Les Brice, Garry Andrews, Mike Embury; outfielders, Terry Whitman, Gordie Strongman Gerry Lister and Bob Bowles. Manager of the club is Larry McKinty. Bernie Anderson is coach.

In Monday night's Senior Amateur League competition at Athletic Park, Imperial Essos won their first game of the season, defeating Greaves Movers, 4-2.

The Essos first win in 13 starts looked convincing as Ralph Anderson and Dave Wallace scored on a Greaves' error in the first inning, and the winners made it 4-0 in the top of the sixth when Russ Holmes hit a run-scoring triple and scored on another error.

Greaves threatened in the bottom of the sixth, scoring two runs on bases-loaded walks to Les Brice and Larry McKinty. Bruce Rands started for Essos, was relieved by Terry Karpiuk in the sixth and Tony Armstrong in the seventh.

Bookies Point To Newcombe

They hope to see the 28-year-old English left-hander, who upset defending champion Rod Laver last Saturday, become the first Briton to win the All-England lawn tennis championship since Fred Perry in 1937.

"This is only the quarter-finals," he said. "Clark Graebner's big service could cause me more trouble than Rod Laver did."

"I don't want the crowd to expect too much and then feel let down if I lose."

BIG SEVEN

Graebner, 26, has a reputation as the biggest server among the eight men left in contention.

The bookies today made John Newcombe of Australia, champion in 1967, favorite for the title at 9 to 4 odds.

Tony Roche of Australia was made second favorite at 3 to 1, and then came Graebner at 6 to 1. Two more Australians, Roy Emerson and Ken Rosewall, were 7 to 1.

In mixed doubles Monday, Jane O'Hara of Toronto and her partner, John Bartlett of Australia, won two more matches to gain a spot in the quarter-finals.

They beat Paul Hutchins and Rita Bentley of Britain 6-4, 4-6, 6-4 in an afternoon match, then in the evening defeated Gardner Malloy of the U.S. and Lea Pericoli of Italy 6-3, 6-3.

The two top seeds in women's singles each suffered early shocks and lost a set before advancing to the semi-finals Monday.

Mrs. Billie Jean King of the U.S., Wimbledon champ in 1966, 1967 and 1968, came from behind to defeat Karen Krantzcke of Australia 3-6, 6-3, 6-2.

Margaret Court of Australia, who took the title in 1963 and 1965, conquered Helga Niessen of West Germany 6-8, 6-0, 6-0.

COURT INJURED

Mrs. Court next faces Rosemary Casals of the U.S., who hit top form in demolishing the last British hope, Winnie Shaw, 6-2, 6-0.

Mrs. King's semi-final opponent will be Francoise Durr of France, who defeated Cecilia Martinez, of San Francisco 6-0, 6-4.

A question mark hangs over Mrs. Court. She twisted her ankle in the first set against Miss Niessen and although, as the score showed, it gave her no further bother, she decided to see a specialist about it.

AT SWIM MEET

Brilliant Display By 15-Year-Old

VANCOUVER — Ian MacKenzie staged a spectacular show as he fell only one race short of a gold medal sweep of the men's division in the British Columbia open and age-group swimming championships at Empire Pool.

MacKenzie, a 15-year-old athlete from Ocean Falls who was swimming for Canadian Dolphins Swimming Club of Vancouver, placed second Sunday in his 10th race in three days after two earlier wins Sunday, three Saturday and four Friday.

He was first in Sunday's 100-metre freestyle in 58.4, then won the 100-metre backstroke in 1:04.4 before placing second in the 1,500-metre freestyle to Jerry Johnston of Lake Washington Swim Club, who won in 18:21.3. MacKenzie's time was 18:45:1.

Dolphins led the 20-club meet in team standings with 534 points, well ahead of second-place Lake Washington at 283 Vancouver Amateur Swim Club was third with 262 points.

In other Sunday races, Lake Washington's Jo Harshbarger won the 100-metre women's freestyle in 1:05.8, and the 800-metre freestyle in 9:43.7. She also won three events Saturday.

Victoria Olympians, represented by 22 swimmers, collected 83 points to wind up in ninth position on the team list and picked up one individual title as Greg Stone won the men's 100 -metre breaststroke event. Stone was sixth in the 200-metre race.

In women's competition Mary Pat Pumfrey of Olympians was second and third in breaststroke finals and clubmate Gail Williams was fourth in two butterfly races.

Other Olympians placing in the top four were:

In the 10-and-under girls' division, Cary Busfield was second in a backstroke final; Nicky Borrelli was second and Leonard Carlow fourth in boys' 11-and-under breaststroke; in events for 13 and 14-year-olds, Judy Thompson was third in girls' freestyle, Bill Mollard was second in boys' backstroke, Jay Ranson was third in boys' individual medley and the quartet of Ranson, Mollard, Phil Gay and Chris Toakley finished fourth in two relay events.

Liston Stops Bleeding Rival

JERSEY CITY, N.H. (AP) — Former heavyweight champion Sonny Liston stopped Chuck Wepner of Bayonne, N.J., Monday night in a heavyweight bout that ended after nine rounds because a bleeding Wepner was not permitted to answer the bell.

Liston scored the fight's only knockdown, dropping his heavier foe in the fifth with a right to the body.

Grim Year on Tracks As Death Toll Mounts

LONDON (AP) — Two fatal auto race crashes Sunday have brought to at least nine the number of racing drivers killed in the sport this year.

The toll so far in 1970 makes this year one of the worst in memory—and there are still several months to go in the season.

British driver Derek Williams was burned to death Sunday in a Formula 5000 event at Anderstorp Raceway in Sweden. His car hit another and exploded.

In France, the same day, Jean-Luc Salomon, married only two weeks, was killed in a Formula 3 race when his Martini car overturned on the last lap. His wife was at trackside.

Dick Brown, 40, of Birmingham, Mich., died June 13 at Mosport near Toronto when his home-built car hit a bank and flipped during qualification trials for the opening race of the rich Group 7 Can-Am series.

McLAREN VICTIM

Two fatalities which rocked the racing fraternity were those of Grand Prix drivers Bruce McLaren of New Zealand and Piers Courage of Great Britain.

Both were considered among the top six world-class drivers.

McLaren died June 2 when testing a new Group 7 car at Goodwood, England.

Courage, handsome, debonair and heir to a multi-million-dollar brewery company, died in the flaming wreck of his De Tomaso Formula 1 car during the Dutch Grand Prix June 20 at Zandvoort.

On May 28, while practising for the 1000-kilometre Nurburgring race, crack Finnish driver Hans Laine, 24, of Helsinki, flipped his Porsche at high speed and died.

PRACTICE ACCIDENT

In France, Andre Willem of Belgium was killed June 20 in practice for the Mont Ventoux Hill Climb near Carpentras.

Australian Thomas Sulman died March 30 in Sydney; Briton Martin Brain was killed May 25 at Silverstone—both in local sports car club races.

Apart from car racing, at least eight motorcyclists have died on the tracks so far this year—five during the Isle of Man Trourist Trophy series earlier this month.

Announcing the most long awaited gasoline development in history!

BEFORE
"A clear balloon was attached to the exhaust pipe of this car with the engine running. The balloon began to fill with dirty exhaust until it looked like this—showing how exhaust emissions from dirty engines go into the air—and waste mileage."

Scott Carpenter
Astronaut/Aquanaut
Personally witnesses this dramatic demonstration.

AFTER F-310
"The same car—after running on just six tanksful of Chevron with Formula F-310. Dirty exhaust emissions reduced sharply. The balloon remains clear! No dirty smoke. F-310 turns dirty smoke into good clean mileage."

Now, research scientists at Chevron Research Company have developed a remarkable new gasoline additive—Formula F-310*—that sharply reduces dirty exhaust from dirty engines. And helps toward cleaner air.

Tests conducted by Scott Research Laboratories, an independent research group, showed that Chevron gasolines with F-310 reduced unburned hydrocarbon and carbon monoxide emissions dramatically. Clearly, this is an important step towards solving one of today's major problems.

F-310 also improves mileage, because dirty exhaust is really wasted gasoline. So F-310 literally keeps good mileage from going up in smoke.

What causes an engine to produce dirty exhaust in the first place? Over a period of time, deposits makes engines "run rich." They actually consume more gasoline than they can burn efficiently. Result: wasted gasoline goes out the exhaust pipe as unburned hydrocarbons, along with increased carbon monoxide emissions. You can even see the emissions as dirty smoke. And you can feel—and hear—the rough idling. It all adds up to a car that is unnecessarily emitting dirty exhaust and wasting gasoline. Just six tanksful with F-310 can correct the condition.

Formula F-310, a patented gasoline additive, is now in both grades of Chevron gasolines at all Chevron Dealers Standard Stations in the Lower Mainland and on Vancouver Island. As soon as additional supplies are available, we'll be introducing this remarkable development elsewhere throughout British Columbia.

NERVE GAS NOT WANTED

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate voted Monday to ban the shipment of nerve gas to the United States from Okinawa and authorized funds for its destruction or detoxification.

The action came on a 51-to-40 roll-call vote adopting an amendment by Senator Mike Gravel (Dem. Alaska) to the foreign military sales bill.

Gravel told the Senate that the U.S. Army originally planned to ship the gas from storage in Okanawa to the Ematilla army depot in Hermiston, Ore., but abandoned the plan because of opposition by the governors and senators from Oregon and Washington.

Sauce, Sentiment in Decade of Smile Shows

By AUDREY JOHNSON

There are hundreds of perennial summer visitors to Victoria who would feel as let down if they could not visit Jerry Gosley's Smile Show, as they would if there were no hanging baskets and no china shops.

The show, billed as "The only British music hall on the North American continent," has the reputation of being a must of seekers after the old-world charm of Victoria.

Like most of the items that come under this heading, it is not actually typical of Victoria. But nobody worries about factualism so long as they are being entertained with the right mixture of sauce and sentiment.

The 18th annual Smile Show had its premiere Saturday at Langham Court Theatre, where it will run through Aug. 22.

There are a number of new faces in the gang this year, among them a newcomer from Alberta, Dana Still, who showed up well in several skits.

This year's show also has Dorothy Hosie, back after a long absence and particularly delightful in her light comedy touch; a truly yummy quartet of dancers — Cam Connolly, Lana Check, Dawn-Alena Poulsen and Cynd Connolly; and in-the-groove music by Peter Williams with drummer David Johl.

Bill Dyson, in his second year with the Smile Show, has gained considerably in his ability to integrate with his fellow performers and in audience-contact and poise.

Lacking on opening night was the vim and effervescence that have been so noticeable in many pact editions. The performers just didn't "live it up" all the way. Even Jerry, the old maestro of sock himself, missed the beat more than once.

A general tightening up and energy boost that will probably come as the show settles down will make a vast difference.

Curtain times during the week are 8:30 p.m., with two shows on Saturdays, at 6 and 9 p.m.

CTV Buys U.K. Series

LONDON (CP) — Two popular British television comedy series made by a London independent network have been sold to Canada's CTV in what the British company calls "a major breakthrough in sales to North America."

The programs, Doctor in the House and Please Sir, are the first British domestic comedies to be sold on the North American continent by Britain's independent network, said a spokesman for London Weekend Television, the company responsible for the sale.

London Weekend has acquired a systems converter which enabled it to make the color programs suitable for screening in Canada. Britain and North America use different color systems.

Two series of each program have been sold, making 52 in all. Doctor in the House, based on the popular book and movie of that title, is the saga of a bunch of medical students and their adventures. Please Sir, which has been sold to 14 other countries, deals with the tribulations of an idealistic school teacher faced with dead-end kids in a tough slum school in London.

CARILLON CONCERTS SCHEDULED

During the summer, carillon concerts will be performed Sundays at 3 p.m., Wednesdays at 12 noon, and Fridays at 7:30 p.m. from the Provincial Museum bell tower.

An extra concert will be performed at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday. Another special performance will be given Saturday by Leen 't Hart, director of the Netherlands Carillon School at Amersfoot. His concert will begin at 7:30 p.m.

The sound of bells can also be heard by means of the automatic playing equipment every hour between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Princes Take Tumble

Prince Philip, 49, who has been wearing his right wrist in a sling because of an old polo injury, was spilled when his pony stumbled and fell. He walked off the field but was taken to hospital with torn ligaments in his right shoulder. He returned to Windsor Castle after an X-ray.

Prince Charles, 21, landed on his back when his pony stumbled as he was galloping off the field for a change of horses. He lay on the ground, stunned, for about two minutes but sat up as a doctor ran onto the field.

VICTORIA, B.C., TUESDAY, JUNE 30, 1970 —PAGE 17

They're Set

By PAT DUFOUR

Today is one of steady preparation in the Inner Harbor as skippers and crews of the 23 yachts competing in the Victoria-Maui race, which starts off Brotchie Ledge at 3 p.m. Wednesday, check gear and store the final items on the victualling list.

Both the winners of the two previous races to the Hawaiian Islands are poised for action Wednesday.

Bill Killam's Porpoise III, which won in 1968, will have a Royal Victoria Yacht Club sailor in her crew. Barney Angus, who crewed in his father's yacht Tiffany in 1968, will round out a crew list that includes Bill's son, Rick; Bill Cotie, Tom Rogers of Shelbourne, N.S., and Brian Lagden.

Killam had a full-time cook aboard in the last race. This time he plans to share the chores.

The winner of the first race, sailed in 1965, is also back. Then she was known as Long Gone and owned by the race's originator, J. G. Innes of Royal Vancouver. She's now the Puffin II, being raced by W. E. Lund of the same club.

Innes will be racing his new Long Gone in his bid for a repeat performance.

The two smallest boats in the race are both Cal 30s, the smallest to ever take on the 2,300-mile testing. They are W. M. Black's Whale's Tail and Dr. Grant Fletcher's Rasalhague.

Fletcher and his crew, who sail out of San Francisco, have been preparing for this race for three years. He estimates the cost in additional gear to be about $5,000.

Every inch of Rasalhague has been used to accommodate gear and an inventory of sails that includes four spinnakers and six jibs. Fletcher, of San Francisco, will have aboard his two sons, Chris and Stephen, Russ Kubiak and Ted Pearson.

On the faculty of Stanford University's medical school, Fletcher is taking time out from a sabbatical year. "The president is also a sailing man so it's OK with him."

The boat with the biggest handicap rating in the race is Lol Killam's Graybeard. After the race Killam plans to cruise his 73-foot ketch for 1½ years.

Another boat that will be taking off for points south after the race is Ralph Higgins' Gabrielle II of Royal Vic.

The navy's ketch HMCS Oriole will be pacing it out for another time under a new skipper, Lt.-Cmdr. Peter Cox. Two other local boats will be in contention for the second time. They are Don Lawson's Cubara and Wally Meakes' Potlatch II, both of Royal Vic.

Wednesday will begin early with a skippers' briefing scheduled for 10 a.m. and a weather session slated an hour later.

●

Overhaul Urged by Jury In Ocean Racing Rules

The need for yacht clubs to tighten safety regulations for ocean-going races was stressed Monday when a coroner's jury found that two couples lost near Race Rocks June 6 died because of lack of sailing experience and the unsuitability of their vessel.

The six-man jury brought in a verdict of accidental death, due to asphyxiation through drowning of Arthur Collis, 32, and his wife, Margaret Hazel Collis, 30, of 2531 Orchard, and John Alfred Goodman, 35, and his wife, Donna, 28, of 330 Moss.

They found that no blame should be placed for the drownings, which occurred when Collis' 23-foot Cub Sugar foundered during a race to Port Angeles.

Evidence showed that the sponsors of the race, the Esquimalt Squadron, Canadian Forces Sailing Association, had not laid down sufficient safety requirements. Fleet captain Gordon Mains said this would be done in the future.

The jury also recommended:

- Coast guards be informed of all such races.
- Correct weather reports be promulgated before the start of such race.
- The federal department of transport be asked to revise regulations on small craft.
- That boats be required to have lifelines and grappling poles.
- That crews of boats in such races be experienced.

Coroner Edmond St. Jorre commended the jury on its findings and recommendations, a copy of which, will be sent to the transport department.

Salvation Army Over the Top

The Salvation Army raised a total of $85,000 in this year's Red Shield Appeal, $2,400 more than its target, campaign director Maj. Hugh Tilley announced today.

Last year's campaign total was $79,176.

Elda Anderson's residential division helped push the 1970 campaign over the top by raising $45,850 — more than half of the entire campaign quota.

Lyle Wicks, general chairman of the campaign committee, expressed his gratitude to the canvassers who worked on the Army's behalf and to the citizens of Greater Victoria who supported the campaign.

The Army spends over $500,000 annually in community service work in the Greater Victoria area, said Tilley.

New One-Way Streets Planned for September

Victoria traffic engineer Dave Campbell this morning unveiled plans for conversion of Johnson and Pandora to one-way traffic by Sept. 20, 1970.

Campbell told a meeting of council's traffic committee the plan would solve traffic problems on the streets for the next two years.

After that, he said, Pandora and Johnson will be connected with Shelbourne Street via Begbie Street.

The interim plan, approved by the traffic committee, will turn Johnson into a one-way street going east and Pandora one-way going west into the downtown core.

Pandora will begin its one-way flow into the city at Vancouver. Johnson traffic routed into Pandora at Vancouver will continue eastward in a two-way flow.

Campbell said the access lanes from Johnson into Pandora at Vancouver may damage the root system of a nearby tree. But he said it was impossible to re-route the lanes without impairing the flow of traffic.

"I think sometimes we're a little bit too prone to criticize our professional staff when it comes to cutting down trees," said Mayor Courtney Haddock.

Esquimalt Shuns Campbell

Esquimalt council Monday night decided unanimously to reject Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell's suggestion that services in the four core municipalties be jointly operated.

Mayor Arthur Young said today the feeling of the council is that Esquimalt would be getting "the wrong end of the stick" in Campbell's proposal because the Esquimalt police and fire departments are already amalgamated.

Campbell in a letter to Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt councils last week "strongly" suggested that fire and police protection services, accounting and auditing services, garbage disposal services and assessment machinery be studied along with possible standardization of municipal forms, establishment of a single municipal purchasing commission and pooling of public works equipment.

The subject of the review, Campbell's letter said, would be "in terms of achieving a better functional unit into which to put the local tax dollar."

Ald. Walter Lock, at the council meeting Monday, said Esquimalt had the top services in the community and if the municipality lost control of these, it would lose its efficiency.

Victoria, Saanich and Oak Bay councils as well as Campbell would be informed by letter of Esquimalt's decision, Young said.

Ald. Arthur Mebs challenged Victoria city council's request that all four municipalities share the cost of a proposed training centre for firemen located near the Red Lion Motor Inn in Saanich.

200 Persons Thumb Down Big Townhouse Project

Plans for a $1.3 million 52-unit townhouse project at 1260 Tattersall Drive in Saanich went down to defeat Monday night in the face of strong residential opposition at a public hearing attended by 200 persons.

Five letters and 16 persons spoke in opposition to the plans of Yorkshire Financial Corporation and C. J. Oliver and council voted 5 to 3 to turn down the rezoning bid.

Reasons for residential opposition included devaluation of their property, traffic problems, intrusion into a unique and beautiful area of single-family houses and the development itself.

Mrs. J. A. Pelter, 1262 Tattersall, objected to "all those children roaring around, throwing balls in my back garden."

Malcolm Mitchell, 1270 Tattersall, said the development would be "degrading to the area."

For the developers, John Kay said the land is rocky and difficult to subdivide conventionally. Seventy per cent of the land would be open space under the proposal which he described as a quality one.

Average selling price would be $25,000 to $26,000 in 10 quadruplexes and two six-unit townhouses.

He did not feel extra traffic would create a hazard on Tattersall, that discussion of road improvement occurred before his application and taxes would represent $15,000 a year over building 19 houses.

'CRYING FOR QUALITY'

Ald. William Noel argued that the concept is "a violation of a first-class residential district."

Ald. Edith Gunning said Saanich has been "crying" for quality design and imaginative housing and this was offered.

When she said the architect was "very sensitive" to the natural environment, there were loud groans from the audience before Mayor Hugh Curtis crashed his gavel for order.

A proposal by Kasapi Construction for 12 units of row housing on the south side of Arrow Road, opposite Bow, produced 18 persons to speak in opposition.

They said it was not in keeping with the character of the area, and several wanted to know if the units would be sold or rented.

LESS SAFETY

R. J. Calton, 3974 Livingstone, told the hearing "we don't want transients coming in, depreciating these boxes and reducing the whole value of the area." He said it would result in more traffic, noise and congestion and less safety for children.

Arthur Mayse . . .

AS AN EXPERIMENT, I have just asked a few Canadians of different age brackets what they call July 1.

To each of them, it was Dominion Day, and a couple added "of course" by way of emphasis. However, two others felt that Canada Day would be an improvement, and one came out strongly for Confederation Day.

That last opinion may be the winning one. A private member's bill to come before the Commons will give it official sanction, if passed.

But until or unless such approval is given, Dominion Day it remains, with a yet-urepealed Act of Parliament to pin it down.

Perhaps Confederation Day would better mark the completion of what the first Dominion Day began. For our union of 10 provinces and two territories didn't spring to life full-blown.

It was born of dissent and crisis. The miracle is that it came to birth at all.

In the beginning there were Ontario and Quebec, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. This was Confederation in 1867.

The process was not complete until 1949, when Newfoundland overcame her misgivings and accepted provincial status.

So Confederation as it stands was 82 years in the making, and hard work all the way. You'll find that long struggle toward full-scale nationhood detailed in our histories.

And having read, you may decide that the name we finally settle on for July 1 matters a great deal less than the fact that we have managed to evolve a self-governing nation unlike any other on earth.

We are not British or French or Americans, even though those nations and many others have helped shape Canada. We are something of our own, with a national identity more plain to others than to us.

However, this matter of identity causes us much less soul-searching than it once did. It may be that we have grown sure enough of our place to put aside such self-conscious probings. In any event, intellectual self-analysis based on the question "What is a Canadian?" appears to have gone out of style.

As Canadians, we have our differences. Some of them are profound, and it will be a long time before we have learned to live fully at ease with them.

But I'm glad of those differences. I hope we never altogether lose them to a melting pot from which emerges the homogenized and perfectly interchangeable Canadian citizen.

I prefer the mosaic. It makes for diversity, and if our differences expose us to certain dangers, I think they also add to our national strength.

British Columbia could never have produced Pierre Trudeau. By the same token, Quebec, for better or worse, couldn't have moulded W. A. C. Bennett.

We are compartmented by provincial attitudes as well as borderlines, and perhaps even more so by our geographical locations.

Transplant a far-wester to the prairies, and he may never get used to the vast, empty sweep of sky and the remote horizons.

I have known people from the prairies who suffered from a sort of claustrophobia in the near presence of mountains.

They felt hemmed in, as they never had in Manitoba or Saskatchewan.

Out here, we plunk instant towns down where all was wilderness before. But go to the fishing village of Port Mouton on the Nova Scotia south shore, and you will find the Atlantic lapping stones of a jetty built by men of Old France before the British came.

We are of many racial stocks. We have weathered rebellions and wars, not to mention depression and recession. Perhaps the chief miracle is that we have managed to persist as a country distinct and unabsorbed in the shadow of colossus.

We have had our troubles. We're still having them, what with inflation and its by-products, and there isn't the slightest reason to suppose that the future doesn't hold problems no easier of solution.

But on Wednesday we make it to another Dominion Day—our 103rd, and possibly the last under that name—with Confederation intact.

Our record is less than flawless. Still, in the Canadian accent which we don't know we have, but that Americans so readily identify, let me state that I'm proud of us!

Ask The Times

Q. Could you please tell me where the quotation "Though every prospect pleases, and only man is vile" comes from?—F.M.H.

A. The quote is taken from the second stanza of Reginald Heber's Missionary Hymn. Heber was an Anglican prelate and hymn writer who became Bishop of Calcutta in 1823. He was born at Malpas, Cheshire, England, in 1783 and died in India in 1826. Fifty-eight of his hymns were included in the book Hymns Written and Adapted to the Weekly Church Service.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

Baked Eggplant Italian Style

Eggplant has long been a favorite vegetable in Italy where it is used in many different dishes.

In Canada, where it is perhaps not so well known, the oval shaped eggplant with the shiny purple skin is gaining in popularity and adding variety to the daily menu.

It is now available in most Victoria grocery stores and is reasonably priced.

BAKED EGGPLANT NAPOLI

½ cup chopped onion

2 tbsp. peanut oil

2 cans (5½ oz. each) tomato paste

2-3 cup water

1½ tsp. salt

1 tsp. oregano leaves

Dash pepper

1 medium eggplant, peeled and thinly sliced

2 cups grated sharp cheddar cheese

In a skillet, saute chopped onions in peanut oil. Add 2 cans of tomato paste, water, salt, oregano and pepper. Bring to a boil and simmer for 15 minutes.

In a greased 2 quart baking dish, alternate layers of sliced eggplant, tomato sauce and 1 cup grated cheese, starting with layer of eggplant and ending with layer of tomato sauce.

Bake in moderatt oven (350 degrees F.) for about 1 hour. A few minutes before removing from oven, sprinkle remaining one cup grated cheese over top and continue heating until cheese melts. (Makes 6 to 8 servings.)

DEAR ABBY . . .

Leave 'Art' Alone

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: While putting socks and underwear in my son's drawer, hidden far back I found several pages of sexy nudies, torn from a girlie magazine. They were folded many times and looked as though they had passed through many hands before reaching my son's. To say I was shocked is putting it mildly, as he is 15½, an officer in the DeMolay, and an upright Christian boy of high ideals. His father died when he was 12, and he and I have always discussed everything openly and I thought we had a good relationship.

After long deliberation, I took the pictures from his hiding place and pasted them on the door of his room. When he came home from school I told him I had "cleaned" his room and had put his "art pictures" where he could see them and enjoy them. He said thanks, and 3 minutes later they were removed by him and put in the trash. Somehow I feel he will never want to collect such things again. Was there a better way to handle this? Mother.

DEAR MOTHER: I suppose because your son took the pictures down, and put them in the trash, you feel you "won." You could be wrong. It is important for young people to know that their privacy will not be violated. I am not accusing you of deliberately snooping, but having come across such "art" — obviously hidden, I think you should have left it alone. All your son will learn from the demonstration you described is that next time he wants to hide something, he'll have to find a better hiding place.

DEAR ABBY: I have been burning since National Secretary's Week. Why should a wife sit home while her husband "honors" his secretary with flowers (he never gives me any), takes her out to lunch and then takes her to dinner? I admit I am jealous. She is young and I no longer am. Why should there be a National Secretary's Week?

I don't see any National Nurse's Week. Or National Janitor's Week. Or National Gas Station Attendant's Week. Or National Store Clerk's Week. What makes secretaries think they are entitled to special consideration? — J. W.

DEAR J. W.: Their bosses.

DEAR ABBY: I have just read a letter signed "Disgusted," who married a man with two children. And she's complaining because she has to take care of them on weekends.

A year ago I married a man whose wife ran off and left him and their five children. The youngest was three, and the eldest was nine. It was a big job I took on, but I haven't regretted it for one minute. My husband is an officer in the Coast Guard and I knew he'd be gone a lot, but we found so much happiness I almost can't believe it. These children are like my very own and they love and appreciate me.

Please print this to let people know that it's possible to marry a man with small children and be happy. By the way, I'm 24 and my wonderful husband is 29. Carol In Astoria.

DEAR CAROL. Please congratulate your wonderful husband for me. He picked a wonderful wife.

CONFIDENTIAL TO LISA: I don't think he was "confessing." I think he was bragging. (And possibly, lying.)

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Letter writing can be a breeze. For Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069.

Granny in a Bunny Suit Preaches Youth Secret

By SANDI GOULD

DAYTON, Ohio (UPI) — Telling middle-aged women they can look and feel a lot younger is the goal of Terri Blake, a 67-year-old grandmother who wears a handmade bunny suit.

"I tell them they can do anything they put their minds to," Mrs. Blake said Sunday while celebrating her golden wedding anniversary with her husband, Russell.

"At 50 I began to do things I had always wanted to do, as a young girl," she said. "Not everyone my age dances, sings, travels, covers the public-speaking tour, paints apartments and jumps on the trampoline."

"Last summer I took up swimming and earned a trophy for swimming 22 miles. This summer I'm determined to become a better golfer."

Terri, who has a 38-26-35 figure, was orphaned at a young age and then married while a teen-ager.

"It's like living your life backwards," she said.

Terri said the greatest fear women have is age.

"I just tell them to look like you're going to meet the man you love," she said.

"I do my own hair, take good care of my skin and get plenty of vitamins.

"I think nothing of golfing, then going to the 'Y' for a swim and sauna afterwards.

"I just never gave up," the pert little grandmother added. "Just pulled the bootstraps a little tighter and went on to my next aid.

"If I ever thought I would fail, then I'd admit my age. But I know I can do almost anything I put my mind to and I will."

sew simple

By EUNICE FARMER

Dear Eunice Farmer, Although I have done my sewing since I was a teenager, I don't feel qualified to make a suit or coat. I'm sure I'm not the only person who is concerned about the new longer length. If we want to experiment with a dress to see whether it's becoming, what will happen when we wear it with our old coats? Mrs. L. S.

Dear Mrs. L. S.: This is going to hit the American women with a bang this fall. It reminds me about the years when all of our coats had three-quarter length sleeves. Suddenly, the new look was long sleeves in our dresses, and we had another coat problem.

Guess the best advice is to tell you to get to the sewing machine as fast as possible and brush up on every new technique you can learn. By fall you will be qualified to make a new coat. This new styling is certainly going to make those of us who can sew feel more than lucky. The new length will be a matter of choice, not necessity.

Canadian Kitchens Under Discussion

TORONTO — When more than 800 top food and nutrition experts meet here next week, they will hear medical evidence that indicates:

- Canadians are not as well fed as had been assumed.
- Certain malnutrition signs are relatively common in some segments of the population.
- The effects of food additives and non-nutritional substances and pesticides on diet requires intensive study.

This year's meeting at the King Edward Hotel from July 6 to 10 is the first time in ten years that the Canadian Dietetic Association and the Canadian Home Economics Association will hold a joint meeting.

One of the highlights of the convention will be a major address about Nutrition Canada, a national nutrition survey being conducted by the federal food and drug directorate in co-operation with the ten provincial health departments.

The survey was prompted by evidence which indicates Canadians may have been too complacent in assuming all was well in the national kitchen.

A pilot project currently is being conducted in the Wellington country of Ontario. The major survey will begin in September and will involve many of the home economists and dieticians attending the conference.

Other major addresses will emphasize the implications of convenience foods on diet and the social effects of poor housing in a community, with special reference to the children.

Canadian Studies Prepare Teen-Ager For Exchange Trip to South Africa

For Victoria teen-ager Mimi Doyle, 17, school will begin again in July.

Mimi, a Grade 11 Mount Douglas Secondary student who lives with her parents at 4435 Shelbourne, is one of two Victoria students selected to attend school in a foreign country for one year as a Rotary exchange student.

Mimi's destination is South Africa; Gail Baran, also attending Mount Doug, will live in southern Australia.

For Mimi, the news that she will be definitely on her way July 19 is a welcome climax to an eight-month period of interviews, letters, phone calls, worrying and waiting.

"I can't really believe it yet," she said.

"I hate the thought of leaving all my friends. I know I could just stay here and have fun and not make the effort. But this is the chance of a lifetime."

Mimi explained that she will be staying with five or six different Rotarian families during the year in Goodwood, a suburb of Cape Town. The families of the exchange students must pay for transportation to their destination but the Rotary Club will finance their schooling.

While in South Africa she will be expected to speak to different groups on Canada, said Mimi. She plans to spend the next few weeks studying up on her home country.

A seasoned traveller, Mimi lived with her parents in Nigeria from 1952 to 1956.

In view of the tense racial and political situation in South Africa she has been warned of the danger in speaking out on any controversial issue while living in that country, said Mimi.

"I might not agree with some of the things I see but I'm a visitor in the country and it is not my place to say anything. This will be a good chance to see the situation there at first hand and perhaps try to understand some of the reasons behind it."

Mimi was the guest of honor at a surprise going-away party Friday night, organized by her school friends, at the home of Dr. Ron Grant.

Forums to Inform New Foster Parents

The Family and Children's Service will hold group discussions with foster parents and prospective foster parents four times a month, supervisor Bernice Packford said Monday.

"This has come about as a direct request from the foster parents," she said.

Forums will include two social workers and experienced foster parents who will try to provide information and help to new foster parents and those interested in entering the program.

The first meeting was held Monday. The next forum will take place at the Junction Centre Building, 1627 Fort Street, on Monday at 8 p.m. Further information may be obtained by calling 382-5121.

Mrs. Packford said the F and CS needs foster homes for families at the present time. There are two brothers, eight and 10, and a family of three, five to 15 years old, needing a family environment.

"Most of the children come from broken homes or homes where they cannot receive the proper care. Many of them are already in trouble for pilfering.

"It's not that the parents don't care. They are just unable to look after the children," said Mrs. Packford.

Quinns Visit B.C. House

Commodore and Mrs. Howard L. Quinn, formerly of Beach Drive, Victoria, signed the visitors' book at British Columbia House, London recently.

The Quinns had just returned from the Far East where Commodore Quinn, now retired and associated with a Victoria based marine consultants firm, had spent four months studying the use of hovercrafts and hydrofoils in the Fiji Islands.

The couple also visited New Zealand, Australia, Malaysia, Borneo, Taiwan, Hong Kong and West Africa.

Gernreich Predicts Peacockery's Wane

Rudi Gernreich, inventor of the topless bathing suit for women and a pace-setting designer, sees the day you'll wear a utilitarian, logical uniform.

It will consist of what he had on at a designer speak-in for the nation's fashion reporters in New York. That look: black slacks, long-sleeved matching knit sweater zipped from wrist to neck. But that's not all. You'll also carry a shoulder-bag.

Wearing such, you can forget what you have on. Gernreich, said that's important.

He's been wearing such a uniform for several years and even feels it's okay at black tie affairs.

Miss Frith Fashions meets the Challenge!
by Wyn Sinclair

This message answers a host of questions concerning the existing fashion debate!

The era of a one-length wardrobe is over, and the new fashion philosophy hits it right on the nose, or should we say the leg?

We can reassure our fashion conscious customer that she doesn't have to change her entire wardrobe . . . the midi length is just a new addition. For Fall, we are ranging from mini to midi! Today, no matter what shape the legs are in, there is (and we have) a length that will cover or uncover them.

The midi will be at its best in coats and raincoats — often teamed with a mini dress. Midi dresses and skirts will have buttons and zippers so that the wearer can, at will, show as much or as little leg as she chooses!

With all the talk about midis, our prediction is that they will represent only a small percentage of the industries' total sales. We, at Miss Friths, will of course have our usual depth and breadth of timely fashions for all occasions.

This soft little dress was created by Meredith Gladstone for National Hand Knitting Yarn Association's fashion booklet. The sleeved, low-necked bodice is crocheted in an open stitch. The skirt is then knitted in a simulated rib stitch. Crochet buttons and a cap complete the ensemble. (Fashion League Photo.)

Fashion Exports Increase

The federal government of Canada has announced a fashion design assistance program to encourage creativity in Canada's own fashion industry. Funds will be used to promote Canadian fashion and to assist people who want to take advanced work in fashion skills.

The Canadian fashion industry has now developed to the point where exports are becoming important. Rainwear from Canada is proving successful in the United States which still exports a good deal of fashion to Canada.

The Canadian government would like to see the fashion trade grow between the two countries while creating prestige within Canada for the native fashion talent.

Designers Create Styles With Knitters in Mind

By FLORENCE de SANTIS

Want to stay with the wardrobe of lengths, have minis and midis at will? Then knit or crochet your own, from the designer collection just now dreamed up for the National Hand Knitting Yarn Association.

Translating all of the current silhouettes and lengths into dresses, pants outfits, coats and skirt-plus separates, the designers range from sportswear to great costumes.

For new-look minis, turn to Chippy Irvine, who does a little skirt in crocheted afghan squares, mates it to a ribby pullover. From The Artichoke comes a crocheted multi-color dress with brief flippy skirt and matching beret. Meredith Gladstone uses two kinds of needlework in an enchanting little mini dress with a long-sleeved crocheted bodice above a simulated rib knit skirt.

Erika Elias does her mini look with a long vest to knit in a stockinette stitch, an edging of crochet border in a contrast color. She puts it over a matching skirt, adds a long-sleeved oval-necked pullover in a narrow rib stitch. Howard Lawrence's cable-knit mini has a turtleneck and a long scarf.

Now do a switch to the longer lengths with Victor Joris, who pioneered the midi and citypants. He contributes a three-part outfit with an ankle-length sleeveless coat worn over contrasting pants and pullover. The coat is to be knit in a sculptured pattern stitch that contrasts with the flat knit of the pants and tunic. Jan Justin of Don Sophisticates also contributes a long look in her sleeveless midi coat, banded in contrasting color, paired to pants and pull, to which she adds an elfin peaked cap and bulky mittens.

Ken Merritt's knit midi coat has hem interest in a contrast Greek key motif. Gayle Kirkpatrick suggests a skinny, floor-length jumper, its neck scooped out to a deep U, knit in a three-color plaid pattern. For a jumpsuit, turn to Patti Cappalli's knit with scarf and beret.

All of these special new designs can be had by sending a large, stamped, self-addressed envelope to the National Hand Knitting Yarn Association, 15 East 26th Street, N.Y., N.Y. 10010, Dept. N.

Patchwork is the word for fall, the real thing made by mountain women for doing up into Longuette skirts, or prints for casual pants.

Use wild fabrics for sportswear, such as crushed velvet, denim splashed as if with with paint, or tie-dyed, in pop art comic strip prints.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

People contemplating a divorce, or going through one, or who have recently gone through one, could get tremendous help from a fine book written by Mrs. Carol Mindey, "The Divorced Mother." As she says, oftentimes the most distressing consequence of divorce is the great nervous injury that follows, perhaps mainly to the wife. Many mothers and their children suffer overwhelming despair, loneliness and panic in the early weeks, and some women even contemplate suicide. Mrs. Mindey offers much sensible advice on how to overcome the emotional stresses, and she urges that some women get help from a good therapist.

Mrs. Mindey says she lived as a divorcee for almost six years. Her marriage failure was the greatest personal tragedy of her life, but it gave her the chance to grow as a woman and to have a way of life more suited to her values and desires and needs. As she says inherforeword, "I hope to communicate to the divorcee or potential divorcee with children that most of the anguish, anxiety, disillusionment, and sense of failure that accompany divorce in our culture today is unnecessary and can be avoided."

* * *

The book is filled with much specific information on the legal and technical aspects of divorce, and a woman can learn how to find a good lawyer, what the proper conduct is during the predivorce period, and how to survive the actual day in court. She gives advice and information on learning how to handle financial matters and when and whether to get a job, how to handle relationships with the neighbors and family; she has a chapter on children of divorce, on the divorcee and the man in her life, and how to adjust to divorce.

She say that each year, about a half million children under 18 become children of divorce. "As of 1961, there were 7 million stepchildren," often because of divorce. There is a book by Anne Simon, "Stepchild in the Family" that Mrs. Mindey recommends. Look for these books at your local library or bookstore.

If the father deserts them and vanishes and the mother gets no child support money, she may have to go to work, and her life may become very exhausting.

Mrs. Mindey says so truly that sometimes two people who are mentally divorced are unwise in remaining together for the sake of the children. I have had such children say to me that they suffered much from living "on a volcano that any minute might blow up." Mrs. Mindey advises that the mother talk over the impending divorce with the children. She should assure the children that no matter what happens, she will love them and take good care of them.

The mother should not do as many divorced women do, and make it hard for the children to see the father. That does much harm. It is good when the children see their father often, and when they continue to love him. They are likely then to be more normal sexually as they grow up, and more likely to date and marry.

If the husband wants to be a decent human being, he must do what he can to help his wife to support the children and educate them well. The mother must not resent it if her ex-husband spoils the children and tries to win them away from her.

Mrs. Mindey says that she now believes that genuine love is impossible for the woman who lacks self-esteem. "Perhaps your biggest problem during marriage was that you did not think yourself a worthwhile human being." She also says, so wisely, "The act of divorce usually solves nothing for an individual. You may sincerely believe you are getting rid of your biggest problem — your mate — only to discover your biggest problem has always been you."

* * *

She says she feels now that a great love consists of having superb communication on four levels: emotional, intellectual, physical, and spiritual. She says that if you think that your marriage failed largely because of misinformation in regard to sex or sexual inadequacy, get the most competent help available, and move on to a new and more satisfying phase of your life. She lists a number of good books that can give helpful information on a number of related subjects.

She says that sometimes, with the right partner, a happy love is possible. She also speaks ofthe harm that is done to many women by the anti-sexual bias of Christianity. The idea that many women get in their girlhood that sex is dirty, and something that must just be put up with in order to hold a husband, can be very destructive later to a marriage.

I will say again that this is a splendid book to help those who are facing the many problems of divorce.

HI THERE!!
I'm a bright and cheerfull 4 bedroom home looking for some new owners. Some of the charming features that are contained with my 1850 sq. ft. of delightful living area are a huge in-line living and dining room, a sparkling electric kitchen with eating area, 1½ bathrooms and a drive-in garage in my basement plus a separate double garage and work shop.
I am comfortably situated on a large, convenient lot with some fruit trees in my back yard.
I must admit however, that I am a little upset with the low price that my owners are asking for me because I am worth much more.
Call my agent
H. F. (HERM) WILLIAMS
and discuss how I can be purchased for the meager price of $17,900 with as little as $1,500 down and payments of onit $170 per month.

TAKE ADVANTAGE OF A BUYER'S MARKET
Today's home buyers are exercising much discrimination. As a result, only the GENUINE BARGAINS are selling. Here, I feel, is one such buy. This newly listed builder's show home (4 years ago) features 1380 sq. ft. on a 100' fr. lot with SEAVIEW and Cul-de-sac setting. The IMPRESSIVE interior includes OLD BRICK in entry, fireplace and kitchen walls; BEAUTIFUL oak parquet floors in all three large bedrooms. UTILITY and BEAUTY are combined in the open, roomy kitchen. There's financing too: about $15,000 existing at 7¼ per cent. BEST OF ALL— owners have listed at the EXACT D. F. H. market value estimate of $28,350. To view call

She's 45 And Groom Twice That

VANCOUVER (CP) — There's a little bit of a generation gap between Leung Toe Ming and the woman he married.

In fact, there's a generation gap between Leung and just about everybody else in the world. The bride, Lee Sui King, is 45.

Leung is an optimistic 98.

The bride arrived here May 26 from Hong Kong, where she had been living for three years after leaving mainland China. She had never met Leung, but they had been corresponding for some time.

Leung, whose first wife died many years ago, said the reason he decided to remarry was that he needed somebody to help him around the house.

So, last Wednesday the couple trooped into the registrar's office where the wedding ceremony was performed.

Environment Council Suggested

OTTAWA (CP) — The Science Council of Canada is preparing to advise that the federal government set up an environmental council on the short-term and long-term effects of man's impact on the world around him.

Many questions about the agency are still in the discussion stage but informants said Monday that the council will give notice of its intentions early next month.

One possibility is that the Council will make a special report to Prime Minister Trudeau outlining its views of the needs for and purposes of a special environmental agency.

Air, water and other forms of pollution are only a small part of the problem as currently envisaged by the Science Council study group doing spadework for the Council's debate on the subject.

A major factor is population growth and the optimum population for this country.

This is a particular interest of Dr. O. M. Solandt, Science Council chairman, who is publicly on record as saying Canada in the next two years should decide what the optimum population should be and take steps to keep it there.

STUDY U.S. MOVES

The Science Council study group has taken a look at the United States' environmental council of which President Nixon is chairman and the various alternatives put forward before that structure was adopted.

For Canada, the possibilities being discussed include a kind of permanent royal commission such as in Britain, a special agency modelled on the Science Council, the Science Council itself and a small commission composed of fulltime members.

The latter proposal is being put forward as a solution to the problem of part-time members tending to act as spokesmen for their fulltime jobs as sometimes occurs with the Science Council.

Because of Canada's jurisdictional problems, it also is being suggested that some form of joint federal-provincial environmental agency be set up.

The Science Council has two main routes for letting the government and the public know its final thinking.

One is through the conventional bound volume of the study group's report and the Council's recommendations on it. This is slow and cumbersome and, with 10 such volumes on various topics at different stages of preparation, the Council may opt for an open letter to Mr. Trudeau following up later with more detailed presentation of its case.

Victoria Defends Insecticide Use

The insecticide Phosphamidon, used by the Victoria parks department to spray trees, is not concentrated enough to harm human beings, birds and animals, parks director Herb Warren said Monday.

"The insecticide is diluted in a solution of one pint for every 100 gallons of water, the equivalent amount for spraying the material over an acre of foliage," he said.

Warren was answering a charge in a letter to the editor (Times, June 27) from Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley, 652 Battery, who wanted to know why the city is using Phosphamidon.

She said literature from the company which makes the insecticide says the chemical is poisonous to human beings and suggests doctors in areas where Phosphamidon is used should be aware of its symptoms.

PRECAUTIONS

Warren said the city uses a number of precautions whenever it sprays with Phosphamidon, even though the solution is diluted.

He said work crews never spray on windy days, and they keep people away when they are working. The solution is never used in blanket spraying of several trees, but only on trees with aphids or other chewing insects.

Each parks department worker who uses the insecticide receives a test one or twice a year to determine whether any Phosphamidon is in his body.

"We have used this chemical for four or five years with no problems," Warren said.

PLASTIC SUITS

He also said the department never has had an instance when one of its staff has been poisoned by the insecticide.

Mrs. Stanley stated that parks crews are protected by plastic suits and respirators when spraying, but no protection exists for children playing in the area.

Warren said a Workmen's Compensation Board regulation requires staff to wear protective clothing, but this does not mean the spraying is as dangerous as it looks.

"A lot of people are concerned about insecticides, particularly DDT. And when they see these men looking like they're from outer space, they get worried."

Residue from in the insecticide is absorbed into the plant within an hour after it is sprayed, he said. Phosphamidon does not remain on the surface of plants where it might result in harmful contact.

You can't send the kid up in a crate like that! But they did. The bush pilots who opened up our north country flew in open cockpits with rain in the face and wind whining in the struts. After a trip like that, they were ready for a brew like Old Style. Today it's still slow-brewed the natural way, for men who appreciate a down-to-earth flavour.

Perennials Can't Be Ignored

By HILDA BEASTALL

Our flowering perennials depend on us for their lives — quite literally.

If we let them go to seed the plants will soon die and, in some cases, seedlings will replace the original plants which were selected for expecially desirable qualities. Lupins and delphiniums are two perennials showing this characteristic most clearly. Both set an enormous quantity of seed, and being "spike" flowers, the lowest ones are already pollinated and setting seed before the topmost blossoms have opened.

Hilda

For best health of these plants, flower stems should be cut when about two-thirds open. They can be used in arrangements indoors by removing the lower faded flowers.

At the latest, the flower stems should be removed when the last buds open, so that the plant does not expend its energies in producing seed.

Gardeners ask "When do I cut down the lupins and the delphiniums?"

The process is scarcely a matter of cutting down the plants, for we must be careful not to remove any leaves which are green and otherwise in good condition.

Leaves are needed by these plants throughout summer to feed the roots for next year's blooms. If we cut off the leaves, its almost as bad as if we allowed seeds to ripen.

Either way we deplete the storage parts—the roots.

Healthy delphiniums and lupin leaves are attractive in the garden during summer, but to keep them so we must see that plenty of water is given from now until September.

Too often we neglect them after blooming with the result that mildew withers the foliage, making it grey and unsightly.

Finally, it is reduced to a crisp.

Delphiniums will benefit from a teaspoon of dry balanced fertilizer spread now around each plant, well washed in and followed by an inch mulch with old compost or old manure.

For the lupins, leave out the fertilizer, but give the watering, followed by a mulch.

You will probably get a few more flowers in fall from both lupins and delphiniums, but be careful not to allow seed to set.

In fact if you want show specimens for next year, you should remove all flower spikes as they form in fall, not allowing them to open.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED L. KARPIN

Once upon a time, a husband and wife were playing as partners in a rubber-bridge game. The husband had purchased a contract for four spades. He had first misbid the hand, and had then misplayed it. His wife was so furious at his lack of proficiency that she ran to her mother's bedroom, found the family pistol, and promptly shot him dead. She was subsequently tried for homicide, and acquitted.

Does the above sound like a Hollywood script? Well, it isn't. It happened in Kansas City, Kansas, in 1929. The errant victim was John G. Bennett, and his partner was his wife, Myrtle. The case was known as "The Bennett Murder Case." Here is the deal that caused the tragedy. Mr. Bennett was sitting south, and Mrs. Bennett was North.

The bidding:

Opening lead: Ace of ◇.

With respect to Mr. Bennett's opening bid, one might say that he had insuffiecent values, and suffered an unusually heavy penalty for his transgression.

After winning the diamond ace, West shifted to the jack of clubs at trick two, Bennett's king winning. The jack of trumps was then led, and when West followed with the deuce, Dummy's ace was put up. The 10 of spades was played next, East discarded a diamond, and South's king won the trick.

Now South trumped his remaining diamond, after which he led dummy's ace of clubs. Then came the nine of clubs, East put up the queen, and South ruffed with the five of spades, West over-ruffing with the queen.

West now cashed the ace of hearts, and then led a low heart, East's queen being taken by declarer's king. At this point, dummy had the six of trumps left, while declarer had the eight and nine. Both of dummy's clubs were high, but South couldn't reach them to discard is two low hearts. So he had to lose a heart, and went down.

Had Bennett finessed West for the trump queen, or, failing that, had he preserved North's 10 of trumps as a future entry for the cashing of dummy's to-be-established clubs, the contract would have been fulfilled. But fate—or perhaps a stubborn refusal to take bridge lessons—decreed otherwise.

LAD SURVIVES 30-FOOT FALL

HEMEL HEMPSTEAD, England (UPI) — Dickie Moore, 8, went sleep-walking recently and fell 30 feet from his second storey bedroom onto a concrete patio. His only injury was two missing teeth.

"Doctors said Dickie was saved from serious injury because he was asleep and relaxed when he fell," Robert Moore, his father said.

SOLUTION THURSDAY

Tough Law Hits British Casinos

LONDON (AP) — From bingo to baccarat, gambling in Britain goes puritan Wednesday—shorn of Playboy bunnies with plunging necklines, music, cabaret, dancing and gangsters.

"We are trying to lay down a pattern for legalized commercial gambling in this country on a scale which does not exist in any other country," he says.

Biggest targets are Britain's 1,000 casinos, a mushrooming phenomenon of the 1960s which grew through loopholes in a badly written attempt to give legal sanction to home or bona-fide club gambling.

Beginning Wednesday, instead of 1,000 casinos scattered over the islands, there will be fewer than 200 concentrated in 30 geographical areas. The rules are so tough that about half didn't even apply for a licenee. Less than half who did got turned down.

Londoners will have access to casino gambling only in the West End, Chelsea and Knightsbridge—the posh and high-priced districts.

Bingo hasn't suffered the same shrinkage. Of 2,066 bingo hall applications the board granted nearly 1,800. An estimated 8,000,000 Britons, mostly women, play bingo regularly.

Casino gambling will operate under most stringent rules.

Actress Fined

LONDON (Reuters) — Actress Marianne Faithfull was fined £500 ($1,250) here for trying to evade customs duty on an expensive mink coat. The 23-year-old former girlfriend of Rolling Stone Mick Jagger admitted making a false declaration to customs officers at London's Heathrow Airport.

Materials Index Shows Decline

OTTAWA (CP) — Softer lumber and concrete prices led to a decline in the Dominion Bureau of Statistics building materials price indexes in May, the bureau has reported.

The index of residential building materials declined to 138.5 from 138.7 in April, and the non-residential materials index eased to 129.3 from 129.4. They were 145.0 and 126.7 respectively in May, last year.

Both indexes are based on 1961 prices equalling 100. The residential materials index was down 4.5 per cent from a year earlier, with lumber prices down 9.5 per cent.

—Always remembered, mother and Morgan.

PEARCE — In loving memory of our dear sister and aunt, Daisy May Pearce, who passed away, June 30, 1960.

Past her sufferings, past her pain,
Cease to weep for tears are rain;
She who suffered is at rest,
Gone to Heaven with the best.

PEARCE — In loving memory of a dear mother, Daisy May, who passed away, June 30, 1969.

Loving and kind in all her ways,
Upright and just, to the end of her days;
Sincere and true, in her heart and mind,
Beautiful memories, she left behind.
—Son, Ronald Pearce.

POTTER—In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather, J. W. Potter, who passed away, June 30th, 1968.

Love is the face we loved so dear
Silent the voice, we loved to hear,
So far away for sight or speech
But not too far for thoughts to reach.
Sweet to remember him who once was here.
And though absent is just as dear.
—Sadly missed by loving wife, Myna and family.

9 IN MEMORIAM

YATES—In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Jane Yates, who passed away June 30, 1960.

Ten years ago, a heart of gold stopped beating
Two willing hands were laid to rest
We shall always love you, dear Mother,
You were one of the best.
—Ever remembered and sadly missed by her daughters Lilian and Edith and grandson Ray.

Environment Council Suggested

OTTAWA (CP) — The Science Council of Canada is preparing to advise that the federal government set up an environmental council on the short-term and long-term effects of man's impact on the world around him.

Many questions about the agency are still in the discussion stage but informants said Monday that the council will give notice of its intentions early next month.

One possibility is that the Council will make a special report to Prime Minister Trudeau outlining its views of the needs for and purposes of a special environmental agency.

Air, water and other forms of pollution are only a small part of the problem as currently envisaged by the Science Council study group doing spadework for the Council's debate on the subject.

A major factor is population growth and the optimum population for this country.

This is a particular interest of Dr. O. M. Solandt, Science Council chairman, who is publicly on record as saying Canada in the next two years should decide what the optimum population should be and take steps to keep it there.

STUDY U.S. MOVES

The Science Council study group has taken a look at the United States' environmental council of which President Nixon is chairman and the various alternatives put forward before that structure was adopted.

For Canada, the possibilities being discussed include a kind of permanent royal commission such as in Britain, a special agency modelled on the Science Council, the Science Council itself and a small commission composed of fulltime members.

The latter proposal is being put forward as a solution to the problem of part-time members tending to act as spokesmen for their fulltime jobs as sometimes occurs with the Science Council.

Because of Canada's jurisdictional problems, it also is being suggested that some form of joint federal-provincial environmental agency be set up.

The Science Council has two main routes for letting the government and the public know its final thinking.

One is through the conventional bound volume of the study group's report and the Council's recommendations on it. This is slow and cumbersome and, with 10 such volumes on various topics at different stages of preparation, the Council may opt for an open letter to Mr. Trudeau following up later with more detailed presentation of its case.

Victoria Defends Insecticide Use

The insecticide Phosphamidon, used by the Victoria parks department to spray trees, is not concentrated enough to harm human beings, birds and animals, parks director Herb Warren said Monday.

"The insecticide is diluted in a solution of one pint for every 100 gallons of water, the equivalent amount for spraying the material over an acre of foliage," he said.

Warren was answering a charge in a letter to the editor (Times, June 27) from Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley, 652 Battery, who wanted to know why the city is using Phosphamidon.

She said literature from the company which makes the insecticide says the chemical is poisonous to human beings and suggests doctors in areas where Phosphamidon is used should be aware of its symptoms.

PRECAUTIONS

Warren said the city uses a number of precautions whenever it sprays with Phosphamidon, even though the solution is diluted.

He said work crews never spray on windy days, and they keep people away when they are working. The solution is never used in blanket spraying of several trees, but only on trees with aphids or other chewing insects.

Each parks department worker who uses the insecticide receives a test one or twice a year to determine whether any Phosphamidon is in his body.

"We have used this chemical for four or five years with no problems," Warren said.

PLASTIC SUITS

He also said the department never has had an instance when one of its staff has been poisoned by the insecticide.

Mrs. Stanley stated that parks crews are protected by plastic suits and respirators when spraying, but no protection exists for children playing in the area.

Warren said a Workmen's Compensation Board regulation requires staff to wear protective clothing, but this does not mean the spraying is as dangerous as it looks.

"A lot of people are concerned about insecticides, particularly DDT. And when they see these men looking like they're from outer space, they get worried."

Residue from in the insecticide is absorbed into the plant within an hour after it is sprayed, he said. Phosphamidon does not remain on the surface of plants where it might result in harmful contact.

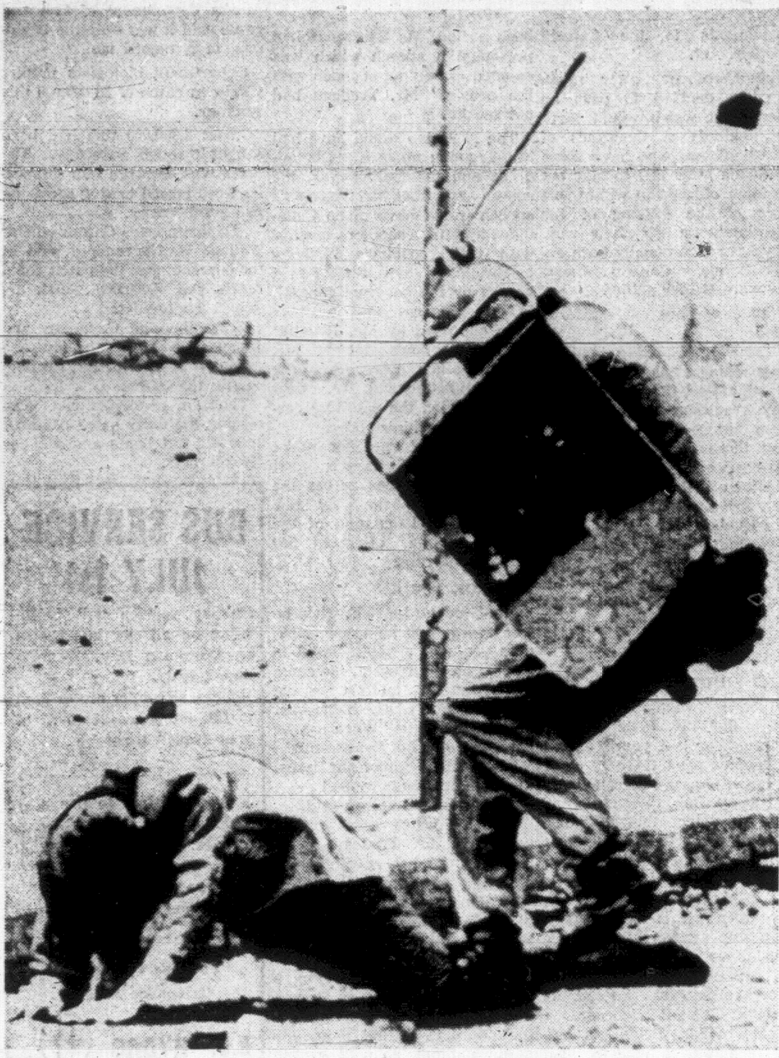
Asian War Mercenaries Vetoed by U.S. Senate



IRISH RIOTER is clubbed to ground by British soldier during unrest in Bogside district of Belfast, Northern Ireland. Soldier, equipped with shield and beating stick, is member of special "Snatch" squad, designed to single out and incapacitate riot leaders. Six persons have been killed and over 200 wounded so far. (AP Wirephoto)

Irish Peace Depends On 'Law and Order'

BELFAST (CP) — British Home Secretary Reginald Maudlins flew into Northern Ireland today in an effort to cool the Protestant-Roman Catholic conflict which turned Belfast into a weekend battleground.

In a statement at Belfast airport, Maudling warned "there can neither be peace nor harmony nor prosperity unless there is first of all law and order."

His two-day visit follows close on the weekend explosion of violence which left six dead and 200 wounded in an orgy of gun battles and arson. It was the worst rioting Northern Ireland had suffered since last August, when 13 persons died.

Shortly after arriving, Maudling went into conference with Prime Minister James Chichester-Clark. Later he was to meet members of the cabinet, the Northern Ireland Parliament and civic and religious leaders.

At the airport, Maudling reiterated British government pledges that Northern Ireland would not be severed from the Crown without the consent of the people of Northern Ireland.

The pledge appeared to be an effort to placate Northern Ireland's Protestant majority which fears that Catholics are trying to overturn the Ulster administration and link up with the Catholic Republic of Ireland.

One urgent problem facing Maudling is the coming seasonal build-up of Protestant religious marches which threaten to provoke Catholic counter-demonstrations — possibly on an even fiercer scale than anything since the troubles of the 1920s.

About a dozen such parades have been cancelled, but the major Protestant parade is still scheduled for July 13.

Holiday Pay Rule May Stop Strikes

Relief from the current rotating strikes of postmen in the Victoria area as well as across Canada may have come until at least Friday. The posties must work today and Thursday in order to qualify for Dominion Day holiday pay.

The latest in the series of 24-hour rotating strikes ended Monday night when about 5,000 postal workers in British Columbia, Alberta, Ontario and Quebec returned to their jobs.

Stan Darlington, president of the Victoria branch of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, noted that postmen must report to work both today and Thursday to qualify for July 1 holiday pay.

NO GUARANTEE

But this is no guarantee that postmen will be on the job Thursday. Darlington said the local branch has not been notified whether to strike or not Thursday.

Ken Stofer, local post office public relations officer, said today postal workers working Monday cut the backlog of third and fourth class mail in about half.

The first class mail, he said, was up to date and an air service delivery this morning, primarily from B.C. points, had Monday's date on most letters.

He added that receiving first class mail still looks normal and the Victoria area is in good shape unless there are hidden amounts of mail yet to come from other parts of the country.

The rotating strikes have been used by the Council of Postal Unions, representing 27,000 postal workers, as a means of putting pressure on the government during continuing contract negotiations in Ottawa.

LATEST WALKOUTS

The latest walkouts involved about 1,511 men in Ontario, 600 in Quebec, 900 in Alberta and about 2,000 in Greater Vancouver, Kimberley and Cranbrook.

Postal negotiations in Ottawa resumed today after a four-day break and for the first time in nearly two weeks the rotating strike appeared to be at a standstill.

$900,000 DRUG HAUL

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police seized narcotics valued at more than $900,000 on the illicit market Monday night in a raid on a South Vancouver home described as a drug capping factory specializing in heroin capsules laced with codeine.

A spokesman said they found 6½ pounds of pure heroin and a number of coded notes indicating the locations of caches of capped drugs. Police uncovered numerous stashes.

Cambodia: From Bad To Worse

By GEORGE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON (WP) Cambodia will have to abandon even more of its territory to the Communists in the coming weeks, according to government sources with access to the latest battlefield information.

The Lon Nol government already has withdrawn its troops from the four northeast provinces in the face of the North Vietnamese offensive.

The Cambodian army is too weak to spread itself out over a wide area and thus is making its stand farther south, including the protection of the capital of Phnom Penh.

A Cambodain spokesman in Phnom Penh, in announcing the army's withdrawal from the sparsely settled northeast section of Cambidia, said: "It was not good for us to keep holding those places."

By the same token, the northwest section of Cambodia is not considered as strategic to the Lon Nol government as the area farther south. Administration officals assert that some of this northwest territory is bound to go to the Communists by default.

LIMITED AID

South Vietnam and Thailand have commited themselves to only limited aid to Cambodia. President Nixon has shown no inclination to go beyond air support and military aid for Cambodia in the future.

President Nixon himself justified that Cambodian operations as a way to reduce American casualties in South Vietnam. With the Cambodian sanctuaries destroyed, it would be safe to continue the withdrawal of American troops from Vietnam, he said.

● 577 Americans were killed in South Vietnam in the six weeks from May 10 through June 20 — a period when the Cambodian invasion was in full swing.

● 663 Americans were killed in South Vietnam in the six weeks from March 15 through April 25 — just

Mediation Plan Scored By Duncan IWA Chief

International Woodworkers of America accused the forest industry today of going to mediation in their contract dispute only when the industry found it convenient.

Weldon Jubenville, president of the 4,500-member IWA local at Duncan, claimed no mediation officers were to be found when the unions wanted one this spring.

"This gave the companies an opportunity to lock us out," Jubenville said.

The union says there has been no progress in talks with government mediator Clive McKee and Forest Industrial Relations (FIR) in Vancouver. The talks broke off at the weekend and are to resume Thursday.

Jubenville said results of strike votes, now being tabulated, show the union overwhelmingly in favor of a strike. If it comes, he said, it would made the recent towboat strike "look like a Sunday school picnic."

VOTING STRIKE

Votes tabulated so far on an operation-by-operation basis favor a strike by a 95-5 margin, he said.

Votes taken on the same basis in Vancouver have had the same result. All locals in the 30,000-member IWA coast region are conducting votes, with the Victoria region scheduled to start this week.

Jubenville attacked FIR's most recent contract proposal as "just another step toward making the forest industry in B.C. a slave labor camp." FIR had proposed the last contract be extended a year, with any wage increases granted at that time being made retroactive to next December. The contract expired June 15.

In other labor developments:

Pulp: A mediation officer has been appointed in a dispute between two Island locals of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada, and MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. and Crofton Pulp and Paper Ltd. The union served strike notice on both mills Saturday.

Plumbers: The Plumbers' Union filed a $1.2 million damage suit Monday against the Construction Labor Relations Association to recover alleged losses in wages and fringe benefits during B.C.'s 10-week construction lockout.

DEATH BLAST TIED TO FLQ

OTTAWA (CP) — The blast that shattered a national defence headquarters building here last week, killing one person, was the work of "Quebec terrorists," a police spokesman said today.

The announcement followed the release in Montreal of a communique by the terrorist Front de Liberation Quebecois. The FLQ claimed responsibility for the Ottawa defence blast and for another bombing at a postal substation in Montreal.

Laboratory tests just concluded confirm that the "mechanism and other workings" of the bomb are the same as those used in a series of Montreal blasts during the last five or six weeks and attributed to terrorists, Tom Flanagan of the city's detective force said in an interview.

The blast early last Wednesday, St. Jean Baptists Day, killed Jeanne D'Arc St. Germain, 50, and injured three other persons. It occurred at the wall outside a telecommunications room in the downtown headquarters.

Rebuff For Nixon

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — A narrowly divided U.S. Senate voted today to prohibit the United States from underwriting expenses and salaries of the armies of South Vietnam, Thailand or any other U.S. ally fighting in support of the Cambodian government.

The decision was so closely contested that four roll call votes were required for the Senate to express its will. The outcome was a defeat for the administration.

The vote nailing down the curb on backing "mercenaries" in Cambodia was 50 to 45.

The decision came just minutes before the climatic vote — after seven weeks of debate —, on the Cooper-Church amendment which, if enacted into law, would prevent the United States from sending large-scale forces back into Cambodia unless Congress first gave its consent.

FIGHTING

Acting for the White House, assistant Republican leader Robert P. Griffin, Mich., offered the defeated proposal, which would have softened the Cooper-Church amendment by sanctioning American financing of the troops of U.S. allies fighting in support of Cambodia's endangered Lon Nol government.

The defeat in the senate came shortly after President Nixon, reporting to the nation on U.S. ground operations in Cambodia, had pladged "we shall renew our efforts" to end the war in all of Indochina.

Without elaborating, the president said he seeks "genuine negotiations both in Paris and for all of Indochina." The Paris talks involved only the Vietnam segment of the conflict and Nixon did not indicate what further steps he might take to seek an expanded settlement that would also embrace Cambodia and Laos.

Aid Convoy Approaching Phnom Penh

PHNOM PENH (Reuters) — Diplomatic sources said today a 40-truck convoy carrying American military aid to Cambodia is moving along the main road from Saigon to Phnom Penh.

A Cambodian military spokesman said the trucks, driven by South Vietnamese soldiers, were expected in the capital today. Although he would not reveal the exact nature of the military aid in the trucks, informed sources said they were loaded with small arms, radios and ammunition.

Meanwhile, a Cambodian military high command spokesman today said deposed head of state Norodom Sihanouk will be tried in absentia Friday by a military tribunal. The charges against Prince Sihanouk, who set up a goverment-in-exile in Peking, were not stipulated but it was expected that they would most likely be treason and embezzlement of state funds.

MUST END MUTUAL SUSPICIONS

University Master Plan Urged

By IAN PORTER

OTTAWA (CP) — Equal representation of academic, government and community interests on provincial university co-ordinating commissions is proposed in a university-sponsored report as the best means to clear away mutual suspicions.

Based on a 15-month review of relations between universities and governments, the two-man report, published today, says secrecy and uncertainty about the role of the university in society characterizes the administration and financing of higher learning in most provinces.

It proposes that existing university commissions be reconstituted by law with power to co-ordinate university programs in each province.

"The chief purpose of the kind of agency we recommend would be to elaborate and supervise a master plan for universities," it says.

A second section proposes the federal government's role in financing universities be ended and compensating tax revenue shifted to provincial governments.

The report, published by the commission on relations between universities and governments, was financed by a Ford Foundation grant of $150,000. It is the work of Donald Rowat, professor of political science at Carleton University, Ottawa, and Rene Hurtubise, vice-rector at the Montreal campus of the University of Quebec.

'Report Designed To Startle, Shock'

The authors were commissioned by a committee representing the Canadian Association of University Teachers and the Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada as well as the Canadian and Quebec student unions, which have since disbanded. The commission was authorized to recommend "the appropriate instruments by which relations between universities and governments can be established that do justice to their responsibilities."

At a news conference, Professor Rowat said the report is "designed to startle and shock the establishment a little bit."

Both men said they felt the proposal to create university co-ordinating commissions is not itself a radical step but noted that the proposed composition of the commissions would involve a change in government thinking.

Professor Rowat said the main goal of the report was to provide university representation on the provincial bodies. Professor Hurtubise added that although some provisions have been made in Quebec and New Brunswick for community influence in the administration of universities "it is not a widely accepted policy."

Science Council Abolition Urged

The two commissioners also exposed a difference of opinion about the form of consultation between the federal and provin-

Natural Gas Industry In Tremendous Strides

CALGARY (CP) — Natural gas has come a long way since it caught fire and destroyed a Canadian Pacific Railway water-drilling rig at Langevin, Alta., in 1883.

By 1969, the industry was serving 1,700,000 customers in Canada. Sales amounted to 4,131,000,000 cubic feet a day worth $225,000,000 while by-products such as gas liquids and sulphur brought in another $200,000,000.

Once an importer of natural gas, Canada exported 660,000,000,000 cubic feet to the United States in 1969 for $172,000,000 and the national energy board estimates Canada will be shipping about 3,000,000,000,000 cubic feet across the border by 1980.

Alberta produces 88 per cent of Canada's natural gas, but the country's gas-processing industry was born in the Ontario village of Tilbury more than half a centry ago.

GAS WAS SOUR

Natural gas discovered at Tilbury soon after the First World War was not the odorless "sweet" methane produced in other parts of Ontario but was "Sour" with a high content of foul-smelling poisonous hydrogen sulphide.

To remove the hydrogen sulphide and make the Tilbury gas usable and safe, Canada's first natual gas-processing plant was brought into operation in the early 1920's.

What began as an irksome and costly effort to eliminate a nuisance has become a major Canadian industry.

Today, there are 112 natural gas-processing plants in Canada designed to produce one or more commercial byproducts. Capital investment in the installations is more than $400,000,000.

Sulphur recovered from natural gas is valued at more than $60,000,000 a year and is soon expected to increase to $100,000,000 annually. The other byproducts of gas processing, which include propane, butane natural gasoline and others, have a value of $106,000,000.

For some Canadian processing plants, revenue from sulphur, gasoline and liquid petroleum gas byproducts exceeds revenue from the sale of processed gas.

OUTPUT WAS LOW

Canada's first sour gas sulphur-conversion plant was put into operation by Shell Oil Co. in 1952. It produced 9,000 long tons for the year, an amount now produced in less than two days by the combined production of all Canadian companies.

Natural gas and its byproducts are used for residential and commercial heating, generating electricity, as raw material for petrochemicals, in the production of some 150 synthetic chemicals and as fuel in isolated districts.

Large-volume gas removal from Alberta was authorized in the mid 1950's and between 1955 and 1968, $2,310,500,000 was spent on gathering, transmission and distribution pipeline systems.

The Canadian Petroleum Association estimates that Canada has potential available gas reserves of 464,100,000,000,000 cubic feet.

Oil Firms Given Excellent Report

OTTAWA (CP) — Companies searching for oil in the Mackenzie Delta of the Northwest Territories and in the Yukon have been given an excellent interim report card by a special study force on conservation established by Northern Development Minister Jean Chretien.

The report recommended, however, that land use regulations be set quickly by the government.

In a report to the minister the 10-member group including conservation, university and industry representatives said "the companies are making efforts to avoid environmental damage."

"They have responsible management and the necessary resources to develop techniques to cope with exploration and development in the sensitive environment," the group informed Chretien.

Exploration sites visited included those operated by Imperial Oil Ltd., Gulf Oil and Shell Canada.

The study team was asked by the minister to report on the possibility of environmental disturbances resulting from il and gas exploration, now in full swing in Northern Canada.

TIMING WRONG

In a preface to the report, however, the members said "the timing and duration of the trip . . . were entirely inappropriate."

"In early May, industrial exploration activities had stopped, with few exceptions, and summer reason work had not started.

"Also, the climatic conditions of the time of year maximum snow cover and frozen ground precluded any serious, critical examination of surface conditions."

The group recommended a second inspection tour July 28-Aug. 9. The first, because of the timing, "precluded the task force from testing the thesis that irreparable environmental damage may be occurring."

"However, we have concluded tentatively, that in areas lacking super-saturated ground ice, current exploration techniques are not likely to cause irreparable damage to the tundra surface."

The group was impressed by the elimination of garbage and wastes through burial, burning or removal.

NO OIL DRUMS

It also noted the absence of discarded oil drums, usually a landmark in any settled northern community.

Many problems remained to be solved through research and the report recommended expanded and co-ordinated work along these lines.

It said land use regulations, to be prepared by the cabinet and outlining the type of development and machinery that can be used in areas of the North, should be made known quickly.

In a statement Chretien said many of the key recommendations already have been implemented.

He promised to make them public as soon as possible and as suggested, he said, they would be subject to review as new information became available.

Loans to IOS Directors Defended

TORONTO (CP) — Sir Eric Wyndham-White, chairman of IOS Ltd., says loans to officers and directors of the world-wide mutual fund company "were sought and granted in good faith" and provided IOS with a substantial interest income "at competitive commercial rates."

In a letter sent to shareholders of the Geneva-based company he says:

"Nevertheless, I believe that it is in the best interest of the company to achieve the greatest possible liquidity at this time and I am taking steps to achieve further liquidation of the loans still outstanding."

The letter shows loans to officers and directors were reduced to $778,000 at May 31 from $3,400,000 at Dec. 31.

Contingent liabilities "in connection with banking operations" declined to $7,800,000 from $8,200,000; loans to associates and employees to $1,700,000 from $3,300,000; and joint venture and other lonas to $6,700,000 from $15,800,000.

DETAILS ASKED

Trading in IOS Ltd. stock was suspended by the exchange this month and the Ontario Securities Commission issued a trading ban against the company's shares until Thursday.

Sir Eric says the details could not be disclosed earlier "because of the need to obtain a waiver of pertinent banking secrecy regulations from every loan recipient."

The details reveal that of the $4,247,113 repaid by officers and directors since the beginning of the year, Bernard Cornfeld, IOS founder and former president, paid off all the $530,820 he owed.

Shares of IOS Ltd., parent of the IOS group, came under heavy pressure this year after rumors of financial problems circulated in Europe.

Gaspe Metals In Joint Plan For Development

MONTREAL (CP) — Gaspe Metals Ltd. and Anaconda American Brass Ltd. have completed a joint venture agreement for the exploration and development of Gaspe Metals' property in Quebec's Gaspe Peninsula, it was announced today.

J. J. Gourd, president of St. Lawrence Columbium and Metals Corp., said Anaconda will have to spend a minimum of $150,000 over two years to exercise its option under the agreement to enter into a joint venture or to form a new company with Gaspe Metals.

St. Lawrence Columbium holds 76 per cent of the issued stock of Gaspe Metals.

Under the agreement, the joint venture or new company will be financed by both Anaconda and Gaspe Metals with Gaspe contributing up to 40 per cent of the required funds.

In return, Gaspe Metals will acquire a 46-per-cent interest in the joint venture and Anaconda will hold the remaining 54 per cent.

Materials Index Shows Decline

OTTAWA (CP) — Softer lumber and concrete prices led to a decline in the Dominion Bureau of Statistics building materials price indexes in May, the bureau has reported.

The index of residential building materials declined to 138.5 from 138.7 in April, and the non-residential materials index eased to 129.3 from 129.4. They were 145.0 and 126.7 respectively in May, last year.

Both indexes are based on 1961 prices equalling 100. The residential materials index was down 4.5 per cent from a year earlier, with lumber prices down 9.5 per cent.

They're Set

By PAT DUFOUR

Today is one of steady preparation in the Inner Harbor as skippers and crews of the 23 yachts competing in the Victoria-Maui race, which starts off Brotchie Ledge at 3 p.m. Wednesday, check gear and store the final items on the victualling list.

Both the winners of the two previous races to the Hawaiian Islands are poised for action Wednesday.

Bill Killam's Porpoise III, which won in 1968, will have a Royal Victoria Yacht Club sailor in her crew. Barney Angus, who crewed in his father's yacht Tiffany in 1968, will round out a crew list that includes Bill's son, Rick; Bill Cotie, Tom Rogers of Shelbourne, N.S., and Brian Lagden.

Killam has a full-time cook aboard in the last race. This time he plans to share the chores.

The winner of the first race, first sailed in 1965, is also back. Then she was known as Long Gone and owned by the race's originator, J. G. Innes of Royal Vancouver. She's now the Puffin II, being raced by W. E. Lund of the same club.

Innes will be racing his new Long Gone in his bid for a repeat performance.

The two smallest boats in the race are both Cal 30s, the smallest to ever take on the 2,300-mile testing. They are W. M. Black's Whale's Tail and Dr. Grant Fletcher's Rasalhague.

Fletcher and his crew, who sail out of San Francisco, have been preparing for this race for three years. He estimates the cost in additional gear to be about $5,000.

Every inch of Rasalhague has been used to accommodate gear and an inventory of sails that includes four spinnakers and six jibs. Fletcher, of San Francisco, will have aboard his two sons, Chris and Stephen, Russ Kubiak and Ted Pearson.

On the faculty of Stanford University's medical school, Fletcher is taking time out from a sabbatical year. "The president is also a sailing man so it's OK with him."

The boat with the biggest handicap rating in the race is Lol Killam's Graybeard. After the race Killam plans to cruise his 73-foot ketch for 1½ years.

Another boat that will be taking off for points south after the race is Ralph Higgins' Gabrielle II of Royal Vic.

The navy's ketch HMCS Oriole will be pacing it out for another time under a new skipper, Lt.-Cmdr. Peter Cox. Two other local boats will be in contention for the second time. They are Don Lawson's Cubara and Wally Meakes' Potlatch II, both of Royal Vic.

Wednesday will begin early with a skippers' briefing scheduled for 10 a.m. and a weather session slated an hour later.

●

The navy tug St. Anthony will accompany the yachts during the race which could last for three weeks, depending on winds.

RIDING BOSUN'S CHAIRS for last-minute checks, crewmen check yachts' riggings in Inner Harbor this morning. Not a bad job alongside — not much fun when the boat is rocking and rolling at sea.

Overhaul Urged by Jury In Ocean Racing Rules

The need for yacht clubs to tighten safety regulations for ocean-going races was stressed Monday when a coroner's jury found that two couples lost near Race Rocks June 6 died because of lack of sailing experience and the unsuitability of their vessel.

The six-man jury brought in a verdict of accidental death, due to asphyxiation through drowning of Arthur Collis, 32, and his wife, Margaret Hazel Collis, 30, of 2531 Orchard, and John Alfred Goodman, 35, and his wife, Donna, 28, of 330 Moss.

They found that no blame should be placed for the drownings, which occured when Collis' 23-foot Cub Sugar foundered during a race to Port Angeles.

Evidence showed that the sponsors of the race, the Esquimalt Squadron, Canadian Forces Sailing Association, had not laid down sufficient safety requirements. Fleet captain Gordon Mains said this would be done in the future.

The jury also recommended:

- Coast guards be informed of all such races.
- Correct weather reports be promulgated before the start of such race.
- The federal department of transport be asked to revise regulations on small craft.
- That boats be required to have lifelines and grappling poles.
- That crews of boats in such races be experienced.

Coroner Edmond St. Jorre commended the jury on its findings and recommendations, a copy of which, will be sent to the transport department.

$85,000 DONATED

Salvation Army Over the Top

The Salvation Army raised a total of $85,000 in this year's Red Shield Appeal, $2,400 more than its target, campaign director Maj. Hugh Tilley announced today.

Last year's campaign total was $79,176.

Elda Anderson's Residential Division helped push the 1970 campaign over the top by raising $45,850 — more than half of the entire campaign quota.

Lyle Wicks, general chairman of the campaign committee, expressed his gratitude to the canvassers who worked on the Army's behalf and to the citizens of Greater Victoria who supported the campaign.

The Army spends over $500,000 annually in community service work in the Greater Victoria area, said Tilley.

New One-Way Streets Planned for September

Victoria traffic engineer Dave Campbell this morning unveiled plans for conversion of Johnson and Pandora to one-way traffic by Sept. 20, 1970.

Campbell told a meeting of council's traffic committee the plan would solve traffic problems on the streets for the next two years.

After that, he said, Pandora and Johnson will be connected with Shelbourne Street via Begbie Street.

The interim plan, approved by the traffic committee, will turn Johnson into a one-way street going east and Pandora one-way going west into the downtown core.

Pandora will begin its one-way flow into the city at Vancouver. Johnston traffic routed into Pandora at Vancouver will continue eastward in a two-way flow.

DAMAGE TREES

Campbell said it is impossible to reroute the access lanes without damaging their efficiency.

"I think sometimes we're a little bit too prone to criticize our professional staff when it comes to cutting down trees," said Mayor Courtney Haddock.

Esquimalt Shuns Campbell

Esquimalt council Monday night decided unanimously to reject Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell's suggestion that services in the four core municipalties be jointly operated.

Mayor Arthur Young said today the feeling of the council is that Esquimalt would be getting "the wrong end of the stick" in Campbell's proposal because the Esquimalt police and fire departments are already amalgamated.

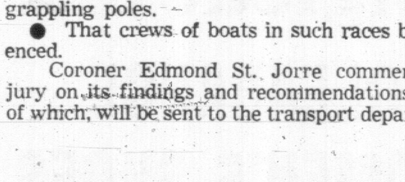
Campbell in a letter to Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt councils last week "strongly" suggested that fire and police protection services, accounting and auditing services, garbage disposal services and assessment machinery be studied along with possible standardization of municipal forms, establishment of a single municipal purchasing commission and pooling of public works equipment.

The subject of the review, Campbell's letter said, would be "in terms of achieving a better functional unit into which to put the local tax dollar."

Ald. Walter Lock, at the council meeting Monday, said Esquimalt had the top services in the community and if the municipality lost control of these, it would lose its efficiency.

Victoria, Saanich and Oak Bay councils as well as Campbell would be informed by letter of Esquimalt's decision, Young said.

Ald. Arthur Mebs challenged Victoria city council's request that all four municipalities share the cost of a proposed training centre for firemen located near the Red Lion Motor Inn in Saanich.



Arthur Mayse . . .

AS AN EXPERIMENT, I have just asked a few Canadians of different age brackets what they call July 1.

To each of them, it was Dominion Day, and a couple added "of course" by way of emphasis. However, two others felt that Canada Day would be an improvement, and one came out strongly for Confederation Day.

That last opinion may be the winning one. A private member's bill to come before the Commons will give it official sanction, if passed.

But until or unless such approval is given, Dominion Day it remains, with a yet-urepealed Act of Parliament to pin it down.

Perhaps Confederation Day would better mark the completion of what the first Dominion Day began. For our union of 10 provinces and two territories didn't spring to life full-blown.

It was born of dissent and crisis. The miracle is that it came to birth at all.

In the beginning there were Ontario and Quebec, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. This was Confederation in 1867.

The process was not complete until 1949, when Newfoundland overcame her misgivings and accepted provincial status.

So Confederation as it stands was 82 years in the making, and hard work all the way. You'll find that long struggle toward full-scale nationhood detailed in our histories.

And having read, you may decide that the name we finally settle on for July 1 matters a great deal less than the fact that we have managed to evolve a self-governing nation unlike any other on earth.

We are not British or French or Americans, even though those nations and many others have helped shape Canada. We are something of our own, with a national identity more plain to others than to us.

However, this matter of identity causes us much less soul-searching than it once did. It may be that we have grown sure enough of our place to put aside such self-conscious probings. In any event, intellectual self-analysis based on the question "What is a Canadian?" appears to have gone out of style.

As Canadians, we have our differences. Some of them are profound, and it will be a long time before we have learned to live fully at ease with them.

But I'm glad of those differences. I hope we never altogether lose them to a melting pot from which emerges the homogenized and perfectly interchangeable Canadian citizen.

I prefer the mosaic. It makes for diversity, and if our differences expose us to certain dangers, I think they also add to our national strength.

British Columbia could never have produced Pierre Trudeau. By the same token, Quebec, for better or worse, couldn't have moulded W. A. C. Bennett.

We are compartmented by provincial attitudes as well as borderlines, and perhaps even more so by our geographical locations.

Transplant a far-wester to the prairies, and he may never get used to the vast, empty sweep of sky and the remote horizons.

I have known people from the prairies who suffered from a sort of claustrophobia in the near presence of mountains.

They felt hemmed in, as they never had in Manitoba or Saskatchewan.

Out here, we plunk instant towns down where all was wilderness before. But go to the fishing village of Port Mouton on the Nova Scotia south shore, and you will find the Atlantic lapping stones of a jetty built by men of Old France before the British came.

We are of many racial stocks. We have weathered rebellions and wars, not to mention depression and recession. Perhaps the chief miracle is that we have managed to persist as a country distinct and unabsorbed in the shadow of colossus.

We have had our troubles. We're still having them, what with inflation and its by-products, and there isn't the slightest reason to suppose that the future doesn't hold problems no easier of solution.

But on Wednesday we make it to another Dominion Day—our 103rd, and possibly the last under that name—with Confederation intact.

Our record is less than flawless. Still, in the Canadian accent which we don't know we have, but that Americans so readily identify, let me state that I'm proud of us!

200 Persons Thumb Down Big Townhouse Project

Plans for a $1.3 million 52-unit townhouse project at 1260 Tattersall Drive in Saanich went down to defeat Monday night in the face of strong residential opposition at a public hearing attended by 200 persons.

Five letters and 16 persons spoke in opposition to the plans of Yorkshire Financial Corporation and C. J. Oliver and council voted 5 to 3 to turn down the rezoning bid.

Reasons for residential opposition included devaluation of their property, traffic problems, intrusion into a unique and beautiful area of single-family houses and the development itself.

Mrs. J. A. Pelter, 1262 Tattersall, objected to "all those children roaring around, throwing balls in my back garden."

Malcolm Mitchell, 1270 Tattersall, said the development would be "degrading to the area."

For the developers, John Kay said the land is rocky and difficult to subdivide conventionally. Seventy per cent of the land would be open space under the proposal which he described as a quality one.

Average selling price would be $25,000 to $26,000 in 10 quadruplexes and two six-unit townhouses.

He did not feel extra traffic would create a hazard on Tattersall, that discussion of road improvement occurred before his application and taxes would represent $15,000 a year over building 19 houses.

'CRYING FOR QUALITY'

Ald. William Noel argued that the concept is "a violation of a first-class residential district."

Ald. Edith Gunning said Saanich has been "crying" for quality design and imaginative housing and this was offered.

When she said the architect was "very sensitive" to the natural environment, there were loud groans from the audience before Mayor Hugh Curtis crashed his gavel for order.

A proposal by Kasapi Construction for 12 units of row housing on the south side of Arrow Road, opposite Bow, produced 18 persons to speak in opposition.

They said it was not in keeping with the character of the area, and several wanted to know if the units would be sold or rented.

LESS SAFETY

R. J. Calton, 3974 Livingstone, told the hearing "we don't want transients coming in, depreciating these boxes and reducing the whole value of the area." He said it would result in more traffic, noise and congestion and less safety for children.

Ask The Times

Q. Could you please tell me where the quotation "Though every prospect pleases, and only man is vile" comes from?—F.M.H.

A. The quote is taken from the second stanza of Reginald Heber's Missionary Hymn. Heber was an Anglican prelate and hymn writer who became Bishop of Calcutta in 1823. He was born at Malpas, Cheshire, England, in 1783 and died in India in 1826. Fifty-eight of his hymns were included in the book Hymns Written and Adapted to the Weekly Church Service.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

Cambodia: From Bad To Worse

By GEORGE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON (WP) Cambodia will have to abandon even more of its territory to the Communists in the coming weeks, according to government sources with access to the latest battlefield information.

The Lon Nol government already has withdrawn its troops from the four northeast provinces in the face of the North Vietnamese offensive.

The Cambodian army is too weak to spread itself out over a wide area and thus is making its stand farther south, including the protection of the capital of Phnom Penh.

A Cambodian spokesman in Phnom Penh, in announcing the army's withdrawal from the sparsely settled northeast section of Cambodia, said: "It was not good for us to keep holding those places."

By the same token, the northwest section of Cambodia is not considered as strategic to the Lon Nol government as the area farther south. Administration offiicals assert that some of this northwest territory is bound to go to the Communists by default.

LIMITED AID

South Vietnam and Thailand have commited themselves to only limited aid to Cambodia. President Nixon has shown no inclination to go beyond air support and military aid for Cambodia in the future.

Whether North Vietnam's current offensive against Cambodia was triggered by President Nixon's invasion of Cambodian sanctuaries, or would have happened anyway, is one of the arguments in the Indochina debate.

President Nixon himself justified that Cambodian operations as a way to reduce American casualties in South Vietnam. With the Cambodian sanctuaries destroyed, it would be safe to continue the withdrawal of American troops from Vietnam, he said.

Latest Pentagon figures showed no sharp drop in American casualties within South Vietnam while allied troops were wrecking the Cambodian sanctuaries.

- 577 Americans were killed in South Vietnam in the six weeks from May 10 through June 20 — a period when the Cambodian invasion was in full swing.
- 663 Americans were killed in South Vietnam in the six weeks from March 15 through April 25 — just

Rebuff For Nixon

Times News Services

WASHINGTON—The U.S. Senate voted today to prohibit President Nixon from sending American troops back into Cambodia without congressional approval.

Seven weeks of sometimes bitter debate ended in a 58-37 triumph for supporters of an amendment that would cut off funds for retaining U.S. forces in Cambodia despite Nixon's argument that his hands should not be tied in any way in protecting American forces in Vietnam.

On the showdown vote, 16 Republicans and 42 Democrats supported the anti-war measure, while 26 Republicans and 11 Democrats backed the administration.

MERCENARIES

Earlier the senate voted narrowly to prohibit the U.S. from underwriting expenses and salaries of the armies in South Vietnam, Thailand or other ally fighting in support of the Cambodian government.

The decision was so closely contested that four roll call votes were required for the Senate to express its will. The outcome was a defeat for the administration.

The vote nailing down the curb on backing "mercenaries" in Cambodia was 50 to 45.

Mediation Plan Scored By Duncan IWA Chief

International Woodworkers of America accused the forest industry today of going to mediation in their contract dispute only when the industry found it convenient.

Weldon Jubenville, president of the 4,500-member IWA local at Duncan, claimed no mediation officers were to be found when the unions wanted one this spring.

"This gave the companies an opportunity to lock us out," Jubenville said.

The union says there has been no progress in talks with government mediator Clive McKee and Forest Industrial Relations (FIR) in Vancouver. The talks broke off at the weekend and are to resume Thursday.

Jubenville said results of strike votes, now being tabulated, show the union overwhelmingly in favor of a strike. If it comes, he said, it would made the recent towboat strike "look like a Sunday school picnic."

VOTING STRIKE

Votes tabulated so far on an operation-by-operation basis favor a strike by a 95-5 margin, he said.

Votes taken on the same basis in Vancouver have had the same result. All locals in the 30,000-member IWA coast region are conducting votes, with the Victoria region scheduled to start this week.

Jubenville attacked FIR's most recent contract proposal as "just another step toward making the forest industry in B.C. a slave labor camp." FIR had proposed the last contract be extended a year, with any wage increases granted at that time being made retroactive to next December. The contract expired June 15.

In other labor developments:

Pulp: A mediation officer has been appointed in a dispute between two Island locals of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada, and MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. and Crofton Pulp and Paper Ltd. The union served strike notice on both mills Saturday.

Plumbers: The Plumbers' Union filed a $1.2 million damage suit Monday against the Construction Labor Relations Association to recover alleged losses in wages and fringe benefits during B.C.'s 10-week construction lockout.

Irish Peace Depends On 'Law and Order'

BELFAST (CP) — British Home Secretary Reginald Maudlins flew into Northern Ireland today in an effort to cool the Protestant-Roman Catholic conflict which turned Belfast into a weekend battleground.

In a statement at Belfast airport, Maudling warned "there can neither be peace nor harmony nor prosperity unless there is first of all law and order."

His two-day visit follows close on the weekend explosion of violence which left six dead and 200 wounded in an orgy of gun battles and arson. It was the worst rioting Northern Ireland had suffered since last August, when 13 persons died.

Shortly after arriving, Maudling went into conference with Prime Minister James Chichester-Clark. Later he was to meet members of the cabinet, the Northern Ireland Parliament and civic and religious leaders.

At the airport, Maudling reiterated British government pledges that Northern Ireland would not be severed from the Crown without the consent of the people of Northern Ireland.

The pledge appeared to be an effort to placate Northern Ireland's Protestant majority which fears that Catholics are trying to overturn the Ulster administration and link up with the Catholic Republic of Ireland.

One urgent problem facing Maudling is the coming seasonal build-up of Protestant religious marches which threaten to provoke Catholic counter-demonstrations — possibly on an even fiercer scale than anything since the troubles of the 1920s.

About a dozen such parades have been cancelled, but the major Protestant parade is still scheduled for July 13.

Holiday Pay Rule May Stop Strikes

Relief from the current rotating strikes of postmen in the Victoria area as well as across Canada may have come until at least Friday. The posties must work today and Thursday in order to qualify for Dominion Day holiday pay.

The latest in the series of 24-hour rotating strikes ended Monday night when about 5,000 postal workers in British Columbia, Alberta, Ontario and Quebec returned to their jobs.

Stan Darlington, president of the Victoria branch of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, noted that postmen must report to work both today and Thursday to qualify for July 1 holiday pay.

NO GUARANTEE

But this is no guarantee that postmen will be on the job Thursday. Darlington said the local branch has not been notified whether to strike or not Thursday.

Ken Stofer, local post office public relations officer, said today postal workers working Monday cut the backlog of third and fourth class mail in about half.

The first-class mail, he said, was up to date and an air service delivery this morning, primarily from B.C. points, had Monday's date on most letters.

He added that receiving first class mail still looks normal and the Victoria area is in good shape unless there are hidden amounts of mail yet to come from other parts of the country.

The rotating strikes have been used by the Council of Postal Unions, representing 27,000 postal workers, as a means of putting pressure on the government during continuing contract negotiations in Ottawa.

$900,000 DRUG HAUL

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police seized narcotics valued at more than $900,000 on the illicit market Monday night in a raid on a South Vancouver home described as a drug capping factory specializing in heroin capsules laced with codeine.

A spokesman said they found 6½ pounds of pure heroin and a number of coded notes indicating the locations of caches of capped drugs. Police uncovered numerous stashes.

DEATH BLAST TIED TO FLQ

OTTAWA (CP) — The blast that shattered a national defence headquarters building here last week, killing one person, was the work of "Quebec terrorists," a police spokesman said today.

The announcement followed the release in Montreal of a communique by the terrorist Front de Liberation Quebecois. The FLQ claimed responsibility for the Ottawa defence blast and for another bombing at a postal substation in Montreal.

Laboratory tests just concluded confirm that the "mechanism and other workings" of the bomb are the same as those used in a series of Montreal blasts during the last five or six weeks and attributed to terrorists, Tom Flanagan of the city's detective force said in an interview.

The blast early last Wednesday, St. Jean Baptists Day, killed Jeanne D'Arc St. Germain, 50, and injured three other persons. It occurred at the wall outside a telecommunications room in the downtown headquarters.

MUST END MUTUAL SUSPICIONS

University Master Plan Urged

By IAN PORTER

OTTAWA (CP) — Equal representation of academic, government and community interests on provincial university co-ordinating commissions is proposed in a university-sponsored report as the best means to clear away mutual suspicions.

Based on a 15-month review of relations between universities and governments, the two-man report, published today, says secrecy and uncertainty about the role of the university in society characterizes the administration and financing of higher learning in most provinces.

It proposes that existing university commissions be reconstituted by law with power to co-ordinate university programs in each province.

"The chief purpose of the kind of agency we recommend would be to elaborate and supervise a master plan for universities," it says.

A second section proposes the federal government's role in financing universities be ended and compensating tax revenue shifted to provincial governments.

The report, published by the commission on relations between universities and governments, was financed by a Ford Foundation grant of $150,000. It is the work of Donald Rowat, professor of political science at Carleton University, Ottawa, and Rene Hurtubise, vice-rector at the Montreal campus of the University of Quebec.

'Report Designed To Startle, Shock'

The authors were commissioned by a committee representing the Canadian Association of University Teachers and the Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada as well as the Canadian and Quebec student unions, which have since disbanded. The commission was authorized to recommend "the appropriate instruments by which relations between universities and governments can be established that do justice to their responsibilities."

At a news conference, Professor Rowat said the report is "designed to startle and shock the establishment a little bit."

Both men said they felt the proposal to create university co-ordinating commissions is not itself a radical step but noted that the proposed composition of the commissions would involve a change in government thinking.

Professor Rowat said the main goal of the report was to provide university representation on the provincial bodies. Professor Hurtubise added that although some provisions have been made in Quebec and New Brunswick for community influence in the administration of universities "it is not a widely accepted policy."

Science Council Abolition Urged

The two commissioners also exposed a difference of opinion about the form of consultation between the federal and provin-

God Save the Queen A Rarity in Ottawa

By DAN TURNER

Indeed, the local pipe band was playing God Save the Queen. None of the local people in the crowd of 2,400 showed the slightest surprise.

But Ottawa reporters did.

Although the Canadian hinterlands — outside Quebec — obviously have not abandoned the royal anthem, Ottawa itself is definitely an O Canada town.

That's fine with some people. But it makes others deeply angry and some of the changes that particularly anger them will be on display Wednesday—on what still officially is Dominion Day, July 1, but which is rapidly becoming known—again, most strongly in Ottawa—as Canada Day.

Mr. Trudeau and most of his cabinet will be in Winnipeg to help Manitoba celebrate its centennial.

Governor-General Roland Michener will be at home here, preparing to welcome the royal family for another Canadian tour, this time of the Arctic and Manitoba.

The CBC will be broadcasting special programs, including a concert from the National Arts Centre called Bonjour Canada.

DIEF SEES RED

John Diefenbaker, the former prime minister, is among those who see threats to the Anglo-Saxon fact and even, in time, to the monarchy itself in Canada.

Last Friday, as Parliament was preparing to recess until Oct. 5, he once again accused State Secretary Gerard Pelletier of presiding over the process of "undermining and diminishing our heritage." Specifically, Mr. Diefenbaker alleged, Mr. Pelletier had given orders to the CBC to call July 1 Canada Day. Dominion Day disappeared last year from advertisements about July 1 events placed by the secretariat of state. Local ads for Parliament Hill carillon recitals and auto races wind up with the slogan: "On July 1st—Think Canada."

That does not sit well with traditionalists, who to date have been successful in blocking a private member's bill in the Commons which would change the name to Canada Day.

"Why is there this pell-mell rush to obliterate one part of our traditions?" Mr. Diefenbaker asked during debate over amendments to the Canada Elections Act.

The Commons, after much haggling, decided to pass an amendment which would force the hundreds of thousands of British citizens who have come to Canada after 1947 to take out Canadian citizenship within five years of the passing of the amendment or lose their vote. They have traditionally been entitled to this in Canada because they were British subjects.

Wallace Nesbitt (PC—Oxford) added:

"There is a feeling in English-speaking Canada that there are attempts being made to destroy traditions of an Anglo-Saxon nature but none to destroy those of a French-Canadian character.

"After all, the cabinet is certainly dominated by members from Quebec. The right honorable prime minister, the secretary of state and the minister of regional economic expansion (Jean Marchand), whether they deserve the accolade or not, are generally regarded as running the government. . . ."

WANT SHIFT FOCUS

A source involved in the planning within Mr. Pelletier's department for last year's July 1 ceremonies says there is some degree of pressure there for getting away fom the traditional way of doing things, which sometimes meets resistance from the prime minister's office.

In 1969, the secretary of state department, it is said, sent a draft proposal for July 1 which would have made Mr. Trudeau the central figure in government ceremonies instead of Governor-General Michener.

Some of Mr. Pelletier's officials are said to have felt that July 1 ceremonies in 1968 had been a flop. Mr. Michener had presented a speech which was deemed to be "out of touch with the people." Mr. Trudeau had not spoken.

The 1969 plan would have had Mr. Trudeau make a major address and the feeling was, the source says, that Mr. Trudeau's speech would have given Canadians a better chance to identify with their country's birthday celebrations than would a speech by the governor-general.

The plan was said to have been approved by Mr. Pelletier but turned down flat by Mr. Trudeau's office. Both the prime minister and Mr. Michener attended the resulting ceremony, but neither spoke.

Branches of a Monarchist League of Canada have been set up in several cities across the country during the last few months. The foundation of the Ottawa chapter attracted 500 persons recently.

NOT FOR ISSUE

Mr. Trudeau himself, when he was approached by a new Canadian youth at a youth hostel in Guelph on the subject, indicated little personal interest in the pros and cons of the monarchy.

The boy asked: "When are we going to get rid of the Queen?"

"It is to me," the boy said.

It is a divisive issue in Canada, said Mr. Trudeau, when Canada does not need divisive issues.

"There are more important things to worry about," he said, such as inflation, housing and the poor.

He implied that day in a speech that if some day a great majority of Canadians ask for the abolition of the monarchy perhaps something will be done about it.

Victoria Defends Insecticide Use

The insecticide Phosphamidon, used by the Victoria parks department to spray trees, is not concentrated enough to harm human beings, birds and animals, parks director Herb Warren said Monday.

"The insecticide is diluted in a solution of one pint for every 100 gallons of water, the equivalent amount for spraying the material over an acre of foliage," he said.

Warren was answering a charge in a letter to the editor (Times, June 27) from Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley, 652 Battery, who wanted to know why the city is using Phosphamidon.

She said literature from the company which makes the insecticide says the chemical is poisonous to human beings and suggests doctors in areas where Phosphamidon is used should be aware of its symptoms.

PRECAUTIONS

Warren said the city uses a number of precautions whenever it sprays with Phosphamidon, even though the solution is diluted.

He said work crews never spray on windy days, and they keep people away when they are working. The solution is never used in blanket spraying of several trees, but only on trees with aphids or other chewing insects.

Each parks department worker who uses the insecticide receives a test one or twice a year to determine whether any Phosphamidon is in his body.

"We have used this chemical for four or five years with no problems," Warren said.

PLASTIC SUITS

He also said the department never has had an instance when one of its staff has been poisoned by the insecticide.

Mrs. Stanley stated that parks crews are protected by plastic suits and respirators when spraying, but no protection exists for children playing in the area.

Warren said a Workmen's Compensation Board regulation requires staff to wear protective clothing, but this does not mean the spraying is as dangerous as it looks.

Residue from in the insecticide is absorbed into the plant within an hour after it is sprayed, he said. Phosphamidon does not remain on the surface of plants where it might result in harmful contact.

You can't send the kid up in a crate like that! But they did. The bush pilots who opened up our north country flew in open cockpits with rain in the face and wind whining in the struts. After a trip like that, they were ready for a brew like Old Style. Today it's still slow-brewed the natural way, for men who appreciate a down-to-earth flavour.
